Knox Service Monday; Burial in Arlington

HEAD OF NAVY DIES AT 70 OF HEART DISEASE

Member of Cabinet Since 1940.

SKETCH OF CAREER.
A sketch and pictures of Navy Secretary Knox's career will be found on page 5.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, 70, who died today, will be buried with full military honors in Arlington National cemetery Monday afternoon. Services will be held in the Mount Pleasant Congregational church with the Rev. Fred Bushmeyer officiating. Admission to the church will be by card only.

Knox, who was publisher of the Chicago Daily News, died in his Washington home of heart disease. He suffered a heart attack last Sunday while attending the funeral of J. A. Muehling, for 40 years his partner as a newspaper publisher, in Manchester, N. H. He became ill again Tuesday morning in his office at the navy department and suffered a second attack that afternoon. A third attack brought death at 1:08 p. m. today.

Wife At His Bedside.

At Knox's bedside when he died were Mrs. Knox, the Rev. Mr. Bushmeyer, Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ralph A. Bard; John F. O'Keefe, vice president of the Chicago Daily News; Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John L. Sullivan, and Capt. Lyman S. Perry, aide to the secretary.

The death of the man who had presided over the navy department since July 11, 1940, was announced over the loudspeaker system of the navy department by Undersecretary James V. Forrestal. Forrestal also radioed an announcement to naval establishments and ships over the world, directing that the flag be displayed at half-mast until sunset on the day of burial on all vessels and over all shore establishments.

[A sketch of Forrestal's career will be found on page 5.]

Senate Recesses.

The senate recessed until Tuesday out of respect for the publisher who had been active in two political parties for almost a half century.

It is expected that Forrestal will succeed Knox or at least continue as acting secretary until after the political conventions next summer.

Knox was nominated as secretary of the navy on June 20, 1940, as the Republicans were gathering for the 1940 convention in Philadelphia. The selection of the publisher, who had run as Republican candidate for Vice President in 1936, was announced simultaneously with the nomination of Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of state in the Hoover cabinet, as secretary of war.

Assailed New Deal.

As Republican nominee for Vice President, Knox had assailed the New Deal. As editor and publisher of the Chicago afternoon newspaper, he was vigorous in denunciation of the administration's fiscal policies and grab of power.

He deserted his party and left active duty with his paper to support the third term because he was in favor of entering the war. Knox had served as a private in Cuba with Theodore Roosevelt's "Rough Riders," and was a supply officer in the last war.

At the time of his death Knox was working for the fourth term. Forrestal has also been active in this cause. It is known that he has taken a house in Chicago the week of the Democratic convention in mid-July to work for the fourth term on the convention scene.

Dies Quizzers Subpena Cash Records of CIO Unit

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP).—The Dies committee issued a subpena today for financial records of the CIO political action committee, which the house group denounced recently in a special report. Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator, said the subpena had been sent to New York for service on Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO committee.

WPB to Allot Penicillin Thru Chicago Office

Penicillin, the drug which has proved miraculously effective against many types of infection, is being manufactured now in sufficient quantities to be used in all important civilian emergencies, and its distribution will be controled thru a Chicago office, the war production board announced last night.

Dr. John N. McDonnell, chief of drug research in the chemicals bureau of the WPB, has arrived here as resident director of the new office for civilian penicillin distribution, in the War Agencies building at 226 W. Jackson blvd. Dr. Chester S. Keefer of Boston, Mass., who has been in charge of the release of the drug from the monopoly hitherto held by the army and navy, will come to Chicago Wednesday and remain a few weeks to help establish the office routine.

Distribution by 1,000 Hospitals.

More than 1,000 hospitals will be requested by a panel representing the WPB, the American Medical association and the United States public health service to serve as area depots for the drug. All other hospitals in the country will request their supplies from the depots. The Chicago office will allocate quotas to the depot hospitals, based on the volume of penicillin produced by manufacturers and the area served by each hospital.

Dr. McDonnell said a list of the 1,000 hospitals will be mailed over the week-end to every hospital in the country, with a report on diseases in which the use of penicillin is valuable, those in which it may be valuable, and those in which it is known to be of no value.

Production Is Increasing.

"All of the emergency requirements of the military services of the United States and the allied governments are being met," he said, "and the initial distribution approved thru this office will take care of all the important emergency civilian cases in the country. Production is increasing at a rate that will permit less restricted distribution in a few months."

Penicillin has been found to halt promptly the growth of vicious organisms, such as streptococci, staphylococci, and the germs responsible for gas gangrene. The WPB report on its uses in combatting various diseases fills six single spaced typewritten pages.

99% Effective for Gonorrhea.

Navy doctors said yesterday in Washington that penicillin has cured 99.06 per cent of 4,439 gonorrhea cases that resisted sulfa treatment. All but 181 responded in 9 to 15 hours, with no recurrent symptoms. Five injections of 20,000 units each in muscles usually cure the disease, it was reported. Comdr. Walter H. Schwartz of the navy medical corps also said some cases of syphilis have been cured by penicillin.

An all time high was reached last year in the nation's fight against venereal disease, Dr. Walter Clarke, director of the American Social Hygiene association, said yesterday.

WHEELER ACTS TO END TAKING DADS OVER 30

Claims Uncertainty Breaks Morale.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—Declaring that uncertainty over the draft status of fathers is leading to a breakdown of national morale, Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] today introduced a senate bill which would halt the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers over 30 years old and defer others regardless of occupation.

"There is more confusion today over selective service provisions than at any time since the act was adopted nearly four years ago," Wheeler told the senate. "This uncertainty is leading to a breakdown of national morale."

Would Delay Induction.

Provisions of Wheeler's bill were:

1. All draft registrants married before Dec. 8, 1941, with children under 18 born before Sept. 15, 1942, would be deferred, regardless of occupation, until after the induction of registrants not deferred or exempted.

2. Induction of fathers who had attained the age of 26 before May 1, 1944, would be postponed until after the induction of those under 26 years old May 1.

3. No pre-Pearl Harbor father reaching 30 before May 1, 1944, would be inducted without his consent.

Discharge Fathers First.

4. No individuals would be inducted because of their occupations or by occupational groups unless the army or navy specifically requisitions persons in special categories.

5. In any general demobilization, the army and navy would be directed to discharge men with families before releasing other persons from active duty.

"The army and navy probably won't take any more men over 30," Wheeler said in introducing the bill. "But it is high time congress took positive action to end the confusion of families whose homes are being broken up and whose fathers don't know their draft status from one day to the next."

Wheeler, who has consistently opposed the drafting of fathers, said "unforeseen circumstances" might require the induction of heads of families, but it should be done only as a last resort.

Would Block WMC Move.

Draft boards now are deferring fathers over 26 years old who are in essential activities and has halted the drafting of those over 30, according to the most recent selective service policies. Wheeler's bill would go a step further by deferring all fathers under 30.

The provision against inducting individuals because of their occupations, or by occupational groups, would forestall war man power commission proposals to order the induction en masse of employes of discontinued war activities.

Congressional leaders tonight predicted that Wheeler's bill would receive immediate consideration in the senate because of the floods of letters and telegrams received by senators and congressmen protesting the shifting policies of the selective service system.

ASSERTS LABOR GAINS DEPEND ON SOVIET BACKING

Philadelphia, Pa., April 28 (AP).—No attempt to get world agreement on better labor conditions can be accomplished effectively without collaboration of the soviet union, Walter Nash, New Zealand's minister to the United States and president of the international labor conference meeting here, told a press conference today.

Summing up work of the conference so far, he cited cabled reports that the soviet paper Izvestia called the ILO "bankrupt." Nash said he had seen the full text of the Izvestia article in the Daily Worker and found that Izvestia had not called ILO bankrupt, but had said the soviet trade unions would reenter the ILO only if it cut itself loose from the old league of nations.

MYSTERY POWER TO BUILD SECRET WEAPON FOR U. S.

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP).—A "mystery load" of power from the Bonneville hydroelectric project in Washington and Oregon will go into operation soon in the production of a "new weapon of warfare," Rep. Angell [R., Ore.] has told the house.

Angell, in remarks published in the Congressional Record today, said he used the designation "mystery load" because "military secrecy prohibits any detailed discussion."

But he added:

"I think I can say with propriety that it represents a new weapon of warfare, developed by a new manufacturing process that will turn large volumes of electricity into the most important projectile yet developed."

Angell discussed the weapon in urging there be no reduction in funds appropriated for the Bonneville power administration.

"The nature of this new manufacturing process is such that any impairment in the continuity of electric service may prove disastrous," he said.

19 DIE IN CRASH OF TRANSPORT PLANE IN WEST

Flagstaff, Ariz., April 28 (AP).—Nineteen mangled bodies were removed tonight from the wreckage of a navy transport plane which crashed early today 30 miles southeast of this mountain town, killing or injuring all of 23 men aboard.

The Coconino county sheriff's office definitely identified the plane after establishing short wave communication with a rescue party of deputies and naval officers from Winslow, Ariz.

Sheriff Peery Francis said two of four injured men who survived the crash wandered to a ranch and later were removed to a Flagstaff hospital. The other two, one critically hurt, were found at the scene and brought here in an ambulance.

Jet Test Pilot Killed.

LONDON, April 28 (AP).—John Crosby Warre, 6 foot 8½ inch test pilot on British jet propulsion planes, was killed last night in a plane crash in western England. No details were available.

British Plane Delivers U.S. Jeep to Marshal Tito

CAIRO, Egypt, April 28 (AP).—The delivery of a jeep to Marshal Tito, Jugo-Slav Partisan leader, was announced today by the R. A. F. The American made car was landed at night on a snow covered air field only a few miles from the German lines from a plane piloted by Flying Officer William Arbuckle of Montreal. British troops who had remained some time in Jugo-Slavia returned in the plane.

Gives Pigs Away; 35,000 Lambs Diet in Corn Freeze

Pork Is Free

Marion, Ill., April 28 [Special].—Marion and Williamson county were agog today over an announcement that a truckload of pigs is to be given away on the courthouse square at noon tomorrow because their owner, by government fiat, can't buy corn to feed them.

George R. Champ, Marion business man and farmer, made the offer in an advertisment in a local newspaper. In it he stated he had 18 pigs just weaned and ready for fattening.

Goes New Deal One Better.

"I am not going to sell them or drown them," Champ said. "I will give them away from noon to 1 p. m. on the public square. In 1933 pigs were killed by government order. Now I am going the New Deal one better—giving away free pork without ration points. The government freeze order barring all corn sales makes it impossible for me to feed these pigs. They will be free as long as they last."

Champ, who is manager for the Western United Gas and Electric company, added an ironical comment directed at New Dealers: "If you 'vote right' in the fall you might be able to sell pigs at the same price I am."

Big Rush Predicted.

Local prophets said it would take only a minute to get rid of the little shotes. They said the square is normally crowded on Saturday and that hundreds, if not thousands, of prospective recipients would be there.

Champ said he had had many requests to reserve the pigs for certain persons.

"There will be no favoritism," he said. "First come, first served with free meat."

Faces Shrinkage

Kansas City, Mo., April 28 (AP).—Out in the outskirts of Kansas City tonight 35,000 feeder lambs, caught in the corn freeze, are going to eat wheat and like it—or, of course, they could eat ivy.

Sheep feeders stated the little lambs didn't like wheat and it would throw them off their feed. They didn't say whether lambs like ivy.

But Seth N. Patterson, president of the commission company feeding the "woolies" doesn't like the idea of upsetting the sheep's feeding routine.

Shrinkage Feared.

With several hundred thousand pounds of potential lamb chops in the pens, he was faced with a shrinkage that would be considerable if the little fellows don't take well to their new fare. They had been eating 1,000 bushels of corn a day.

Floors and a ceiling price have contributed to Patterson's woe, since farmers hereabouts don't want to part with their corn at the ceiling price and probably couldn't make delivery if they did sell.

Need Special Permission.

Efforts of Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Grover Hill in Washington, and Sen. Reed [R., Kas.], in Washington, were enlisted but the corn, needed in manufacture of alcohol in the war effort, still was not forthcoming.

Reed said that in special cases such as this he had been told it was necessary to get permission of the war department and the war production board before corn could be released from surplus areas. "It is no business of the war department or the WPB," Reed said, "where the corn comes from. If this is not a mess, I never heard of one."

A SKUNK FIRES, AND LAMOUR GOES TO WORK!

Lake Arrowhead, Cal., April 28 (AP).—Capt. William R. Howard of the army air forces was the target of a skunk last night. Result: His wife, Dorothy Lamour, turned a hose on him and neighbors fled.

The flyer told the story today at the San Bernardino air base.

He and the film actress entered their cabin at this wooded mountain resort to hear a rustling in the wastebasket. Howard peered in and thought he saw a cat. He turned the basket over, shouting, "skat!"

The skunk fired, with perfect aim.

Howard went outside, shed most of his clothes, and Dotty manned the hose as a one-woman decontamination squad.

'War Time Soap' Proves to Be Janitor's Mistake

Dallas, Tex., April 28 (AP).—County employes in the Hall of Records building thought they had found the lowest of war time products today when the liquid in the soap containers refused to lather, had an unusually pungent odor, and wouldn't wash off—until they discovered the janitor filled the containers with furniture oil.

There's Something Fishy About This Whole Case

Los Angeles, Cal., April 28 (AP).—Fred F. Fish, represented by Atty. Sidney Fischgrund, today was granted a divorce from Ella Fish, represented by the New York firm of Fishbach and Fishbach. Clerk W. R. Fisher administered the witness' oath to Fish and the latter's mother, Mrs. Yanka Fish.

SENATE PROBE STARTED BY JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

House Also Moves to Hold Inquiry Into Incident.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—Overriding the protests of Chairman Sabath [D., Ill.], the house rules committee today voted, 6 to 5, to report favorably to the floor next week a resolution sponsored by Rep. Dewey [R., Ill.] calling for an investigation of the New Deal seizure of Montgomery Ward and company's Chicago plant.

Rep. Dewey [top] and Sen. McCarran.

Meanwhile, it was learned, Chairman McCarran [D., Nev.] of the senate judiciary committee had dispatched an investigator to the scene. The committee was authorized recently to inquire into all executive orders of President Roosevelt that appear to violate the Constitution.

A double barreled investigation thus appeared in prospect as both houses resounded to warnings from Republicans and Democrats alike that the military seizure of a non-war plant resembled Hitler's technique and constituted an exercise of dictatorial power menacing the constitutional rights of civilians.

Sabath Opposition Futile.

Sabath fought strenuously to avert action by his committee on the Dewey resolution. He attempted to delay a vote by resurrecting several resolutions from dusty pigeonholes and summoning witnesses to testify concerning them, but he was thrust aside by a combination of Republicans and Democrats.

Altho the committee vote was close, three Democrats were only temporarily allied with Sabath, it was learned. They argued that the pending injunction proceedings in Chicago should be settled first. Sabath and Rep. Delaney [D., N. Y.], a Tammany man, were the only members who voiced flat opposition to any inquiry.

The disgruntled Sabath said the resolution probably would be brought up on the floor by some other Democratic member of his committee, either Rep. Cox [D., Ga.] or Rep. Smith [D., Va.].

Calls for 7 Man Group.

The resolution introduced by Dewey, who represents the district in which the seized Ward plant is located, would create a special house committee of seven to investigate the seizure.

The heated speech making in congress was led by Sen. Byrd [D., Va.]. Unaware that the judiciary committee had already instituted an inquiry, Byrd introduced a resolution specifically empowering that group to investigate the Montgomery Ward affair.

Byrd asked if "Generalissimo" Biddle, the attorney general who ordered and supervised the physical ejection of Sewell Avery, the company's chairman, aspired to be the American Himmler. [Himmler is chief of the German Gestapo.]

Seizure Termed Blunder.

Democratic leaders privately confessed that the seizure was a colossal blunder which will prove in-

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS.
Stories reporting the Montgomery Ward stockholders' meeting, which reëlected Sewell L. Avery chairman, and on the reaction of the nations' press to the Ward seizure appear on page 3.

BY FRANK CIPRIANI.

Attorneys for Montgomery Ward & Co. in federal court yesterday attacked the legality of the Washington administration's military seizure of the company's properties and asked for the dissolution of a temporary injunction strengthening the seizure. The hearing before Judge William H. Holly, who had issued the injunction, will be resumed Monday. A decision is expected Tuesday.

Highlights of the court session, which found three Ward lawyers battling Washington legal experts headed by Atty. Gen. Biddle, were:

Biddle's announcement of the government's legal theory that President Roosevelt "in this particular matter did not act on any statutory rights, but only on his duty as commander in chief of the army and navy."

Ward's charge that the seizure marked the "first time in the history of the country that an executive has ever attempted, even in war time, to take over a retail store to operate it on the pretext that it is a war plant."

Avery Reëlected Chairman.

Other developments during the day outside of court were:

1. Sewell L. Avery, chairman of Ward's, who was carried from his office Thursday by soldiers and put down in the street, was reelected chairman at the company's annual meeting.

2. Clement D. Ryan, president of the company, was barred from his office by bayoneted soldiers for his refusal to recognize the authority of the government management.

3. Wayne C. Taylor, undersecretary of commerce, designated as the government's operating manager of Ward's, announced plans to reëstablish relations with the CIO labor union which provided the pretext for the federal seizure of the company property.

The court hearing was precipitated Thursday night when Atty. Gen. Biddle persuaded Judge Holly to leave a lawyers' guild meeting and hold night court. It was a closed session, held in chambers, with only government agents and the judge present. The press was barred. Ward's, not notified, was not represented.

Hour of Hearing Moved Up.

At that session, a few minutes before 11 p. m., Judge Holly, a Roosevelt appointee of 1933, issued a temporary injunction. It ordered Avery and 15 Ward officials not to interfere with Taylor's operation of Ward's and directed them to surrender all necessary facilities and documents.

Judge Holly set a hearing for Ward lawyers opposing the writ for yesterday afternoon, but shortly after 9 a. m. yesterday Attorneys Harold A. Smith, George Christensen and Charles Calderini, representing Ward's, were in the United States courthouse, serving notice for an immediate hearing.

Judge Holly, who is retiring July 1, arrived at 9:30 a. m., conferred 15 minutes with Senior Judge John P. Barnes in the latter's chambers, then went to his own court.

'Informed' at 2 a. m.

At 10 a. m. Atty. Smith and his aids appeared before Judge Holly. Only Benedict Deinard, assistant to Biddle, was present, but a few minutes later his chief, Biddle, came in, followed by United States Atty. Woll; Hugh B. Cox, assistant to the solicitor general, and several aids. Judge Holly turned to Smith.

"I was informed at 2 a. m.," Smith began, "that an extraordinary night session was held at which this restraining order [the injunction] was issued by your honor. Inasmuch as such extraordinary measures were taken to secure the order, I am here to ask an immediate hearing on its dissolution."

Atty. Gen. Biddle objected to a

Court Hears Montgomery Ward Case

hearing before 2 p. m. Atty. Smith quickly retorted, "It is just as important in the day time as it was last night when a judge was taken from his ordinary pursuits and held court immediately." Judge Holly told Smith to proceed.

Rebukes Biddle on Haste.

Atty. Smith for the next 40 minutes delivered an attack both on the injunction and on the government seizure of Ward's plant. He read thru the entire 13 pages of the government's complaint and paused here and there to attack its allegations. During his argument he rebuked Biddle for his part in the night session and he assailed Government Manager Taylor, whom he called "that extraordinary man."

Thruout, however, the lawyer's argument attacked the legality of the government's grab of Ward's properties. The President, Smith agreed, had the unquestioned right to take over mines and factories producing war materials; but he had no right, Smith insisted, under the Constitution or under the labor disputes act, to take over a mercantile business such as Ward's, engaged in nonwar pursuits, and in reality nothing more than a huge retail store.

"First Time in History."

That was the issue, said Smith; upon it depended whether Ward's or any nonwar concern must yield to any dictate of the war labor board. It was because of Ward's refusal to obey a decree of the WLB directing it to resume relations with a striking CIO union that President Roosevelt authorized its seizure.

"Mind you, your honor," said Atty. Smith, "this is the first time in the history of this country that an executive officer has taken over a retail store to operate it under the guise of it being a war plant. It is the first time in the history of this country that any one has ever attempted, even in war time, to take over a retail store. It is unprecedented, and a challenge to our system of government.

"No one denies the power of the President to take over a war plant or a mine engaged in war work, but if he can take over this retail store he can take any store on any corner."

War Production Held Issue.

Smith then took up the government's allegation that Ward's plant facilities in Chicago "are equipped for and, in fact, engaged in the manufacture or production of articles and materials required for the war effort."

He paused, then turned and swept his hand toward a group of Ward department heads sitting in the rear of the court.

"This allegation is specifically denied," Smith said, "and this is the indispensable peg on which they [the government] hang their case. I'll show this as false. I have a number of department heads in court this minute to show you the plants and facilities in Chicago are not engaged in the production of war materials, but only in the resale of various articles. This is the bone of the whole lawsuit. If that fails, this case falls like a punctured balloon."

Likened to Country Store.

The lawyer read from a typewritten brief on the duties and powers of the President under the labor disputes act. This act authorizes the seizure of any war plant or mine where production is stopped by strike or other man made cause. The act, Smith asserted, does not apply to businesses engaged in distribution.

Montgomery Ward's is no different, he said, from "thousands of country stores that carry equipment like ours, but no one would seriously venture that the act would empower the President to seize a country store."

Under the act, the lawyer said, the President must first find that the plant involved is a war plant, and second, that a production stoppage in it has occurred. It invokes "a great and terrible power," he warned.

"Indeed, it would be a monstrous doctrine," he went on, "that the President need not even find and proclaim that all the supposed conditions, which may give rise to this great and terrible power, exist. That is a great and terrible power; nobody will deny it.

Bill Called Flimsy Showing.

"The President apparently has been advised that he need make no such finding or proclamation—because he has made none. He has not found or proclaimed that Ward's Chicago plants are equipped for manufacture, production or mining of war materials.

"The government has been content to come to this court to seek a most extraordinary night time injunction as an ordinary litigant, and on the flimsy showing of a bill, sworn to by a man who was never in the plants, except on the eighth floor, until he attempted to seize them.

"This seizure, if founded on the war labor disputes act, must fail. The executive order, purporting to exercise not only the civil power of the President but the military power of the commander in chief of the army and navy must also fail, under ex parte Milligan."

Challenges Taylor to Testify.

Smith challenged Taylor to take the stand because it was Taylor who swore to the affidavit making a showing of the alleged facts on which the injunction was asked and obtained. He also attacked Biddle because of the night court action.

"It [the court session] was a most extraordinary action," Smith asserted, "and the most unfortunate part of it is that the attorney general of the United States was there in person, and a part of it."

Only once did Smith refer to the physical ejection of Chairman Avery of Ward's from his private offices by the military Thursday. That came as he complained to the court that Biddle did not explain to Judge Holly the real nonwar nature of Ward's business in getting the injunction.

"And then," he said, "a man in the sunset of his life was taken bodily from his office and thrown into the street."

BIDDLE GIVES HIS IDEAS

Atty. Gen. Biddle spoke briefly, the tenor of his argument being that the war time powers of the President are so great that his action against Ward's was not to be challenged.

"The first question," said the attorney general, "is: has the President the power to seize these plants here?" He then recalled that after Pearl Harbor labor and industry agreed to keep production rolling; labor pledged no strikes.

"In this particular matter," Biddle said, "the President did not act on any statutory rights, but only on his duty as commander in chief of the army and navy.

Wilson Seizures Cited.

"Even in time of peace, the power of the President, in event of interruption of production, is very clear. In deciding this issue, you must go into the question of the President's power in war time. During the last war, President Wilson took over three plants. One was a telephone company, and this case was sustained in the Supreme court."

[This reference was to the Dakota Central Telephone company, operating solely in South Dakota, which Postmaster General Burleson seized in July, 1918, on President Wilson's orders. Wilson acted on a specific resolution by congress giving him authority to take over telephone facilities during the war. The Supreme court ruled that where congress gives discretionary power to the President, as it did in this case, the courts were powerless to correct wrongs or mistakes arising from abuse of discretion.]

Argues Intent of Act.

Biddle argued the next point to be considered is the construction of the war labor disputes act. "Congress," he said, "meant to include in this act 'distribution of any war materials' which is a part of the function of any plant."

"The third point," Biddle continued, "is whether the findings of the President are sufficient to comply with the provisions of the act. The question now is—is it wise and equitable for you, under your discretion, to issue this restraining order? The government is ready to try the issue as soon as your honor sets a hearing. However, we want to prevent any interruption of the company's normal business. It can be prevented by this restraining order.

"There has never been in any instance, resistance to the President like there has been here. In view of this very serious disturbance, it is my profound belief that under no circumstances should this order be rescinded."

Case "Belongs" in Court.

That concluded Biddle's plea. Smith in reply declared Biddle's argument really meant, "Let's suspend the Constitution until we find out where we stand." Judge Holly then spoke.

"I shall not decide this matter this morning," he said. "I want it clearly understood the plant is not in possession of the government by reason of a court order. I entered the order. I thought it my duty. After all, the case is now in court, where it belongs."

He set Monday for further arguments, and said he would give his decision at 2 p. m. Tuesday, if possible.

While the court action was going on, preparations for the annual stockholders' meeting were being completed. To conform to by-laws, the meeting was opened at Ward's plant, then adjourned to the Blackstone hotel. It was in that connection that President Ryan of Ward's was barred from the plant.

Ryan Defies U. S. Rule.

He was permitted to enter to attend the preliminary meeting, but immediately after was told to leave. This order came after his blunt announcement he would "recognize no authority but Avery's." Among those at the meeting was Atty. Silas Strawn, a director who, mistaken for Avery, was followed by a soldier.

Ryan in his refusal to work with Operating Manager Taylor was taking the same stand as other executives. A government spokesman admitted "they are not coöperating." Nor, he added, has the government yet received access to the company's records.

Manager Taylor's only success during the day was with Local 20, United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employes of America, with which Ward's had broken off relations despite government pressure.

Union and U. S. Agree.

Taylor announced he had met the CIO union leaders, headed by Sam Wolchok, international president, and had agreed to "establish and continue the labor relations and working conditions" provided by the union's expired contract.

Prior to the seizure order, Avery declared that Ward's refusal to obey the WLB dictate and renew what he termed the "illegal" contract with the union involved no change in wages and working conditions for Ward's employes.

"The union has assured me of its full coöperation," said Taylor. The union in reply, said it "welcomes this statement of policy by Mr. Taylor . . . and regards it as a complete vindication of our long fight for the recognition of our union."

Other union representatives at the meeting were Leonard Levy, executive vice president; Francis Heisler, lawyer, and Henry B. Anderson, local president.

BURGLARS TAKE SHOTGUN.

Michael P. Zeppetella reported to police yesterday that burglars broke into his home at 4342 S. Christiana av. and stole a shotgun, wristwatch, and cigaret case of undetermined value.

A RUSSIAN BORN UNIONIST LEADS FIGHT ON WARD'S

Leader of the organized employes in Montgomery Ward & Co.'s mail order department is Russian born Sam Wolchok, international president of the United Retail, Wholesale, and Department Store Employes' union, and a member of the CIO executive board. He lives in the Bronx, New York. His salary is $10,000 a year.

Wolchok is 49. He came to the United States alone when he was 16, learned to run a sewing machine in a skirt factory, married an inspector in that shop Dec. 31, 1917, and spent the next summer in France as a machine gunner in the 6th division. His interest in unionism began when he was elected shop chairman at the age of 18.

On his return from France in 1919 Wolchok went back to the skirt factory, where, he said, he made $50 to $70 a week, but left in a year to take a job in a grocery at $35. He joined a local of the grocery clerks' union, affiliated with the AFL Retail Clerks' International Protective association. He was elected successively a member of the executive board, vice president, and secretary-manager.

Switches to CIO.

In 1937, he related, he found himself in a fight with "crooked leaders" in the union. He appealed to President Green of the AFL, but got no help. A charter in the CIO was taken out in May, 1937. Wolchok was elected international president, at a $7,500 salary, in December of that year and has been reëlected twice since then, and his salary has been increased.

Wolchok's friends praise him for his efforts to keep his union clear of hoodlums and Communists. He became naturalized when he returned from war in 1919.

Last night, in a period of leisure from his campaign at the Ward plant, he told of his life and his aims for the people in his union.

"It is my ambition to organize the store clerks who today are working long hours for low wages," he said. "I am particularly interested in better wages for people working for such concerns as Montgomery Ward."

His First "Big Fight."

This is his first "big fight" since he became president of the union, which he said has 150,000 members organized in 250 locals in 38 states. In organizing employes of Macy's, Gimbel's, and other large stores in New York, he said, the employers were "reasonable."

"I feel that we have made great strides in this fight," he said. "Surprisingly, we have had support from the public, from other unionists in both the CIO and the AFL, and the railroad brotherhoods.

"I believe Mr. Avery is making a mistake that will hurt his business. He has hundreds of thousands of customers and many of them are farmers and working people. He has elected himself to carry the ball."

800 SPURN PLEAS TO GO BACK TO PULLMAN JOBS

After listening to S. C. Spencer, a member of the regional war labor board, and their own union officials ask them to return to work 800 striking employes of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company in Michigan City, Ind., last night declined to vote on ending their walkout.

Some of the strikers remarked belligerently that they might return Monday and permit some 700 other employes to resume production of gondola cars for the army. The strikers, members of the AFL Brotherhood of Railway Car Men, stopped work Wednesday in a dispute involving dismissal of Everett Brooks.

David Golden, personnel manager of the company, and J. M. Patterson, vice president of the international union, agreed to file a decision on reinstatement of Brooks on May 7. The strikers contended he was discharged because of union activities. The company denied it.

SMALL BUSINESS LEADER ASSAILS WARD'S SEIZURE

Small business in America has been terrorized by the Roosevelt administration's seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co., Frederick A. Virkus, president of the Illinois Small Business Men's association, said yesterday in a statement authorized by the board of directors.

"When, in the name of the President and the commander in chief of the army and navy, the company is forcibly seized and the head of the business forcibly ejected, without any pretense of due process of law as guaranteed by the fifth amendment to the Constitution, it strikes terror to the hearts of more than 3 million little business men of the country," he said.

"If we can thus be deprived of the protection against force that our Constitution and the Bill of Rights guarantees, we stand bewildered and alone."

STOCKHOLDERS APPLAUD AVERY VOW TO FIGHT ON

350 at Annual Meeting; Only 3 Voice Dissent.

BY CHARLES GOTTHART.

Sewell L. Avery went before his shareholders yesterday and won their almost unanimous approval of a fighting policy that has carried the chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co., into a position of open defiance of what he terms President Roosevelt's "illegal" orders.

The shareholders—perhaps 350 of them crowded into the Crystal room of the Blackstone hotel for what had been billed as a "grand show"—had the authority to oust him from his $100,000 a year office.

Instead, they applauded his stand repeatedly and reëlected him by casting 3,786,972 votes for him and an approximately equal number for the 12 other directors who had supported the 69 year old business man's fight against the national administration. The directors later reelected Avery chairman and reelected all other officers.

Three Refuse to Approve.

One among the throng spoke against Avery's policies and joined with two others in refusing to vote for a resolution expressing "full confidence" in Avery and his fight "for the company's constitutional rights." But the repeated applause for Avery and boos for the opposition left no doubt of where he stood with the owners of the business.

Avery left no doubt that he would continue the fight against what he termed administration dictatorship. He defended Ward's labor policies, reiterated his expressed approval of unions, but declared his open defiance of the "un-American closed shop," and called for more business statesmanship in national government.

The meeting was held in the hotel because of what the company termed "trespassing" on Ward property, referring to the presence of Washington officials and soldiers called in to enforce a Presidential order for government seizure and operation of the firm.

Doors Opened to Public.

Carefully groomed as usual, the dignified, gray haired Avery appeared promptly at 12:30 o'clock, and received the first round of applause. When it appeared that the meeting would be delayed in the inspection of proxies he ordered the doors thrown open to all who wished to attend. The 250 chairs soon were occupied, and 100 persons, including a large number of women, stood along the walls and occupied all available space in the balcony. Mrs. Avery and Mrs. Rogers Follansbee, daughter of the Averys, were present.

Soon after the meeting began, Frank W. McCulloch, an attorney who as a stockholder had been heard at several preceding Ward meetings, obtained the floor. There were conflicting cries of "sit down" and "let him talk" when he began a denunciation of Avery's policies, but the chairman gave him free rein.

McCulloch, who is director of the James Mullenbach Industrial institute, a church sponsored group at 1613 Washington blvd., succeeded in getting his resolution seconded, but it was lost and the resolution backing Avery was adopted in its place.

Advice on Marks Recalled.

The only other shareholder who spoke more than a few words at the meeting was Dr. A. R. E. Wyant, 2023 W. 101st st., who recalled that President Roosevelt in 1922 had "publicly advertised the purchase of German marks as a sound investment."

He said he thought Avery was better qualified to run Ward's than "the commander in chief of the United States" and declared "the sinister letters F. D. R. stand for First Dictator of the Republic."

Interspersed between the remarks of the shareholders and the routine of the meeting were these observations by Avery:

"When the American people awaken to the degree that the administration has coerced great corporations into accepting uneconomic and unjust conditions, has driven working people into unions they do not wish to join, we will have a change in our national labor relations which will be happier, healthier, and more profitable.

Hits "Impertinent" Contract.

"The contract that we were asked to sign [some time ago] was not a contract but a piece of war labor board impertinence—unauthorized, illogical, and uneconomic—and declared so in court.

"I assure you that I don't believe in getting rich by grinding the people down. We at Ward's fully and wholly accept unions, but nevertheless Ward's has had a reputation for being anti-labor. On the contrary, we're pro-labor and pro-union, but not pro-closed shop. We'll fight the closed shop and fight for a person's liberty to join a union or not join, as he himself decides.

"Without law of the people, for the people and by the people, there is no law in this or any other country. There were 18,000 employes at Ward's 12 years ago and today there are 78,000. That should indicate working conditions are favorable."

Early in the meeting, a shareholder in the balcony said he wished to place in nomination for director "a man of great patriotism and unquestioned business ability—Marshall Field of Chicago." Laughter greeted this proposal by Leon M. Despres, a lawyer who represented another stockholder.

Another in the group proposed the election of Harland Allen, economist, but neither nomination won sufficient support and the entire slate of directors was elected as proposed by the management.

Mrs. Gloria Baker Topping and Brig. Gen. E. H. Alexander after surprise wedding.

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 28 (AP).—Gloria Baker Topping, first of the society glamour girls, was married to a 42 year old brigadier general of the army air forces today in a surprise ceremony at the Morrison field post chapel.

Mrs. Margaret Emerson, the bride's mother, who announced the engagement Sunday, revealed that the ceremony had taken place only after her daughter had left by plane on a brief honeymoon with Brig. Gen. Edward H. Alexander, commander of the Caribbean wing of the air transport command.

Mrs. Alexander was divorced here last year from Henry J. Topping Jr. She has custody of their two young children, Sandra and Henry 3d. She has been active in Red Cross work and was reported to have met her new husband in the performance of her duties.

Gen. Alexander, a veteran flyer, assumed command here after serving in India and China. He helped lay out army air routes over some of the world's most rugged terrain. A native of Watseka, Ill., he was graduated from the University of Illinois before he entered aviation.

MAY'S 1,300,000 NEW TIRE QUOTA IS BIGGEST YET

A total of 1,300,000 synthetic tires will be released to B and C card motorists in May, the largest number of new tires allowed for civilian use in any month since rationing began, the office of price administration announced yesterday.

Col. Bryan Houston, OPA rationing chief, said production of new tires had been "phenomenal," but that until now the demand by the military had taken nearly all the stepped-up production. He said he had urged the rubber director's office to increase civilian allotments in order to keep in operation the cars of all persons who use them in essential industry.

NATION'S PRESS RIPS NEW DEAL WARD SEIZURE

A survey of editorial comment by the nation's press yesterday on the Montgomery Ward case showed that the newspapers were almost unanimous in condemning the seizure of the plant. Following are some of the editorial comments:

BUFFALO COURIER-EXPRESS—Does any American who really believes in the things for which we are fighting enjoy the sight of armed soldiers carrying an American citizen bodily out of his place of business without any warrant at law for such action? The President and the attornel general, instead of relying on democratic processes, have resorted to something perilously close to totalitarian methods.

Transition to Dictatorship.

CHATTANOOGA NEWS—FREE PRESS—The President of the United States, obeying the pressure of a group which once contributed half a million dollars to his campaign fund and now is reputed to have a fund of $700,000 in process of collection for him again, took over a private enterprise not engaged in the war effort. The Ward case has brought the American people face to face with the truth that this nation steadily is being transformed from a democracy into a dictatorship.

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER—In a short while, it is reasonable to believe, the questions involved in the controversy will be subordinated in the public's mind to the political significance of the government's action. At this juncture it would appear that Chicago was an unfortunate place for the government to establish its broad war powers and at the same time play up to a CIO union.

Infamous Outrage.

DENVER POST—A more infamous outrage never has been perpetrated under the cloak of government in this country. Hitler's thugs, in their palmiest days, never did a more efficient job of government seizure of private property.

DETROIT NEWS—Sewell L. Avery makes a strong case in charging that the war labor board and President Roosevelt exceed their war powers in dealing with the company's labor disruptions.

KANSAS CITY STAR—The President's action in taking over the plant will arouse profound distrust. Certainly he has put an unreasonable construction on the war labor disputes act.

KNOXVILLE [TENN.] JOURNAL REPUBLICAN—The Ward seizure is fair notice to the country that there is nothing that will balk the burocrats in their pursuit of power at the cost of destroying the kind of government under which we live and the freedoms for which our millions of men are fighting. It is fair notice that if the fourth term is successful, a membership in the CIO will come first in importance and American citizenship second.

MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL—If the pattern followed by the government in the seizure of Montgomery Ward is an omen of things to come, the situation is perilous and the American people had better wake up while there is yet time. The government's behavior is directly in line with the established policies of the New Deal to behave in such manner that the desires of labor unions, particularly those of the CIO, are gratified.

MINNEAPOLIS MORNING TRIBUNE—Avery's company has been put in the category of an essential industry by an executive fiat, which, if generally applied, would permit the President to take over a corner hamburger stand because it had become involved in a labor dispute.

MINNEAPOLIS STAR JOURNAL—The main issue is the President's right, under a vague ruling from his own attorney general and under the excuse of defending the war effort, to compel private citizens by force of arms to sign contracts they do not want to sign.

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE—The President by act of congress has been given very broad powers to deal with labor disputes affecting the war effort . . . but when it leads, as in the case of Montgomery Ward, to the employment of the armed forces of the United States in the seizure of a mail order firm, the wisdom of the whole theory is called into question and the necessary exercise of the executive authority is jeopardized. . . .

NEW YORK JOURNAL-AMERICAN—The Montgomery Ward seizure . . . is at worse a Gestapo proceeding and at best a high handed misuse of war time powers. If the President can justify his action in the Ward case, what about the machinists' unions in the San Francisco bay area? If the mere refusal of a civilian business to sign a contract with a CIO union is sufficient cause for sending the army to take forcible possession of the premises and manhandle the head of that business, what is the President going to do about union bosses who have defied every process of the New Deal's own laws, have called 13 strikes, have held up vital ships and goods, and who are at this moment in defiance of a war labor board order?

NEW YORK POST—Neither the government nor the head of Montgomery Ward should have permitted this affair to come to such a disorderly impasse. . . . That the President resorted to armed force before exhausting all court and constitutional processes is alarming.

Closed Shop Isue.

NEW YORK SUN—It is clear that the controversy actually concerns maintenance of union membership. It is the contention of the management that if it complied with the WLB order it would be compelled to discharge on union demand all employes who have resigned from the union since Dec. 8, 1943, or who have failed to maintain their membership.

The company might cite as an authority against such coercion of employes the President of the United States, who on Nov. 14, 1943, in answer to a closed shop demand by John L. Lewis, said: "The government will not order nor will congress pass legislation ordering a so-called closed shop."

NEW YORK TIMES — However justified Montgomery Ward & Co. might be in some of the points involved in this dispute, the chairman and directors have not acted wisely from the national standpoint. . . . It is one thing to make one's point; it is another to act in war time with unnecessary belligerence and defiance.

NEW YORK WORLD TELEGRAM—Avery is acting for himself, of course, but he is also spearheading the attack of reaction against trades unionism. The government has acted wisely in this inexcusable dispute, with one exception. We do not think the postoffice facilities, which have been afforded the company in its own plant for many years, should have been withdrawn.

Profoundly Shocking.

OMAHA WORLD-HERALD—News pictures coming out of Chicago these days must be profoundly shocking to the American people. For here are shown soldiers of the republic, in battle dress and carrying their rifles, launching an invasion of a mail order house.

Men in the uniform of the United States carrying the head of a merchandising concern out of his own office! A most curious and mystifying business. How can such things come about?

It is not charged against Montgomery Ward and its president that they broke the law, but only that they did not submit to a policy of the war labor board and the President of the United States. That was the offense which led to the calling of troops and the forcible ejection of an American citizen from an office which he rightfully occupied.

If the army may be called out to enforce Washington's directives in such circumstances, where does the power of the federal government end? What protection does any citizen have against the armed might of the burocracy?

This case should be taken to the very highest court. Americans are entitled to live under the law, not under the bayonet.

Recall Lewis Defiance.

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER—When the full history of this era is written, nothing in it may appear more fantastic than the picture of the head of a great nonwar retail business being carried from his plant by soldiers for failure to comply with a war labor board's directive apparently aimed chiefly at upholding a labor union's requirements.

John L. Lewis last year defied the WLB for months on end, but did the President order a platoon of soldiers to remove him from his office? Not by a long shot. The government simply twiddled its thumbs until Boss Lewis got good and ready to recognize that the WLB existed.

This war is being fought to abolish despotism and brute force overseas. Maybe we ought to give some thought to tyranny and Gestapo methods here.

PITTSBURGH POST-GAZETTE—Another phase of that Ward affair, which may arouse more resentment than the forcible ejection of Sewell L. Avery from his office, has to do with the postoffice department. Before the government took over the company's Chicago property by force of arms, a postal substation was discontinued. To say the least, the action looked peculiar. What right has the postoffice department, supposed to be our most public utility, to take sides in a labor dispute?

PORTLAND OREGONIAN—Are we or are we not living under martial law? There has been no proclamation to that effet, yet the President has had the army seize a merchandising plant dealing in civilian goods. If the time has come when the executive department can issue "advice" which is the equivalent of law, but which is not subject to legal review because it is not called law, then all of us might as well sit around and wait for the Gestapo.

Undisguised Dictatorship.

RICHMOND [VA.] NEWS LEADER—There was no disposition to make a judicial test of the law and to ascertain whether Avery or Biddle was right. Instead of writs, the President invoked bayonets. This is undisguised dictatorship warning that no man's property is safe if he runs counter to the view the administration takes of its own powers.

RICHMOND [VA.] TIMES DISPATCH—Even if Montgomery Ward should win its seizure case in the federal courts, the fact remains that the company has been defying the WLB for 18 months on other issues. Any person or institution defying the WLB must produce extremely convincing arguments to persuade the public that the board is in the wrong.

ST. LOUIS GLOBE DEMOCRAT—The Ward seizure is historic. It involves constitutional issues of tremendous importance. Out of it should emerge a definition of executive powers. . . . It may answer many apprehensive questions as to how close we are veering into dictatorship.

Afraid of Legal Processes.

ST. PAUL PIONEER PRESS—The conclusion must be reached that the government elected to do by force what it was afraid to attempt by the usual legal processes. If the army may be used in seizing this civilian enterprise, then it would appear possible for the government to take over any business or organization whose officials disagreed with some government board of the President.

LITTLE ROCK ARKANSAS GAZETTE—In using troops to take forcible possession of the Chicago units of the Montgomery Ward company, President Roosevelt for the first time applied this method of enforcing war labor board orders against a merchandising concern whose connection with war production, if any, certainly is of the most remote and indirect description.

CLEVELAND NEWS—There is grim and alarming threat to civil liberty in the administration's use of armed troops to seize Montgomery Ward. The company asks only for adjudication of its claims by constitutional processes. The administration responds with armed force. That is not America.

TROY, N. Y., RECORD—Regardless of the right or wrong of Montgomery Ward's position, the government's strong arm conduct in this case appears about as totalitarian as anything could possibly be. High handed and un-American are merely weasel terms by which to describe this incident. It is all of that and more.

JUDGE HOLLY NAMED TO FEDERAL POST BY ROOSEVELT IN 1933

Federal District Judge William H. Holly, who restrained Montgomery Ward Co. officials from interfering with the government's operation of the business, was appointed by President Roosevelt on Nov. 20, 1933. He is 74 years old, and has announced he will retire July 1.

He was educated in Macomb, Ill., and was admitted to the bar in 1891. He entered public life in Chicago in 1914, when Maclay Hoyne appointed him an assistant state's attorney. In private practice he was associated many years with Clarence S. Darrow.

CONGRESS ACTS TO INVESTIGATE WARD'S SEIZURE

Members of Both Houses Denounce It.

jurious to President Roosevelt or his candidate in the Presidential campaign.

Sen. Byrd was supported by Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.], Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.], Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], Sen. Taft [R., O.], and others from both sides of the aisle as he asked:

"Have we reached a state in this country that the directives of a federal bureau can be enforced at the point of the bayonet? If the directives of the war labor board can be so enforced on a nonwar business operation, then so can the directives issued by the office of price administration and dozens of other government agencies, with the result that the constitutional rights of the citizens of America of adjudication of their rights in the proper court of law will be denied to them.

"Our boys enlisted and were drafted to fight the Japs and Germans. They did not enlist to enter the offices of business men thruout the country and drag the men out by physical force and thus violate the very principles of freedom at home for which our sons are fighting and dying abroad to preserve.

Contrast in Lewis Case.

"What reason actuated the attorney general to leave his duties in Washington and go personally to Chicago in a spectacular air trip to take charge of the military forces that ejected the chairman of the board of Montgomery Ward? It is very pertinent in this connection to contrast his action with the attitude of President Roosevelt and all branches of the government toward the most arrogant labor leader America ever produced—John L. Lewis—who three times successfully defied his government in time of war.

"Generalissimo Biddle did not lead an invading army into the office of John Lewis. Not one word of condemnation was ever uttered by him of the fact that John Lewis instituted strikes which occasioned the loss of more than 40 million tons of the production of coal. Neither has the President at any time condemned John Lewis by name."

Sen. Bridges asserted that a logical extension of Biddle's ruling, under which the plant was taken over, would permit the government to seize a back yard victory garden tended in variance with the methods indorsed by Mr. Roosevelt and therefore labeled injurious to the nation's war effort.

Smacks of Dictatorship.

"The employment of troops to effect the President's order is unpleasantly similar to the actions taken by the governments of our enemies," he said. "There are no courts existing in our country which can review the legality of the decisions handed down by governmental bureaus, particularly when these decisions affect industry not engaged in the processing of war materials.

"Under the influence of war time emergency, however, we transferred all of our civil rights to the chief executive. If the legality of the President's action is sustained, congress must provide some definitions, some limitations to the powers which are entrusted to the President."

Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] protested that the suggestion of seizing "every corner drug store and victory garden" was "utterly ridiculous and fantastic."

"We cannot determine here on the floor of the senate the legality of actions that are taken by the President in pursuance of a law which we ourselves have enacted," he said.

"Regardless of the law, I certainly do not think it was the intention of congress to permit the taking over of a great distributing, merchandising enterprise," commenter Sen. Taft.

Power Over All Stores.

"I thoroly agree," said Sen Eastland [D., Miss.], "If the President has the power to take over Montgomery Ward, then he has the power to take over a grocery store or a butcher shop in any hamlet."

"He can take over every man in the United States without any selective service act," asserted Taft. "The fact that the President is commander in chief of the army and navy does not give him one additional power over any civilian in territories where the army and navy are operating. If we admit the validity of any such principle, congress might just as well go home and let the President run the United States and every feature of it."

Acting Majority Leader Ramspeck [D., Ga.], attempting to defend the seizure, asserted that the "orders of the commander in chief must be obeyed by citizens, no matter what their legal rights may be."

"Do I understand you correctly, that we must obey the President, regardless of our legal rights?" inquired Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.].

"That is the substance of what I said," replied Ramspeck.

"That is dictatorship, pure and simple," remarked Hoffman.

PROPERTY GRABS BY U. S. HINTED BY RED IN 1932

F. D. R. Role in Plan Told in Speech.

New York, April 28 [Special].—Something like the seizure of the property of Montgomery Ward & Co. in Chicago was forecast 12 years ago by Paul Blanshard, Socialist party leader who later was city commissioner of accounts under Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia.

Speaking at a meeting of the American Academy of Political Science in 1932, Blanshard said that "nationalization of as many industries as we can chew" was imminent, and named Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt as among those who were then discussing "national planning" seriously. This was only a few months before Mr. Roosevelt became President.

Predicted Price Control.

"Most of the economists in universities know that the future belongs to Socialists," Blanshard averred. "After shelving the Supreme court they will nationalize as many industries as they can chew and remodel industry into a series of great trusts, each to be ruled by a functional industrial democracy, with manual workers, technicians, and consumers all having a vote."

The revolutionary scheme, he said, would be buttressed by a national planning commission "with plenary power over prices and technical methods."

Has Called Self Red.

Blanshard resigned from the Socialist party to work for La Guardia's election. He has at various times called himself a Red. He is now touring Latin America as a consultant for the Anglo-American Caribbean commission, appointed by President Roosevelt to "improve living standards in the Caribbean Islands."

The commission has two members from each territory of the United States and two from each British colony.

MAKERS OF FURS VOW CHALLENGE TO LABOR BOARD

New York, April 28 [Special].—The authority of the war labor board was challenged on another front today. The Associated Fur Coat and Trimming Manufacturers, Inc., representing 750 firms in New York City, employing approximately 9,000 workers, threatened to protest to the United States Supreme court if the board attempts to compel the association to enter into a contract with the CIO furriers' joint council, restricting the association's right to discharge unsatisfactory workers "in a highly skilled and nonwar industry."

Arthur Steinberg, counsel for the association, after a hearing before the regional WLB today, asserted this is strictly a luxury industry and "by no stretch of the imagination" can its operation be said to affect the war effort. The government has recognized this, he said, by levying a 10 per cent luxury tax on its products.

Adjustment of Problems.

He accused the union of seeking to take advantage of the war emergency by taking the present dispute to the WLB after 32 years of collective bargaining, during which employers and union have been able to adjust their problems.

"If the regional WLB orders us to enter into any such contract we will refuse to do so," Steinberg said. "If the national WLB orders it we shall also refuse to do so, and we will then proceed to take the matter to the United States Supreme court."

A three year working agreement between the association and the union expired on Feb. 1, Steinberg said. In addition to restricting the rights of employers on discharges, the union also is asking a 10 per cent wage increase, vacations with pay, and a sickness and death insurance fund.

More Conferences Sought.

Steinberg said that despite the employers' request to continue conferences, the union took the matter to the WLB.

"This being a highly skilled business, if the employer is compelled to retain unqualified workers it can only lead to bankruptcy," Steinberg said.

Irving Potash, manager of the union, expressed doubt the fur manufacturers "would choose to follow the Montgomery Ward example [in Chicago] and create difficulties for our government."

ASSERTS CICERO COPS WORK WELL UNDER 2 CHIEFS

The question whether Cicero police are too confused by two claimants to the title of chief to act efficiently in an emergency remained a matter of concern to Sheriff Mulcahy yesterday altho Town President Henry J. Sandusky assured him that all was orderly in the suburb.

Sandusky met with Mulcahy in the sheriff's office to continue a conversation begun the day before, when Mulcahy said he was ready to act any time to insure law enforcement. Mulcahy repeated his assurance, but Sandusky said he had tested his force with an order, suggested by State's Atty. Courtney, to close the notorious Paddock club and had seen it carried out.

"I believe our force is functioning properly," the town president said. "I don't see any need now for outside help."

The chief who closed the Paddock club was Frank Machacek who replaced Theodore Svoboda last October. The other current chief is Joseph S. Kral, named by the Republican majority of town trustees elected April 4, when Sandusky, the only Democratic winner, became president.

WARRANT CHARGES MAT CAPONE WITH SLAYING IN TAVERN

Dan Altiere.

Capt. John J. McGinnis, chief of county highway police, went before Justice of the Peace Henry J. Pendl in Willow Springs yesterday and obtained a warrant charging Mat Capone, brother of Al, with the murder of James D. Larrison, alias Larkin, in Capone's Hall of Fame saloon in Cicero April 18. Capone and the bartender, Willie Sanders, have been hunted.

The April grand jury completed its inquiry into the Larrison killing yesterday with the appearance of Dan Altiere, 40, 3842 West End av., as a witness. He told police he entered the saloon in time to hear a shot and see the bartender run. Later he heard some talk of "a body in the basement."

Altiere was subpenaed to appear before the May grand jury, which will continue the investigation.

VARIED ACTIVITY MARKS LIFE OF SECRETARY KNOX

Entered Newspaper Field at an Early Age.

Navy Secretary Frank Knox, who died in Washington, D. C., yesterday, was born in Boston, Jan. 1, 1874, to a family of English and Scotch forbears. His baptismal name was William Franklin Knox.

His father, William Edward Knox, came to Boston as a child from his birthplace in St. John, New Brunswick. His mother was the former Sarah Collins Barnard, born in Prince Edward Island.

The elder Knox moved his family to Grand Rapids, Mich., when Frank was a boy. Frank attended the Grand Rapids High school but left before graduation to work as a shipping clerk and salesman. Later he attended Alma college, working his way by teaching gymnasium classes, spading gardens and painting signs.

Joins Rough Riders.

When the war with Spain broke out in 1898, Knox left school and went to Tampa, Fla., where he met Theodore Roosevelt and enlisted in the Rough Riders. Knox went to Cuba with the regiment and participated in the action at San Juan hill. He was invalided home with sunstroke and malaria.

Knox's first newspaper job was as a $10 a week reporter for the Grand Rapids Herald. Within a year he was city editor. Thereafter his newspaper career encompassed the purchase of papers in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Manchester, N. H., his appointment in 1927 as general manager of all William Randolph Hearst papers, and his entry into Chicago journalism in 1931.

When Theodore Roosevelt bolted the Republican party for the Bull Moose campaign in 1912, Knox went along with him. The Republican national convention of 1916, however, found Knox back in the regular Republican camp, supporting Charles Evans Hughes.

Enlists in World War.

When the United States entered the first World war, Knox enlisted in the 1st New Hampshire infantry and emerged from an officers' training school as a captain. He was promoted to major in December, 1917, and assigned to the 153d artillery of the 78th division, with which he served in France for several months. He was mustered out as a lieutenant colonel Feb. 10, 1919.

Knox's entry into Chicago journalism was made Aug. 12, 1931, when directors of the Chicago Daily News announced that the stockholdings of the late Daily News editor, Walter Ansel Strong, had been purchased by Knox and Theodore Ellis, wealthy Worcester, Mass., publisher.

Ellis, who has since died, remained in the background and Knox took over direction of the newspaper as editor and publisher. He began in 1933 to challenge the economic policies and political objectives of the New Deal administration. He assailed President Roosevelt's spending policies and attacked the growing power of burocracy, both editorially and in speeches which he delivered with increasing frequency.

During 1934 and 1935 Knox made hundreds of addresses, participating actively in many state and congressional campaigns. With the 1936 Presidential campaign approaching, Knox had strong party support for a place on the Republican ticket. His name was entered in the Illinois Presidential preference primary and he carried the state over Sen. Borah.

Accepts Second Place.

When the Republicans nominated Alf Landon for President, Knox accepted second place on the ticket. He conducted a strenuous campaign, assailing President Roosevelt who, he said, was leading the nation toward economic ruin thru unbalanced spending. He said the safety of savings accounts and life insurance policies had been endangered by New Deal fiscal policies.

After the 1936 Republican defeat, Knox remained for a time an outspoken critic of Roosevelt domestic policies, but as early as February, 1938, he was stating in speeches that he was in agreement with the President's foreign policies.

Rumors that Knox might be offered a place in the Roosevelt cabinet were first heard in 1938 and were heard again the following year after war broke out in Europe. Knox came out for revision of the neutrality act. In speeches and editorials he demanded a big navy.

Appointed to Cabinet.

Republicans were gathering in Philadelphia for the 1940 national convention when on June 20 Mr. Roosevelt announced the appointment of Knox as secretary of the navy and Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war.

Knox announced he was taking a leave of absence from the Daily News and entrusting operation of the newspaper to his subordinates. It was subsequently disclosed that he continued to receive a salary from the paper, however, for duties as a counseler and adviser.

Knox's first official report to the nation on naval affairs was, by a perverse coincidence, released to the public only a day before the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor. In this report—covering his first fiscal year in office—Knox said "the American people may feel fully confident in their navy," and gave assurances that the navy is "second to none."

Immediately after Pearl Harbor, Knox flew to Hawaii and made a personal inspection of the damage. He returned to write a public report which minimized the disaster, an act he defended a year later as necessary to national security.

THEATER UNION OFFICERS FACE RIVAL TICKET

For the first time in 25 years, a complete slate of opposition candidates will seek office May 3 in the election of Chicago Theatrical Protective union, local 2, comprising a membership of 400 men employed as stage hands and electricians in the city's theaters and moving picture houses.

The new ticket, which will oppose candidates who have held office for upward of 20 years, consists of John McKone, for president; Patrick J. Egan, for vice president, and Frank Forey, for secretary-treasurer. Executive board candidates are Henry Burton, Harry Crawford, Frank Pecchia, and Thomas Kerins.

Incumbents seeking reelection are Lawrence Cassidy, president; William Schraut, vice president, and Frank Olsen, secretary-treasurer. The executive board comprises Henry Mandel, Joseph A. Baker, Arthur Morrison, and James T. Ryan.

PRESIDENT SAYS KNOX DEATH A WAR CASUALTY

In the South with President Roosevelt, April 28 (AP).—President Roosevelt, bronzed and obviously in improved health after three weeks in the south, tonight said Secretary of the Navy Knox truly could be termed a war casualty.

Discussing Knox's death with reporters, the President said it was a very real loss to the conduct of the war. There was every indication he would be unable to attend the funeral to be held in Washington Monday.

Reminiscing, Mr. Roosevelt said every one had been amazed at the tremendous pace the secretary, who was 70 at his death, had maintained for the last two years.

In a statement released in Washington earlier, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that Knox truly "put his country first" and had "helped greatly in our defense and in making victory certain."

STATE STREET SENIORS VIEW ARMY PLANES

Members of the State Street Seniors, an organization of men and women who have been in business on State st. for 25 years or more, were taken on a tour of the airport to inspect army planes by the army air forces material command yesterday.

In the entourage was William H. Miller, senior member of the group who has been employed by Marshall Field and company for 54 years. "It was my first trip and it was marvelous," he said.

The trip was planned by Col. E. A. Madison, assistant chief of midwest material command. Capt. Robert Thompson, of Quincy, just returned from 22 months in New Guinea and now a test pilot for the command, explained operations of the various planes.

Gandhi's Condition Weak and Is 'Causing Anxiety'

BOMBAY, India, April 28 (AP).—The general condition of Mohandas K. Gandhi, who recently suffered an attack of malaria, is "weak and causing some anxiety," an official statement said today.

DEATH OF KNOX PUTS NAVY IN A BANKER'S HANDS

Washington, D. C., April 28 [Special].—James Vincent Forrestal, 52, who became acting secretary of the navy today after the death of Frank Knox, is a former investment banker.

James V. Forrestal.

As undersecretary of the navy since Aug. 6, 1940, Forrestal has been in charge of naval supply and equipment procurement and has supervised for the government contracts running into many billions. He has been an advocate of close control of the firms holding these contracts, and on occasion has cracked down hard on those who got behind in production thru labor disputes and other troubles. He is a Democrat.

A Princeton Graduate.

Born in Beacon, N. Y., Forrestal attended Dartmouth and Princeton universities, graduating from Princeton in 1915. He was employed by the New Jersey Zinc company and the Tobacco Products company before becoming a salesman for the investment firm, William A. Read & Co., which later became Dillon, Read & Co.

In 1917 he enlisted in the navy and was assigned to its aviation force. He was trained with the Royal Flying corps at Toronto, Canada, and was made an ensign in November of the same year. He had war assignments at New York, with the office of the chief of naval operations in Washington, and the naval air station at Hampton Roads, Va. He resigned from the navy with the rank of lieutenant.

Returning to Dillon, Read as head of the bond department, he was made a partner in 1923, vice president in 1926, and president in 1938. In an investigation in 1933 he told how he had set up two personal holding companies that enabled him to avoid paying income taxes on $864,000 of stock market profits.

Assistant to President.

In June of 1940 Forrestal went to Washington as an administrative assistant to President Roosevelt, and was assigned to study Latin American problems. Only two months later he was transferred to become second man in the navy management.

His relations with British naval heads have been close. Six months before Pearl Harbor he went to England to discuss what American materials the British navy needed and the standardization of these materials for the two navies.

Forrestal was married in 1926 and is the father of two sons. His wife is the former Josephine Ogden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Newton Ogden of Huntington, W.Va. Forrestal is a vice president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, of which President Roosevelt is head.

Christen Navy Ship May 4 for Pearl Harbor Victim

A destroyer escort to be launched May 4 at the DeFoe Shipbuilding company yards in Bay City, Mich., will be named in memory of Ensign Edward W. Gosselin, 24, of Joliet, who was killed in the attack on Pearl Harbor, it was announced yesterday. The escort will be christened by the officer's mother, Mrs. Edward H. Gosselin of Joliet.

KNOX WILL PUTS PAPER IN HANDS OF 3 EXECUTORS

Following the death of Secretary Knox, the Chicago Daily News yesterday published an announcement concerning the control of that publication. The announcement stated:

"It is understood that Col. Knox left a will appointing as executors Mrs. Knox, Laird Bell of Chicago, his personal attorney, and Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company. The executors, it is further understood, will hold the controling interest in the Chicago Daily News."

No statement was made of immediate plans for the disposition of the publication.

Cite Submarine Captain Who Sank 141 Jap Ships

United States Submarine Base, Groton, Conn., April 28 (AP).—Capt. Charles W. Styer of Coronada, Cal., was presented the legion of merit at a recent ceremony here, the navy announced today, for his work as commander of a submarine squadron which sank 141 Japanese ships totaling 938,845 tons and damaged 81 others totaling 666,630 tons. The citation said "much of the credit for the many successful patrols of these submarines" was due to the "efficient administration and inspiring leadership" of Capt. Styer, now commander of this base, and also mentioned the "outstanding administrative ability and thoro knowledge of submarine warfare" shown by Styer.

TRIPLE HEADER U. S. RAIDS BLAST NAZIS IN FRANCE

Rip Air Fields and Forts in 2,800 Plane Blows.

LONDON, April 29 [Saturday] (AP).—The first triple-header American heavy bomber strike highlighted widespread attacks on German air bases and fortifications in France yesterday, and brought to approximately 2,800 the number of allied sorties during the 14th straight day of the sky offensive.

R. A. F. bombers struck at undisclosed Nazi targets in occupied territory early today. German raiders meanwhile feinted at the southeast coast of England, but were driven off with two shot down. No bombings had been reported early this morning.

Two task fleets of big bombers—each numbering up to 250 Flying Fortresses accompanied by about 500 fighters—began the daylight offensive with blows against the Cherbourg area, 70 miles across the English channel, and the big Avord airdrome 130 miles south of Paris.

Pound Pas-de-Calais Area.

In the afternoon a fleet of perhaps 250 Liberators crossed the 20 mile wide Dover strait and pounded the Pas-de-Calais area.

Lightning fighters newly converted into fighter-bombers hit an airfield repair plant at Tours and flew as far as Reims, 150 miles inside France, without sighting an enemy aircraft.

Marauder medium bombers attacked an air field in northern France; Thunderbolts attacked another air field in central France and dive bombed several in northern France, hitting parked planes, hangars, and dispersal areas; Mustang fighter-bombers dove thru a break in the clouds over Paris and bombed and machine gunned hangars at Le Bourget; R. A. F. Mustangs destroyed an enemy plane southwest of Paris and also attacked objectives in northern France.

Seven Planes Lost.

Four bombers and three fighters were listed as missing from the widespread operations.

The day's war bulletin said the only encounter with the enemy came during the Fortress attack at Avord.

RUSSIAN BOMBS TOUCH OFF FIRES IN RAID ON LWOW

LONDON, April 29 [Saturday]—(AP)—Russian aircraft touched off fires and explosions Thursday night at the rail junction of Lwow in former Poland during a mass attack, Moscow said early today. A war bulletin again announced "no substantial changes" on the land front.

The announcement said one force of Red airmen "blockaded" an enemy airdrome near Lwow and set fire to a column of German trucks on a road leading into Lwow.

The bulletin said Russian troops yesterday killed 800 Germans and Hungarians in repulsing counter-attacks southeast of Stanislawow in former Poland.

A German bulletin said that fresh Russian attempts to break thru with strong forces north of Iasi in Romania had been frustrated.

BOLIVIA BREAKS UP REVOLT PLOT; SIEGE DECLARED

LA PAZ, Bolivia, April 28 (AP).—The Bolivian government tonight announced that a vast conspiracy had been broken up with the detention of numerous revolutionaries and that a state of siege had been declared thruout the country.

No details were given, but an announcement by the government said that Acting President Maj. Gualberto Villaroel acted constitutionally with the consent of his cabinet to preserve public order in the face of subversive activities. No public disturbances were reported.

53 Italian Youths Shot by Fascists, Swiss Report

CHIASSO, Switzerland, April 28 (AP).—A dispatch by the Swiss Telegraph agency said today 53 north Italian youths had been shot on charges of failing to answer Fascist calls into the army or for desertion. The sentences were passed by special tribunals at Perugia, Varese, Acquilla, Bologna, Bergamo, and Venice.

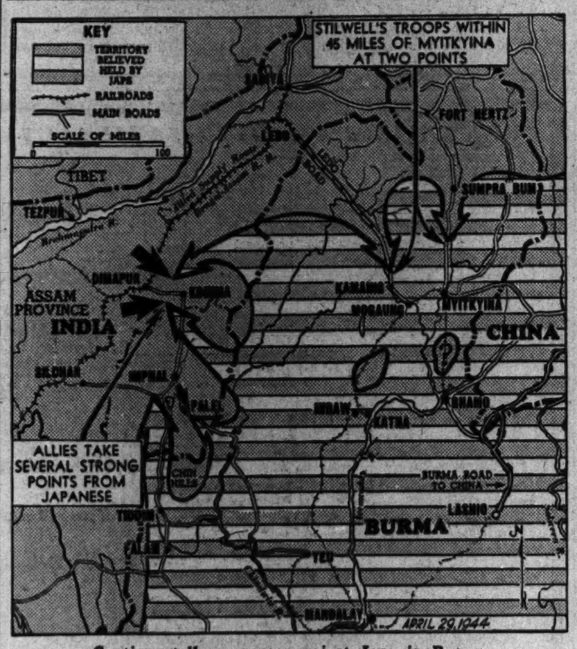
Allied Forces Gain in Burma



Captions tell successes against Japs in Burma

PUSH JAPS FROM STRONG POINTS IN KOHIMA SECTOR

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, April 28 (AP). — The powerfully reënforced defenders of Kohima, allied base in eastern India, have smashed into Japanese positions west of the mile high town and captured several strong points, it was announced today.

Allied tanks and infantry, which fought into Kohima along the 35 mile road from Dimapur earlier in the week, were reported making steady progress in "very difficult country" as they battled to clear the area of Jap invaders.

Several Jap divisions are more or less stranded around Kohima and the Imphal plain, far across the mountains from their Burma bases. Less than three weeks of good fighting weather remain before the monsoon rains begin.

Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's mixed forces were reported making steady progress in their drive toward the big Jap base of Myitkyina in northern Burma, despite stiffer enemy resistance.

Stilwell's troops now are within about 45 miles of Myitkyina both on the north and the west.

Chinese War Official Shot Down in Burma, Say Nazis

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Berlin radio, broadcasting a Japanese dispatch, yesterday said Jap planes had shot down a four engined bomber escorted by two fighters over Burma, adding that there was "every indication" that it carried Gen. Chen Cheng, Chinese vice minister of war. The report said Chen was sent to India by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to consult with Adm. Louis Mountbatten, southeast Asia commander. He was the hero of the Chinese victory on the Yangtze front last year.

CHINESE THROW JAPANESE FROM GATE TO LOYANG

CHUNGKING, China, April 28 (AP).—Chinese defenders have driven Japanese troops from strategic Hulao pass, gateway to Loyang, annihilating many, the Chinese high command said tonight. It announced that successes both east and southeast of Loyang had eased threats to the city.

Earlier the Chinese had admitted the Japs had fought into the important pass west of Chenghsien, which the high command acknowledged had been lost to the Japs driving into North Honan.

Southeast of Loyang the Chinese claimed advances and said the enemy suffered heavy losses near Nihsien, 20 miles southwest of Changchow.

In the first action by the Chinese air force in the present battle Chinese planes attacked Japs between the pass and Jungyang, a Lunghai railway town farther east.

Jap forces driving southward east of the Peiping-Hankow railway were forced to retreat after gaining 30 miles, the high command said.

R. A. F. Gas Quota for '40 Used by Allies in 12 Days

LONDON, April 28.—The United States and British air forces are using in 12 days the same quantity of high octane gasoline that the R. A. F. alone consumed in 1940, according to Geoffrey Lloyd, oil control board chairman. He said enormous gas consumption had been made possible by tremendous Anglo-American production achievement. He praised the United States' achievement as "gigantic" and said it was a real winning job, comparable in size and importance with what the United States had done in building ships and planes.

PROPAGANDA LEAFLET DROPPING GETS A LIFT FROM SCIENTIFIC TOOL

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, April 28.—A device operated by barometric pressure is being used over Europe to enable men dropping propaganda leaflets to see that the bundles fly open and discharge their contents at any height.

The release gadget was devised by several men in the air service command when it became obvious that the leaflets should be set free at varying altitudes, depending on the area to be covered, the position of near-by planes, and other variable factors. Fashioned like a bellows, it is fastened to the bundle so it holds the cord together until approximately the desired height is reached. Then the catches spring apart and the devise forces open the cords.

The instrument, made of thin copper strips, is said to be very accurate. It has been used over France and Germany with great success.

Serb Partisans Seize Town from Chetniks

LONDON, April 28 (AP).—Capture of Sabovici in southern Sanjak by Yugoslav Partisan forces after a battle with Chetniks was announced today by Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz. The announcement also said German efforts to break thru the Partisan lines near Mrkonjicgrad had failed.

GERMANS FAKE A 'RIOT' EDITION OF U. S. WEEKLY

MADRID, Spain, April 28 (AP).—German propagandists issued today a counterfeit edition of the American picture weekly "Life," dated July 5, 1943, containing pictures, many of them years old, designed to make readers believe permanent, bloody strife exists between Negroes and whites in the United States.

Altho this is a familiar subject of German propaganda, today's 8 page effort was the first time the propagandists tried giving out faked copies of what apparently was an American magazine to put across their theme.

YANKS' HEALTH IN BRITAIN GOOD, GENERAL FINDS

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 28.—The general health of American troops in Britain has been good, with the rate in time lost because of illness only about three quarters that of the United States, Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, surgeon general in the European theater of operations, said today. Thirty men for every 1,000 are on the sick list daily here.

The general said one reason for the better health rate here is that hardened soldiers, such as those sent overseas, are not subject to minor ailments which plague recruits when they are inducted into the army. He also explained that many casualties requiring long treatment are sent home where they are charged against the sickness rate there.

Better Than Anticipated.

Nevertheless, health conditions are better than was anticipated, Hawley said. It never has been necessary to use more than three quarters of the hospital beds provided for noncombatant casualties, he asserted.

Despite weather conditions to which Americans are not accustomed, the communicable disease record, including respiratory diseases such as influenza, has been good. Diarrhea and dysentery are somewhat more prevalent than in the United States, but less prevalent than in other theaters, the general said.

Venereal Disease Drops.

In the last nine months there has been a steady decline in the army's peace time rate of venereal disease. The decrease is attributed to the use of preventive medicine, as well as an educational campaign conducted by commanding officers. British agencies have coöperated with a publicity campaign, the general said. Country boys who have lived in relatively healthful surroundings have been found to be more susceptible to disease than city youths, most of whom have acquired immunity to many ailments, the general disclosed.

He said the physique of the troops is better than in the last war.

Glenview Naval Flyer Injured in Plane Crash

An occupant of a primary training plane from the Glenview naval air training station was seriously injured in a crash yesterday near Half Day, eight miles northwest of the station. The accident occurred during a routine flight, it was announced by the Glenview public relations office. The injured flyer's nearest relative was being notified before his name was made public.

AUSTRALIA TRIES TO BAR CRITICISM, JUDGE DECLARES

Delays Contempt Action Against Paper.

SYDNEY, Australia, April 28 (AP).—Chief Justice Frederick Jordan said in court today that the action of commonwealth peace officers in bringing contempt of court proceedings against owners of the Sydney Morning Herald while the whole censorship controversy is before the courts appears to be an attempt to stifle public criticism.

The Herald had published a letter from a reader discussing the censorship question while a government attempt to prosecute six Australian newspapers for alleged violations of the censorship code is pending before a special federal court.

Postpones Proceedings.

Jordan ordered the contempt of court proceedings postponed until the federal court magistrate had completed the pending case, but government counsel argued the delay would constitute "shutting the stable door after the horse has gone."

Jordan replied that "it seems to me the stable door you want to shut is public criticism."

Commonwealth representatives told the federal court hearing later that censorship regulations impose absolute liabilities on newspapers and the censor has discretionary power that is not examinable afterward by the courts. Censorship could not work unless the censor was made the final arbiter, they argued.

E. G. Bonney, chief censor, said he is not influenced by party politics nor ministerial instructions.

Criticizes Blank Spaces.

He said blank spaces left in newspaper columns to indicate censorship deletions might cause rumor mongers to place the wrong construction on omissions.

It might even cause them to imagine a second front had been launched and the allies had suffered severe reverses, he said.

Bonney referred to censors' alterations in newspaper accounts of a motion passed by south coast miners calling a meeting to consider a general work stoppage. He said that at that stage all parties were working for resumption of work and censors had been advised by the coal commissioner that it would be dangerous to let any talk of strikes be published.

Therefore, he said, censors altered the words from "to consider general stoppage" to "to review the whole position."

The hearing was adjourned until Monday.

YANKS ATTACK GUAM; JAPS FAIL TO GIVE BATTLE

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP).—Guam, former United States possession overrun by the Japanese in the Pacific, was bombed by the navy and none of the Jap planes on the ground attempted to battle the American attackers.

Announcing the April 24 attack tonight, the navy also said Ponape was attacked twice on April 26 and once the following day. The town of Ponape and air fields were hit and fires started.

Fifty-four tons of bombs were loosed on Moen, Etten, Dublon, and Param in the Truk atoll by army planes. Jap planes aloft made no effort to intercept the raiders. Puluwat and Marshalls Islands bases also were attacked this week.

No casualties were sustained by any United States force.

U. S. Plane Carrier Sunk: Nazis.

New York, April 29 [Saturday]—(AP).—The Berlin radio, quoting "reports from Tokyo," asserted today that two American aircraft carriers were attacked in a harbor "east of the Marshalls" by Japanese submarines and asserted one "was so badly damaged by torpedo hits it must be presumed lost." There was no

GAG ON OFFICER BY ARMY FLAYED BY HOUSE GROUP

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP).—Disclosing that a high ranking army officer was censured by the war department because he testified without clearance from department channels, members of the house military committee affairs today demanded to know in the words of Chairman May [D., Ky.]—"Who is running the committee."

May promised to back up a demand of Rep. Sparkman [D., Ala.] that the unidentified officer be reinstated and his record cleared.

"When this committee asks somebody to come before it to give information needed in considering legislation, they are going to come," May declared.

"It is time for a showdown to determine who is running the committee, the war department or the committee itself."

Friction has existed between the committee and the army for some time.

AUSTRALIA RADIO HUSHES TALK ON PRESS FREEDOM

SYDNEY, Australia, April 28 (AP).—Because of the government's legal proceedings against Sydney newspapers on charges of censorship violations, the National broadcasting station today suddenly canceled a transcribed address by Kent Cooper, executive director and general manager of the Associated Press, on freedom of the press.

When Cooper's address, sponsored by the American office of war information, was due, the announcer said: "In view of current legal proceedings in Sydney involving the question of censorship and the press, it was decided to defer this talk until a future date."

The censorship controversy came to a head April 17, when the censor stopped publication of all four Sydney newspapers, and seized undistributed copies. Publication was resumed a few hours later, on a court injunction restraining the censor.

PRAISES NEWSPAPERS.

Kent Cooper's address, recorded by OWI Feb. 21 for broadcast in Australia and released in New York yesterday, appealed for provisions for untrammeled flow of news in the peace settlements as the best defense against future wars.

He praised Australian newspapers, "who cling so tenaciously to the tenets of a free press," and expressed the hope they would join in a world crusade for press freedom.

The most powerful thing in the world, said Cooper, is truth, and "if news may flow freely, if controls permitting systematic distortion are rigidly prevented, we may have an abiding faith that truth will prevail."

Hopes for Free Press.

Cooper said complete freedom of the flow of news after the war might seem like reaching for the millenium but a declaration in favor of it would pave the way. He also said:

"It is because I believe that true and unbiased news is the most vital moral concept in the world today, that I earnestly hope the future will find Australians and Americans, with our firm bonds of sympathy and mutual understanding, working steadily together for the ideal of a free press in a free world."

Eisenhower Tells Flyers Teamwork Most Essential

LONDON, April 28 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower, in a quick tour of fields from which allied aerial blows are being delivered, advised one group today that "as much as you have done in the past, more is going to be required of you." He called on the flyers for continued teamwork. He said "one thing above all you must do, and that is to pull together."

SUICIDE VERDICT RETURNED.

A coroner's jury decided yesterday that Terry Young, 55, shot and killed himself Thursday in his home at 2707 Washington blvd., while suffering from ill health.

HENRI CHARPENTIER'S Column

Every evening as I look around our comfortable dining room I observe at many tables men and boys from all branches of the armed forces. They are with their families and friends. I say to myself . . . M'ARTHUR RAIDS 2 BASES ON WEST END OF N. GUINEA

Slashes Jap Air Arm Across Broad Front.

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, April 29 [Saturday]—(AP).—American flyers, seeking to forestall any Japanese attempt to bolster the crippled Nipponese air arm on New Guinea, poured more than 300 tons of bombs on enemy airdromes from the western tip of the huge island to Rabaul and Kavieng in the east.

Gen. MacArthur announced today that Mitchell bombers ripped the enemy's Jefman airdrome at Sorong, on the western end of New Guinea, while heavy bombers hammered Babo, to the south on McCluer gulf. Babo has air and port facilities. Numerous fires rose from both targets.

Found 4 Wewak Air Bases.

Other bombers unloaded 188 tons of explosives on the four airdromes in the Wewak area, 90 miles southeast of captured Aitape, and hit Rabaul, New Britain, with 125 tons, concentrating on five air strips. Kavieng, New Ireland, also was hit.

MacArthur announced his bombers had finished wiping out the remnants of the Jap air force at Wewak.

Only Rapopo airdrome on Rabaul offered heavy anti-aircraft fire. One American plane was lost there from a raiding force of 150.

Consolidate Hollandia Lines.

Americans consolidated their perimeter positions at Hollandia and Aitape, invaded just a week ago, after capturing all the airdromes and chasing the Japs into the hills and jungle. An occasional sharpshooter in a tree was the only remaining opposition in the immediate areas.

Gen. MacArthur announced the force which landed at Tanahmerah bay near Hollandia was the 24th division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving. The outfit which made its beachhead 35 miles to the east at Humboldt bay was the 41st division under Maj. Gen. Horace Fuller.

Parts of the 32d and 41st divisions made up the invasion force at Aitape, 150 miles to the southeast. The force was led by Brig. Gen. Jens Doe of Carmel, Cal.

American bombers today were flying from the airdromes seized at Hollandia, bases which are within range of Palau and the Philippines.

Adm. Spruance Becomes Commander of 5th Fleet

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, April 28 (AP).—Adm. Raymond A. Spruance today was officially designated as the commander of the 5th fleet. His former title was commander of the Central Pacific force, under which he was in over-all command of the invasions of the Gilbert and Marshall Islands and of the carrier task force blows against Truk, the Marianas, and Palau.

NAVY OPPOSES MOVE TO MERGE WAR SERVICES

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP).—The navy today opposed immediate action on army proposals for consolidating the services and dampened enthusiasm on Capitol hill for early congressional moves toward a post-war unified command.

Any action now, said Undersecretary of Navy Forrestal, would find the navy "definitely in opposition," and anything later should come only after careful consideration.

Forrestal testified before the Woodrum committee created by the house to blueprint post-war military policy. The same committee earlier this week heard War Secretary Stimson urge that the "general principle of consolidation" be determined "as soon as possible."

Explains Navy Stand.

Forrestal explained the navy's position as follows:

"The whole question of military organization deserves and should receive a most objective and thoro study. It believes the question should be approached by detailed examination with the conclusion to be reached at the end of such an examination rather than acting upon the assumption that the case is already established."

Without independent organizations, Forrestal said, the United States now might not have its modern dive bombers or air cooled motors "had not the navy pushed its belief in and ideas about these things."

Favors Joint Rule.

Forrestal said he believed "the concept of the joint chiefs of staff" under which the army, the navy, and the air forces now coöperate voluntarily in a unification of command, "should be continued after the war."

Some committee members, who earlier had looked upon consolidation as a cut and dried proposition needing only a legislative blueprint, predicted after hearing Forrestal that the committee would take its time before making any definite recommendation.

Others viewed the navy's attitude as being motivated by fear that consolidation might find the sea forces being the smaller of the armed services, while the future, after demobilization of the army, probably would see the navy as the predominant arm because of its war time size.

M'ARTHUR SAVES 100 MISSIONARIES IN DUTCH GUINEA

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, April 28 (AP).—Gen. MacArthur today announced: "It is with peculiar pleasure that I can report the rescue from the enemy in the Hollandia [Dutch New Guinea] operations of 100 foreign missionaries, including 40 nuns. These include 13 Americans, seven Dutch, three Poles, one Australian, One Czechoslovakian, and the remainder Germans. They were originally stationed at mission stations along the north coast of New Guinea. The rescue of these Christian workers seems an especially beneficent act of providence."

The first group of missionaries filtered into American army headquarters at Hollandia Tuesday night, three days after American forces invaded the former Jap air base. Twenty-three had to be brought out of the hills on stretchers. All 100 were suffering from privations of 25 months in the jungle mountains.

Meager details available here failed to explain why the Germans sought refuge with missionaries from enemy countries instead of with their Jap allies.

Neighbor Saves Youth Enveloped in Flames

A neighbor yesterday extinguished flames that enveloped John Braun, 9, when his clothes caught fire as he was playing near a rubbish fire near his home at 5856 Grand av. The boy suffered burns on his feet and legs.

"But you're the one who called up the butcher about that lousy steak he sold us, and you're the one who should try to square things!"

WRITER ELUDES HOLLANDIA BAY BLASTS, FIRES

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, April 28 (AP).—After two Jap bombs bracketed Associated Press War Correspondent Asahel Bush and Press Relations Officer Lt. Jack Cross at Hollandia on Sunday, Bush calmly quipped: "Pass me some skin," Cross related today.

"We lived thru that one," reported Cross, and for 12 hours they dodged fires and explosions on Humboldt bay.

Today Bush was much more perturbed about the loss of his typewriter, destroyed with the rest of his gear. He had lost another typewriter during a Jap counter-attack in the invasion of Los Negros Island two months ago. Typewriters are virtually irreplaceable out here.

Bush's confession of his loss was included in the last paragraph of a message to his bureau: "I lost all my gear and when I say 'all' you know what that means. Just like some folks ought not to be trusted with firearms."

ALLIED TROOPS REPEL A GERMAN PATROL IN THE ADRIATIC SECTOR

ALLIED HDQ. IN NAPLES, April 28 (AP).—Patrol clashes were reported at the Italian front today while bad weather again held air operations to a bare minimum.

Enemy patrols were particularly active in the Adriatic sector. A force of undetermined strength infiltrated the allied position immediately north of Crecchio, but was driven out by counter-attack.

Occasional artillery fire punctuated the lull when rain, dampening the entire front, caused cancelation of all except 180 sorties by the great Mediterranean air forces. Spitfires and Hurricanes of the coastal air force completed one mission—an attack on a radio station at Cap Gagil, south of Durazzo in Albania.

[Berlin reported "lively shock troop activity from our side. Several enemy thrusts were frustrated. In the Adriatic sea, the Island of Korcula again has been cleared of Communist bands."]

ANTI-INVASION COMMAND TO GO IN ACTION: BERLIN

LONDON, April 29 [Saturday]—(AP).—The Berlin radio early today announced that the German anti-invasion command was about to go into action. It reported that "another huge allied fleet is forming in the ports of southeast England." The Germans said Nazi raiders struck again at "concentrated allied shipping massed off southwest England."

The German high command previously had announced bomber attacks on allied shipping Thursday night. It also had reported that German torpedo boats had attacked a British convoy off southern England yesterday morning, torpedoing a destroyer and sinking three of the convoyed vessels.

Pick "Invasion Dates."

One report of an air attack on allied invasion ships in western England was sent from Berlin by the correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen.

Continental radio commentators began naming definite "invasion dates," one as early as next Tuesday.

"The latest naval clashes off the Atlantic coast and in the channel," said a German high command spokesman as quoted by the Berlin radio, "and finally the glaringly obvious displacement of the center of gravity of the Anglo-American air raids to the occupied western territories and to the strategic communications centers of southwestern Germany, must of necessity be regarded primarily from the general point of view of the expected onslaught."

German's Observation.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, another German commentator, added this observation: "The striking increase of combat activity in the Mediterranean off Corsica and in the Ligurian sea has been observed. This deserves the closest attention in view of the possibility of new allied landings, possibly in conjunction with the repeatedly postponed great western invasion."

One Capt. Karl Henrik Falkman, a commentator unknown in London but described by the Swedish radio as a Swedish naval expert, said D-day would come between May 2 and May 17, and probably in broad daylight.

Marshal Petain broadcast a warning to his countrymen against the danger of civil war. He urged them to disregard calls to revolt and remain "loyal" to the German army.

LOST GIRL FOUND.

Bernadette Simon, 10, was returned to her home at 1734 Sedgwick st., by police yesterday after she had been missing since Wednesday and said she had been attending movie theaters. She was found at the Lawrence av. elevated station.

WORKER AGREES TO VOLUTEER IF STATUS CHANGES

William Graff, 19, a war plant worker who refused to support a minor brother and sister out of his weekly earnings of $136, was required by draft board No. 10 in Orland Park last night to sign an affidavit certifying that he will volunteer for service if the children are taken from his custody.

Graff, who lives at 14624 Springfield av., Midlothian, and is employed at Foote Brothers Gear and Machine corporation, was placed in class 3-D on March 16 because of the dependency of his brother, Kenneth, 9, and sister, Jeanene. W. R. Schuffler, board chairman, after requiring Graff to sign the affidavit, said his draft status would be taken under advisement pending a court hearing Tuesday.

Graff's refusal to support the children was disclosed when an older sister, Rita, 18, complained in Probate court that he had tricked her into signing papers appointing an administrator of their mother's estate, valued at $7,000. She asserted that Graff forced the three children to leave their home and live with an aunt. Graff declined to support them unless they returned to his home.

CHICAGO MAJOR CITES SIX OF HIS MEN AS HEROES

[Copyright: By the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH THE 5TH ARMY ON THE GARIGLIANO FRONT, April 28.—Maj. James MacNulty of Chicago, executive officer of a battalion of 105 mm. howitzer men on this Italian front, has recommended six daring fire fighters in his outfit for citation.

They are Mess Sgt. Ira Slaughter of Menard, Tex.; Corp. Arnold Kearby, Alton, Ill.; Corp. Robert Shares, Buchanan, N. Y.; Corp. Henry Lahmayer, Pvt. Robert Mitchell, Arden, W. Va., and Pvt. James Reynolds, Providence, R. I.

The six are credited with saving a howitzer and the remainder of its crew during a hectic half hour fight against fire started by German shells which killed two of the gunners and wounded eight. The fire destroyed the gun's camouflage net, set off powder caps and threatened a mound of ammunition before the men, charging across 150 yards of highly exposed ground, put out the flames.

Leslie Howard, Actor Lost in Plane, Leaves $251,000

LONDON, April 28 (AP).—Leslie Howard, British film star missing since last June 1 when the transport plane on which he was traveling from Lisbon to England messaged that it was being attacked by German fighters and then lapsed into silence, left an estate of $251,000, it was disclosed today. The majority of the estate will be held in trust for his widow, son, and daughter. Howard left a Beverly Hills, Cal., home to his secretary, Violette Cunnington, but she died six months before the actor disappeared.

RIVER SPILLING OVER LEVEES AS IT NEARS CREST

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Mississippi river, swollen to a stage that may equal a 99 year record at some places for the second time in a year, spilled over crumbling levees last night to flood new acres of Illinois and Missouri farm lands but with less disastrous results than in 1943.

Four main levees protecting Illinois banks of the river went out as the crest neared. Orders came from the army engineer's office to evacuate farm families from other threatened areas.

The crest of the flood is expected to reach 38.9 feet at St. Louis, the same reading as last May. At that stage it exerts damaging pressure on every levee all the way down the river to Cairo, Ill.

Latest figures from the midwestern Red Cross office at St. Louis disclosed that the floods have affected 5,700 families in Missouri and Illinois and 6,527 families in Kansas and Oklahoma.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

April 28, 1944.

THE big breeding herd of Aberdeen-Angus cattle at the farm now is beginning to get out to pasture again after months of barn and dryfot feeding. Altho pasture growth has been slowed by rains and cool weather there soon will be plenty of grass to handle the animals.

Heading up the herd are six bulls. Three of them are doing the major portion of the breeding. Outstanding is Blackcapmere 199. This fine animal was sired by Napoleon 6th of Rosemere and its dam was Blackcap of Rosemere 114. Both of these names rank high in the lists of Angus blue bloods.

Feedlot Steers Fat.

Due to calve this year are 88 cows. Most of them will drop their calves alone on pasture as the manager believe the animals do best with a minimum amount of human interference. Heading for pasture now are an additional 25 cows with calves at their sides ranging from 3 to 4 months old.

Among the younger animals are 34 heifers. Most of them have been bred and the others will be bred to calve a year from May. The heifers range from 15 to 18 months old. In another group are 25 heifers only 6 months old that recently have been vaccinated for Bang's disease.

Completing the large herd are 20 steer calves which will be carried on grass this summer to attain a cheap growth before they are fed out for the market. In the feedlot are 14 steers weighing around 800 pounds. These steers are well covered with fat and will be shipped soon as baby beef.

Heifers for Sale.

There are 24 heifers now for sale. They can be sold by July 1 bred to Blackcapmere. Inquiries should be sent to the manager of The Tribune Farm, Yorkville, Ill.

The farm recently sold nine heifers to a central Illinois doctor. Seven brought $175 each, and two brought $300. An additional 10 heifers were sold to a Chicago doctor for $190 each.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

PRODUCTION of Bermuda or Spanish onions from seedling stock is becoming more common in this area, but last year many gardeners were disappointed by unequal development of the bulbs. Some Bermudas reached full size, but there were many complaints about bulbs which were small after a full season of growth.

Bermuda onions develop best in a rich, pliable soil, and do not thrive in soils of heavy clay content. They also should be planted in full sunlight. Many of the complaints of last season also can be traced to poor selection of seedlings. Most Bermuda seedlings sold in this area are shipped from Texas and other southern states. This results in some deterioration before midwestern planting time. Seedlings which are dry or partially decayed should be discarded. Plants should be placed two inches deep and four inches apart in the rows. Bermudas do not store well, therefore no more should be planted than are usable before December.

NOW BOYS KNOW 'PREACHER' CAN CUSS (AND GOOD)

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, April 27 [Delayed]—(AP).—It took a war to make Preacher Hall cuss, but the boys in his outfit admit that the circumstances were extenuating.

Preacher is Pvt. 1st Class Roger C. Hall, a 6 foot 5 lad from Seneca, S. C., whose father is a Baptist preacher and who was studying to follow in his footsteps when the war intervened.

"Preacher is A-1," said Pvt. 1st Class Emil Nobile, a big blond rifleman who hails from 1426 S. 49th av., Cicero, Ill. "He don't go in for cussin', but we think he's the greatest guy in the outfit.

"Preacher's come all thru this war and he still don't smoke or drink. He says the only time he ever tasted liquor was when he was a little boy and he asked his daddy why so many people liked whiskey and why they acted so crazy after they got it.

"His daddy said: 'Here, Roger, I'll show you,' and he poured out a spoonful of something and gave it to him. Preacher said it burnt his tongue so bad he spit it out."

Likes Church Best.

"That's Preacher, all right," put in Pvt. 1st Class Ambrose Huffman of Brockway, Ore. "One night a bunch of us were sitting around talking about dances and girls and what a fine time we were going to have when we got home and Preacher said that wasn't his idea of a good time.

"He said his idea of a good time was to go to church in the morning, go home for lunch, then if there were people getting baptized anywhere go and see that, then go home for supper; after supper go home and talk with the folks."

Pvt. Dominic Incaudo, 1324 N. Harding st., Chicago, said, "He don't smoke, chew, or drink, but we love the big guy."

Consequently, when Preacher cut loose with his first—and probably his last—cuss word the news ran thru the regiment.

It Happened This Way.

It happened, Preacher's comrades say, while he was lying on a stretcher after an unexpected encounter with 18 Germans. Second Lt. Jack Lyle of Orlando, Fla., and four men had jumped the Germans in a big two story house in No Man's land. When they crept up to it they expected to find only three or four Nazis, but when 18 jumped out they had to shoot and run.

Lyle, Nobile, and Incaudo each knocked over a German before getting away but Preacher, who had expended his ammunition and was lying in a gully, stopped a piece of flying metal.

"When we counted noses back at the command post and found Preacher missing, Lt. Lyle came to us, said he was going out to find Preacher and asked if we wanted to go with him," said Nobile. "He said we didn't have to go, but we said we would. We picked up Doc Riley [Corp. Richard Riley, first aid man of New Britain, Conn.] and started back."

Nazis Are "Blankety-Blanks."

He said Lyle took them straight to where Preacher lay. As they approached, Preacher held a warning finger to his lips, indicating that snipers were near.

The men worked cautiously and got Preacher on a stretcher and started back. Presently Preacher asked to be put down because, he said, the men who were carrying him looked tired. He said he wanted to lie on the ground, but the men cheered him on by telling him there were letters from home waiting at the command post. That perked him up.

As the little procession moved down a trail they saw the body of a German lying to one side. Lyle started to move slowly toward the German and suddenly Preacher let out a shout:

"Look out, lieutenant, those blankety-blanks are tricky!"

Nobile said he almost fainted, and so did every one else in the party, because, as he pointed out, "it just goes to show that anything's possible when a South Carolina preacher goes to work."

INSTALMENT XLVIII.

BELL OF REQUIEM.

This man whom Arthur Hopkins called "The Dazzling Sojourner" prepared to leave Tower road late in the afternoon of May 19, 1942, to go to the rehearsal of his weekly radio program. He spent some time on the telephone with a friendly linguist. This interpreter obligingly spelled out for Jack the German equivalent of seven English words submitted by the actor.

Barrymore wrote this translation in pencil on a scrap of white paper. Next, he penciled on a pink memorandum slip in English, "I have a rendezvous with death." He then drew a line from left to right on the paper, and beneath it added a notation, "Recite this on radio."

He placed these two notes—the last ones he ever was to write—in his night-table drawer.

Barrymore's secretary-attendant, Ehrling Moss, now reminded the actor that it was time for him to go down the hill to the broadcasting station.

Barrymore had had a bad head cold since March. He was coughing when he arrived at the studio for the rehearsal, but said that he was "fit." He had not been drinking for the last two or three days.

After the rehearsal of his lines, Jack left the broadcasting chamber to go to his dressing room. He became lost.

He wasn't able to locate his own dressing room. He entered the first door that yielded to his hand. It so happened that the place in which he now found himself had been assigned to John Carradine.

Carradine was amazed upon entering his room to find some one lying on the couch, newspapers spread over him or scattered about on the floor. Carradine was still further astonished to see Jack himself rising from among the journalistic litter, gray with illness. Barrymore coughed. He had difficulty in breathing. Carradine was too confused for the moment to do other than mutter something about having "opened in the play last night," to which Jack said, "Of course; and I take it that you received splendid notices."

He broke off, dreadfully weak, and gasping. Dr. Kersten now arrived at the studio in response to Ehrling's call. Jack was half carried to his car. He was driven to Hollywood hospital. There it was learned that he had bronchial pneumonia in the right lower lung. He lost consciousness.

The primary cause of Jack's collapse was cirrhosis of the liver. There were secondary conditions, such as the failure of kidney function, chronic gastritis, ulceration of the esophagus which hemorrhaged, hardening of the arteries, and chronic eczema. The pneumonia was the terminal event of the man's long standing illness.

Because of a breakdown of the kidneys and a failing circulation, his body became water logged. Fluid collected in his chest and abdomen and embarrassed the heart. Somehow that great heart beat on against all these odds.

I entered Jack's room to find him breathing like the sound of a cloth being slowly torn. His mouth was half open; his eyelids were half open, the eyeballs turned upward, with only the congested whites to be seen. I came in as quietly as possible. I thought him unconscious. Still, he said hoarsely, "Yes, Gene." Then he resumed the breathing.

One of his old friends, a priest, the Rev. John O'Donnell,

G. O. P. TO SHUN WORLD STATE, BRITISH TOLD

Pledged to Strong U. S., Says Vandenberg.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., April 28.—Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] put the British on notice tonight that the United States will not become part of a world state if a Republican administration is elected next November.

Sen. Vandenberg, a Republican leader and major figure in the senate foreign relations committee, made it plain that the Republicans will insist upon "a strong and independent United States" as assential in the post-war world.

Much of American coöperation in world affairs, he warned, will depend upon the validity of the British and American pledge to avoid aggrandizement and to respect the rights of all people to choose their own form of government.

Answers London Query.

Sen. Vandenberg outlined the Republican aims in reply to questions from the London Daily Mirror sent to Vandenberg thru its American correspondent in New York. Vandenberg telegraphed his reply to the correspondent for transmission by cable to London.

The questions:

"Is there any reason to believe that under a Republican administration and the pressure of domestic problems America would tend to withdraw from the field of international collaboration?

"Would Anglo-American relations undergo any material change under a Republican administration?

"What would be the attitude of a Republican administration to a strong and united British commonwealth of nations after the war?"

Uneasiness in Britain.

The Mirror said the questions are "causing uneasiness" in Britain. Political leaders here said they gave further indication of British meddling in the forthcoming American election, in which the British have made numerous attempts to help the fourth term.

Explaining in a message to the Mirror that he was giving his personal opinion and not speaking for his party, Vandenberg said:

"The next Republican national administration, first of all, will be dedicated to swift and total victory over both Germany and Japan. It will put new stimulus into this irresistible objective at home and abroad."

Live Up to Mackinac Pact.

The Republicans, Vandenberg informed the British publication, will live up to their foreign policy declaration made last summer at Mackinac Island, Mich., for responsible participation by the United States in an organization of sovereign nations to prevent military aggression and establish organized justice in a free world. Speaking of the expected Republican administration he went on:

"It will not join a world state. It will vigilantly protect essential and legitimate American self-interest precisely as Mr. Churchill repeatedly asserts his vigorous purpose to protect British self-interest."

Interested in Justice.

While recognizing that self-interest includes international coöperation with other nations, Vandenberg emphasized that British pledges will be evaluated in the light of their performance, saying:

"Much depends upon the validity of our mutual pledges to avoid 'aggrandizement' and 'respect the rights of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live.'"

Vandenberg told the British that America will be more interested in justice than in force after the war but he said that the necessity for coöperative force will be recognized.

"I should say," he commented, "that a 'strong and united British commonwealth' is essential to this prospectus. I should also say that a strong and independent United States is equally essential.

"I should further say that permanent friendship and fair play between the two are indispensable."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mabel S. Munson, 1005 Clement st., Joliet, Ill.]

THE QUESTION.

What interesting or amusing experience have you had in an elevator? [Asked of elevator operators.]

WHERE ASKED.

Bankers building, 105 W. Adams.

THE ANSWERS.

William Gustilov, assistant starter, 3757 Eddy st.—I'll never forget the panic in this building during 1929 when the stock market crashed. There were several big brokers on the third floor and people were screaming, crying, and mobbing around in droves. The halls and lobbys were jammed with people and there was such a wear and tear on the elevator operators we had to change shifts every hour to keep from collapsing.

Clyde S. Chase, 6957 Union av.—My experience was rather embarrassing and I've often felt rather foolish about it. An elderly lady rushed up and said she left her purse containing $100 in my car. I assured her I hadn't seen it and wondered if she hadn't left it elsewhere. When she glanced around the car she discovered I was standing on it.

Tom Karney, 14 W. Chestnut st.—In an apartment building where I once worked one of my passengers was a dog. It lived on the eighth floor and would get on and off by itself. Sometimes I tried to get it confused. I'd run up to the 10th floor and open the door, then back down to the seventh and open the door again but the only floor the dog would get off on was the eighth.

Jacob Schulman, 937 N. Oakley blvd.—One day when I went to work I was ushered into my elevator with a machine gun covering me. I had four passengers—two of them in chains. Reporters and photographers were milling all around and I didn't know what was going on until I came back downstairs and learned the FBI had just taken Touhy and Banghart.

Mike Needham, 4723 Kelso av.—So many people, when they're waiting for an elevator, relax their minds completely and just wait. My elevator indicated down and when I opened the door a man asked "Are you going down?" I said, "No, sir, this car only goes sideways." He said, without thinking, "O, excuse me. I didn't know that. I'll take the next car."

BROOKS ASSERTS U. S. FIGHTS TO EXPAND BRITAIN

South Bend, Ind., April 28. [Special].—Speaking to a Republican mass meeting sponsored by party organizations of the 3d Indiana congressional district, Sen. Brooks, [R., Ill.] tonight asserted that American soldiers are fighting to help expand the British empire and make Russia the "colossus of Europe."

In this day when the American people are facing their most grueling task, the senator said, they are hungry for a revival and a rededication of the United States to the fundamentals of a free America with its time-tried institutions and traditions. These things, he said, were the basis for our present protection and our ultimate security in a war-mad world.

5 Million Overseas Soon.

He said it would not be long until 5 million Americans would engage overseas in the "most deadly conflict in the history of mankind." All America, he said, must be united in a supreme effort to support them as they fight in the "cause of continued freedom."

"The American people know their boys are dying not only to give the British empire a new lease on life but another opportunity to expand its imperialism," Sen. Brooks said. "They know we are depleting our precious national resources, both human and material, not only to help Russia survive but to help Russia to become the colossus of Europe if not the world's most expansive and formidable power.

"They know we have spent billions to subsidize Latin America and aid China and India. They know that, besides the precious contribution of human life and suffering, we are incurring a financial debt that will be paid for in American sweat and sacrifice all the days of our life.

"Keep America American."

"They want to know now that the leaders and representatives they choose are those who will keep America American, improve American security and follow a clear cut course that will inspire confidence not only in military victory, but a future American destiny beyond that day."

Sen. Brooks said we in America were fortunate we can vote for candidates dedicated to our future prosperity and future ability to contribute to humanity everywhere.

The people, he said, are tired of campaign oratory and fireside chats. He forecast they would choose leaders who want to win the war and bring American soldiers home as soon as possible. That program, he added, would guarantee economic security under private enterprise.

TEXAS GENERAL DECORATED.

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, April 28 (AP).—The British distinguished service order has been conferred on Brig. Gen. William Olds, 42, of Uvalde, Tex., whose troop carrier command planes have been hauling supplies to allied troops on all Burma fronts. Olds has been landing supplies for the air borne forces hacking at Jap communications deep in Burma.

Tokio Forms Guard Corps to Cope with Bombing

New York, April 28 (AP).—The Tokio government has organized home guard corps in 13 key centers of Japan in preparation for allied air raids, it was announced in Japanese domestic broadcasts heard today by United States government monitors. The broadcasts said the corps would be assigned to guard and alarm duties during emergencies and would be subject to periodical inspections by Japanese officials.

Friend Puts Up $100 Bond to Release Bugs Moran

George [Bugs] Moran, once leader of a north side gang of bootleggers, was booked on a charge of disorderly conduct yesterday and will be arraigned in South State Street court Monday. Moran was picked up Thursday at Grand av. and State st. He was penniless and appeared to have fallen on poor times since his release from prison. An unidentified friend supplied the necessary $100 cash bail for his release.

GOV. DEWEY'S SPEECH.

Gov. Dewey had the opportunity of a lifetime on Thursday evening when he rose to address the convention of newspaper publishers in New York. He could have told his audience that the presentation of his views on foreign affairs would have to wait for another occasion. He would keep his manuscript in his pocket and say what needed to be said at that hour and in that place about the use of the United States army to eject citizens from their property.

That would have been electrifying. Instead, Mr. Dewey read a speech that the English press has hailed as the picking up by Mr. Dewey of the mantle that Mr. Willkie dropped when he fled. There is a good deal in the speech to justify this interpretation. Like Mr. Willkie, Mr. Dewey seems to believe that the Roosevelt administration's foreign policy, as lately outlined by Mr. Hull, is generally satisfactory. Mr. Dewey finds some fault with the way the policy is being carried out now and he is disturbed about the future. He says if the job of keeping the peace is left to men wearied by the long war they will not face potentially dangerous situations until it is too late to avert another conflict. He thinks that weariness of this sort was largely responsible for the present war.

That was pretty fair as special pleading for swapping, not horses, but riders, in midstream, but special pleading wasn't what the American people wanted to hear. Neither did they want to be told, as Mr. Dewey told them again and again, that the United States, Russia, Britain, and China will be the great powers after the war, upon whose close coöperation the peace of the world will depend. China will be lucky if her government is able after the war to hold the country together and as an agency for keeping the peace outside her borders China will long be negligible. As to the others, it is true that they will be militarily dominant, but to stress that is to stress the obvious; and to say that they must coöperate for world peace is to evade the difficult question of what the terms of coöperation shall be.

What the American people are eager to hear is a ringing declaration that Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy must be abandoned because it is a subservient one. He has seen fit to use American men and American wealth for the advancement of Russia and Britain. He has pretended that this policy is in our interest because it promotes peace, but that is untrue. Neither imperial Russia nor its bolshevik successor has been unaggressive; the British empire has been a continuing source of conflict and will become increasingly so because this war has demonstrated that the empire is too big for the British to defend. Nobody can or will object to relations of friendliness or even intimacy with our stronger neighbors, but everybody can and should object to forms of so-called coöperation that are profitable to our associates and expensive to us.

We do not venture to prophesy what effect Mr. Dewey's speech will have upon his political fortunes beyond the statement that it has certainly not increased his popularity. Likewise, if he gets the nomination, that speech will not help win a Republican victory.

DEAD-MAN CONTROLS.

A crowded street car rolled up to an automatic switch a few days ago and the motorman manipulated his controls to give him a straight right-of-way ahead. Something failed. The car took the curve. The motorman was thrown away from his controls and was unable to stop the car, according to the story the conductor told police. It rolled on a few feet and then overturned, injuring 60 passengers. Nobody was killed, and apparently none of the passengers was seriously hurt, but only good fortune prevented a catastrophe.

THE TRIBUNE has urged for a long time that all public vehicles, especially electric cars, be equipped with dead-man controls. The accident is another argument for that simple safety feature. Not so long ago another street car crashed into one on the track ahead of it in an accident that could have been prevented by dead-man controls.

The dead-man device is a switch which shuts off the current, and in some cases applies the brakes, when the operator of the car moves away from his station or lifts his hands or feet from the controls. It should require no great amount of critical materials to equip Chicago street cars with the device, and priorities should be granted for the protection of traveling war workers if for no other reason.

THE ROOSEVELT TOUCH.

"Dear Joe: I knew I had in me somewhere a definite feeling about the President if I could only find the words to define it. Here they are, to a hair—from Leonard Jerome: 'For 20 years I have loved Roosevelt the man and hated Roosevelt the statesman and politician.'

"It's mighty good. Every time, in 25 years, that I have met Roosevelt the man a wave of welcome has streaked thru me with the handgrip; but whenever [as a rule] I meet Roosevelt the statesman and politician I find him destitute of morals and not respect-worthy. It is plain that where his political self and his party self are concerned he has nothing resembling a conscience; that under those inspirations he is naively indifferent to the restraints of duty and even unaware of them; ready to kick the Constitution into the back yard whenever it gets in the way; and whenever he smells a vote, not only willing but eager to buy it, give extravagant rates for it and pay the bill—not out of his own pocket or the party's, but out of the nation's, by cold pillage. . . .

"Do not throw these enlightenments aside, but study them, let them raise you to higher planes and make you better. You taught me in my callow days, let me pay back the debt now in my old age out of a thesaurus with wisdom smelted from the golden ores of experience.

"Ever yours for sweetness and light.

"MARK."

The words are those of Mark Twain, written to the Rev. J. H. Twitchell on Feb. 16, 1905. They can be found on page 766, vol. 2, of his letters, published by Harper & Brothers.

THE BAYONET AND THE LAW.

Members of the house rules committee acted with understandable promptness when they sent to consideration on the floor of the house Rep. Dewey's resolution for an investigation of the President's seizure of the Montgomery Ward plant. His colleagues' anger overrode the efforts of the senile political racketeer, Half-a-Congressman Sabath, to stifle the resolution.

The concern of congress, expressed in debate in both houses that did not wait for the action of the rules committee, is explainable if only the security of the members themselves is considered. If Roosevelt is allowed to get away with his coup d'etat in Chicago he will rapidly expand military rule all over the country. The first thing congress knows, its members will be locked up without trial, as a member of the British parliament has been locked up since the beginning of the war.

The Ward case has gone beyond the point where a labor dispute is in issue or is even germane to the issue. The issue is whether the President, by pure display of force, without recourse to the courts, can impose his personal fiat as if it were law.

When Mr. Avery of Montgomery Ward refused to obey the order of the war labor board because he contended it was illegal he was represented as one man defying the President and the people of a nation at war. Whatever validity there was to that accusation disappeared when Mr. Roosevelt sent in the troops. He then became the one man defying the people of the nation and their courts. The action was lawless and its character is not altered by the subsequent appeal of the administration to the federal court.

If Mr. Roosevelt can, without a semblance of a court order, seize the Montgomery Ward plant today, he can, with equal impunity, seize any other citizen's business tomorrow or, for that matter, turn him out of his home at the point of a bayonet. He can, in November, use the army to prevent the holding of the election.

The bayonet and the law book cannot rule the nation with concurrent power. Once the bayonet is used under the color of enforcing a law, but without recourse to the courts whose constitutional power it is to interpret the laws, the law book is thrown into the discard. Next time they will not need a law. The bayonet alone will suffice.

That is the danger that a congressional inquiry may help to avert.

THE INDISPENSABLE SLACKER.

His local draft board at Champaign, Ill., has been trying unsuccessfully for some weeks to induct Homer Matt Adams, a lame duck Democratic politician, into the army. Homer Matt is in England, closer to the fighting but farther from a uniform than he would be in Champaign. He got over there as an employe of the office of war information, and altho he had no experience in either newspaper or radio work was represented as an essential employe in the management of radio stations and army publications.

Now he has switched to the army's board of psychological warfare and Brig. Gen. Robert McClure says that he is an indispensable employe of the board.

We all know that there are many thousands of indispensable slackers and draft dodgers in Washington. The situation in Harold Ickes' department became so noisome that congress the other day was forced to include in the interior department appropriation bill a special section declaring most of them to be dispensable. This, however, is the first time the country has heard of indispensable slackers attached to the army in England. It is disgraceful.

STATE PARK ENCROACHMENT.

[Indianapolis News.]

A proposal that Indiana donate 300 acres of the Dunes State park as a site for a veterans' hospital, if the federal government cares to accept it, should arouse the opposition of all persons who believe in conservation and who wish to preserve the integrity of the state park system.

If a veterans' hospital should be established along the Indiana shore line of Lake Michigan there is plenty of available land that may be purchased for that purpose. Any loyal Hoosier, desiring the most suitable environment for service men who will be hospitalized as a result of their experiences in war, would be willing to help finance such an institution. But if one of the state's park sites is whittled away for such a laudable purpose, other schemes of a similar nature are almost certain to follow.

There is plenty of room in Indiana for the state park system and for any number of benevolent institutions. The state will welcome any opportunity to help the men who have given so much to their country. All this can be done, however, without using areas that have been set aside in perpetuity to be maintained as nature made them.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. According to an old saying, the quickest way to a man's heart is via his Emotions Brain Stomach Eye.
2. The term "flatfoot" is a slang word to indicate which one of these?
   Infantryman, Policeman, Physician, Grocer.
3. Which one of these flowers is practically odorless?
   Poppy Rose Lily Sweetpea.
4. Which one of the following liquids will float in water?
   Alcohol Molasses Gasoline Milk.
5. Which one of these farm products is considered the oldest in its use by the human race?
   Clover Soybeans Wheat Corn.
6. In this problem you are to distinguish between those cities that are situated on the west bank of the Mississippi river and those that lie on the east bank. You are entitled to one point for each correct judgment. Don't look at a map, but rely solely on your memory.

	On west bank.	On east bank.
St. Louis	——	——
St. Paul	——	——
Memphis	——	——
Rock Island	——	——
Minneapolis	——	——

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

MR. PEPYS LOOKS FORWARD.

29th April—Heard a lecture on plastics ready for use, in many ways, as soon as the war ends, and learned they are indestructible. So I look forward to a post-war world feverishly at work in producing unbreakable objects, which will gradually accumulate, defying rot and rust, until there will be no room for human beings on this planet. The earth will become covered with a crust of discarded gadgets, over which there will creep, here and there, a few surviving termites, vainly breaking their teeth on hunks of plastic. This will be a cheerful thought for my friend, Delos Avery, alias the Commodore, who takes a pessimistic view of mankind, but he will probably complain about the slowness of the ultimate doom.

Dined out with a group of serious thinkers and was reproached by several because I had a glass in my hand before dinner, and yet I had spoken in print against cocktails. Told them my drink was a beneficial restorative used by the pioneers, called a "cold toddy," and that it contained no bitters and therefore was not a cocktail. Then I had to repeat my lecture about the toxic nature of aromatized spirits, but my reproachers did not listen because they were already full of cocktails.

Went bird gazing between rainstorms and found my feathered friends disgusted because the trees have no leaves to conceal the nests they are building. Went to my first baseball game of the year on a damp afternoon, and found the Cubs enjoying their frustration complex as usual.

Had remarkable proof that my dog understands every word I say. She likes to carry the mail, and had been given a letter to bring upstairs. The letter disappeared. I searched everywhere, but could not find where she had dropped it. Half an hour later I said to her, "What did you do with my letter?" She immediately ran away; I followed, and she ran under a bed, growling: "Here it is; come and get it, if you dare."

Now to begin another week of waiting for the invasion, thus far a mystery except at Montgomery Ward's.

TO A SOLDIER FRIEND.

Yes, Spring is as charming as ever, my lad,
In the land that you left too soon,
And the robin's song is as gay and glad
As you heard it that afternoon.

The maples still set the streets aglow
As of yore, and the daffodils,
As they did before, in beauty blow,
While a sparkling fragrance spills

Across the city from some unseen
Anointing of fairyland—
A perfume hinting of heaven's clean
Sky, and new earth at hand.

So be of good cheer, tho you've none of these
To savor or see where you fight.
Whatever the season, remember, please,
You're part of it, day and night!

Who Wants a Book Title?

Murph and I were over at a drink parlor trying to shake up, among other things, the title for a book I thought needed writing. Murph is a dram. & lit. [in more ways than one] critic for a local sheet, The Morning After.

Like O. Henry, I've always entertained the belief that what you put on the cover is as important as what you put on the inside—refreshments, of course, excepted. Murph, with 11 stingers under his vest, was trying to help out to the best of his liquid ability. As I recall, just before he tired of the contest and retired beneath the table for a brief nap, we'd decided upon "The Vibrations and Aberrations of a Glamoreuse Stripteuse Danseuse."

In the cold, gray yawning [what a head!] I had to admit that the title was a natural—far better than Ed Allyn Smythe's "Highboy in a Furniture Factotum." But I'm not going to write the book. With a title like that, I'd get more kick out of just reading it. Hig.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

You look demure, fair lady, but your eyes
Say otherwise. O, you are not so coy
As you pretend, my angel! Worldly wise,
With broken hearts it pleases you to toy,
But mine, my dear, you never will decoy!
I am immune. And, seeing thru your guise,
I'll have some fun with you. I shall enjoy
To play the game, and cut you down to size.

"It's dangerous, old boy, to play with fire;
Recall the moth which danced around the flame?
It singed its wings and perished on the pyre."
I do not mind the danger; I am game.
If I get singed, it will not make me sore;
In fact, I even might come back for more.

A COMFORTABLE AND ALERT OLD AGE.

THE span of life can be likened to a vista which embraces a moderate upward slope, leading to a slightly undulating plateau from which the path descends on an easy grade. The journey is divided into three parts. During childhood and youth we are gaining in physical powers. From early adulthood to well past middle age, we are holding our own, in full possession of our faculties. There may be minor ups and downs—an illness here and there—but, on the whole, this interlude is one of construction, of building.

Then gradually joints will begin to stiffen, muscles become less supple, while the blood channels grow less elastic. There are pitfalls all along the way, but much will depend on how scrupulously the rules of good hygiene are observed. Furthermore, the downhill interval will be smooth and uneventful, if changes in the organic structures have not been severe.

The human body is not everlasting. After a time, cells will atrophy [waste away]. The tissues will lose their spring and become firmer. The muscles will respond less readily largely because they are drier. The whole picture is one of reduced speed. The race horse that leads the field as a 3 year old may be utilized as a saddle animal for a decade or more thereafter.

But there are many compensations. The equipment with which we are endowed will last longer and be more efficient if we will exercise reasonable precautions. We can be on the lookout for squeaks and rattles which will need repair. The keystone of longevity, with happiness and alertness, is contingent upon the integrity of the digestive system. We must realize that the output of gastric juice decreases slightly with every year after the age of 20. This explains why hydrochloric acid may be wholly absent from this fluid in a substantial number of men and women after the fifth decade.

The liver is about the most faithful of all our vital organs. Usually it will endure well beyond the century mark, provided it has not been abused. Instead of overloading the "bread basket," therefore, and the long coil of absorbing intestine, we must make certain that our rations are nonirritating and that they will dissolve and become a part of our usable nutriment.

While the alimentary canal is not primarily responsible for the lowering of the curtain of life, nevertheless, the type of nutriment and how we transform it will determine the functioning of the circulatory system. The wrong foods, or too little of this or that, can speed up deterioration. Death from blood vessel disorders leads the field and this includes the heart and the kidneys. Degeneration of the arteries, more often than not, is a metabolic disorder. We can eat our way into arteriosclerosis.

The filtering power of the kidneys depends upon the miles and miles of capillaries with which they are filled. These tiny arteries can become obliterated or plugged by injury or disease. The causative toxins may be taken into the blood from the intestinal tract.

Unless hardening of the vessels of the brain is more pronounced than in other areas, mentality will be preserved. In fact, judgment may become more acute; logic and reasoning more clear. About the only failure that will be observed is memory altho the events of youth may be recalled vividly.

We anticipate for every oldster comfort and satisfaction because he will learn to measure the response of which his body is capable. He will not demand more than it can deliver—otherwise disaster will come. Thus short but more frequent rest periods will be helpful because reservoirs of endurance are not filled to the brim.

CATCHING COLD.

D. B. writes: I never catch cold unless some one with the germ has peppered me. Yet you say that the "bugs" are always in the airways. How come?

REPLY.

Colds are contagious. The causative virus may be contracted from one who is ill. But we are all potential victims. If resistance drops to a low level, organisms—which are always present in the airways—may start a conflagration. Inflammation of the nasal passages then ensues.

OBESITY AFFECTS HEART.

T. S. writes: Every once in a while I feel as if my heart doesn't pump enough blood. Pain in the chest accompanies the symptom. I weigh 300 pounds. Do you think this might have something to do with my trouble?

REPLY.

Your excess baggage penalizes the circulation. In fairness to your cardiac structure, adopt a sensible reducing program.

EYE INFECTION.

Mrs. F. C. writes: Is conjunctivitis related to diabetes? My 21 year old diabetic son has developed this disease.

REPLY.

The condition of the eyes is probably incidental. Diabetes lowers resistance against infection.

Eight Deer and His Doings.

Over at what every one except the trustees continue to call the Field Museum of Natural History a shocking innovation is taking place. A comic strip, the life of Joe Elk, is about to be unveiled. [Maybe by now it has been.] In that great and august pile of marble, full of stately exhibits of centuries long buried, Joe Elk is a beautiful anachronism and one the museum expects to take the town by storm.

To get Joe Elk, who really was just a nice Indian boy of the shell mound period [500 A. D.] in Kentucky, installed, the museum had to go thru strange mental calisthenics of justification. The defenders of Joe Elk finally won by bringing out proof that comic strips actually existed back in old Joe's time among the Aztec Indians and, if any one really wanted to make an issue of it, in the friezes of the Egyptian tombs.

The museum has one of the Aztec comic strips, a facsimile of the life of Eight Deer, a gent with a red chin, red beard, and red eyes who was the Paul Bunyan of 1200 A. D. His life, five episodes to a page, is bound in buckram and told in pictures. He even spoke, altho what he said was left to the imagination, his words being depicted merely by a whorl or tiny balloon popping out of his mouth.

Eight Deer was the Superman, Dick Tracy, and Flash Gordon of his day thrown into one brawny figure. So popular was he that when the Spaniards hit Mexico, comic books of his life and works were found in every village. He was a fierce looking customer with his real face concealed behind a mask and ornamental pieces of jade that looked like a clothespin fastened onto the end of his nose. He carried not one spear but three, the deadliest of them having sharp teeth at its end that would macerate as they carved.

No army and no town was so mighty that Eight Deer could not overcome it. He conquered chieftains with such ferocious names as Nine Water, Eleven Death, and Ten Serpent, and finally married a lady with the gentle name of Thirteen Snake. He did so well that finally he took on a new name, Tiger Claw, which he used in front of his own. All of this you find from the pictures. First comes a claw, then eight round balls, then a deer's head. Result: Tiger Claw Eight Deer.

His conquests cover page after page. They again are indicated by picture rather than by word. A hill with a wildcat perched on it means that he conquered Wildcat hill or Ocelotepti. Another hill with fire and smoke pouring from its tip means that he conquered a volcano, presumably single handed. He captured towns on lakes, towns on the desert, and every town he saw. Nothing could stop Eight Deer. Occasionally his treatment of his captives is portrayed. It was rather neat. He would either burn, puncture, or skin them. Then he would climb into the flayed skin and parade. One poor gentleman known as Four Wind was mummified before being burned. Regarded thru the veil of years and new civilizations it seems a futile procedure, but the Aztecs seemed to enjoy it. Before all of this takes place one sees Eight Deer leading Four Wind by the hand, and Four Wind is crying. His tears are the only gentle note in the entire book.

Dr. Paul Martin, curator of anthropology at the museum, sees a moral in all of Eight Deer's doings, a moral which he compares to the ever-present moral in the Katzenjammer Kids, but this reader failed to see it. It was a steady stream of conquest, murder, pillage, with Eight Deer always plowing ahead to an ever brighter future. He never dies, and offhand no one would think a wife called Thirteen Snake was a reward for any man, but perhaps Eight Deer looked at it in a different light.

The amazing thing about Eight Deer and his kind is that the museum contains a picture of an Aztec reading one of these compendiums of wonder. Children pausing beside it with their parents shout: "He's reading a funny paper!" And their parents invariably laugh and say, "Don't be silly!"

THE REAL ISSUE.

Chicago, April 27.—One of the most interesting aspects of the Ward case is the reaction of men like Rep. Smith of Virginia, who fathered the Smith-Connally act, Victor Olander of the Illinois Federation of Labor, at the time the Smith-Connally bill was up, pointed out that business men would probably live to see the day when it would be used against them more roughly than against labor. Those who recall the interest that some business men took in pushing the Smith-Connally bill as a curb on labor cannot help but be entertained at the backward spin that this situation has produced.

While there have been a lot of things in Sewell Avery's handling of labor situations that many have felt left room for criticism, the fight he is in now should not be considered as a labor fight, altho it will be so interpreted in most quarters.

Without going into the reasons why Mr. Avery takes the stand that he does . . . and there may be some labor prejudice in it . . . still his fight is beginning to be the strongest possible fight against the encroachments of government that we have seen. He is focusing the entire attention of the nation on the anti-business and anti-personal liberty trend of the New Deal, and right at a time when it can do the most good.

The value of this fight can be dissipated greatly, however, unless the nation is brought to realize the real issue—constitutional government. If the fight is allowed to be publicized as a labor-management squabble . . . and there are plenty of folks ready to try to make it that . . . then the real issue could be lost.

One of our biggest troubles—it dates back to our school days—is that liberty and constitutional government are abstract ideas. Until the GPU comes to the door and drags us off to a concentration camp, too many of us don't realize that the Bill of Rights is more important to us than the knife and fork with which we eat or the bed we sleep in.

This Ward fight is every citizen's fight. To lose it might possibly be a long slide toward the GPU. To win it could be the last blow necessary to wreck the Roosevelt dynasty and return to sound, basic government under the Constitution.

DIOGENES USED A LANTERN.

Chicago, April 25.—I have on numerous occasions left my brief case, sample case, samples of merchandise, wearing apparel and other things on elevated trains, street cars, and in restaurants. Each time the articles have been turned in to the lost and found departments and I have recovered them.

A few days ago I left a package on a shelf in a restaurant. About two hours later I missed the package and on returning to the restaurant I found the package where I had left it. I must acknowledge that I have explicit faith in the honesty of people.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 24.—Having heard of you starting newspapers outside of Chicago, I write to ask that you consider Minneapolis. W. E. LAHR.

LAW OR FIAT?

Rice Lake, Wis., April 26.—In today's paper I notice that a certain judge in Chicago made a statement in the Ward-Roosevelt controversy that he will issue certain orders if Ward's defies the orders of our "commander in chief." Did the judge swear that he will uphold constitutional laws or did he have his tongue in his cheek and swear that he will uphold the orders of our commander in chief?

I am not siding with either Ward's or Roosevelt in this controversy, but I believe that this country is still a Republic ruled by constitutional law and that any judge handling this or any other case is expected to be governed by that law in rendering verdicts and issuing orders. We civilians as yet have no "commander in chief."

"WHERE DO WE COME OUT?"

Bronxville, N. Y., April 25.—The English have officially announced again that the British empire will remain intact after this war. The Russians have made it clear that they and they alone will fix their western boundary where they elect, and that the neighboring countries shall be friendly to them—a "cordon sanitaire" in reverse.

Where do we come out? This question requires urgent thought and discussion by American fathers and mothers of sons at war, for our casualties have already mounted to 200,000 and our debt to 200 billion dollars while we have not yet had a major engagement with either our enemy to the east or to the west.

J. C. MONTGOMERY.

REDUCING THE CABARET TAX.

Joliet, Ill., April 20.—I was under the impression that the New Dealers had exhausted all the fool ideas in the calendar. Now along comes Rep. Knutson, a Republican, asking that the tax on cabarets be reduced from 30 to 10 per cent, claiming the increased tax is causing thousands of entertainers to lose their jobs.

The manufacturing plants thruout the country which are producing war materials and crying for workers surely would absorb these people and give them work that is worth while. Some one should inform the representative from Minnesota that we are at war.

PLACE 8 CANNED VEGETABLES ON POINT FREE LIST

Values Are Increased for Catsup, Chili Sauce.

Eight canned vegetables will be sold point free for at least five weeks, starting tomorrow, and point values on soups and several kinds of jams, preserves, and jellies will be reduced, under May point charts released by the office of price administration yesterday.

Certain other preserves, catsup and chili sauce, some tomato juice, and cranberry products will have higher point values.

The vegetables were put on the free list to help stores get rid of the last of last year's pack, the OPA said, and may be put back on rationing in a month or two to keep the 1944 crop available until next year. However, if home canning continues at last year's record rate of nearly five billion quarts put up by housewives, rationing of canned vegetables and most fruits may be abandoned by fall, OPA officials said.

These Products Taken Off List.

The eight vegetables taken from the list are tomatoes, corn, asparagus, beets, leafy greens, spinach, black-eye peas, and grabanzo beans. Spaghetti sauce in 6 ounce cans will be reduced to 2 points from 5; combined with cheese in 8 ounce containers, it will be cut to 3 points from 6. No. 1 cans of clam or other sea food soups will be cut to 2 points from 4.

The same size can of tomato and other concentrated soups will be cut 1 point to 3. Apple, plum, grape, and mint jellies, and apple, apricot, grape, and peach butter will go down to 2 points a pound from 4.

Some Values Increased.

Among processed foods that will go higher in point value are catsup and chili sauce, up 7 points to 30 for a 14 ounce container; raspberry and strawberry jam and preserves, up 8 points to 16 per pound; cranberries and cranberry sauce, 7 points higher at 15 for a No. 2 can; tomato juice, 18 points for a 46 ounce can, and 36 points for a 6 pound container, up 2 and 6 points, respectively, and canned or bottled dry beans, except soys, black-eye, and barbanzos, which will go up 3 points to 13 for a No. 2 can.

The value of home processed fruits, juices, vegetables, spreads, and special products will be increased 50 per cent.

The OPA yesterday validated blue stamps L-8, M-8, N-8, and Q-8 in book 4 for 10 points each in processed foods, starting Monday and good indefinitely.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

S. D. K. writes: "I am 32 years of age and have been employed by our fire department for 11 years. The captain filed a request with my local board for deferment, but the local board ignored the request and is holding me in 1-A. Aren't our jobs considered essential? How about policemen?"

ANSWER: The only requests for occupational deferment a local board can consider are instances of a regular form 42 signed by the executive head of the department. This is equally true with municipal policemen. Deferment can be granted only "if a registrant is a 'necessary man' in a key position in a police or fire department and has had a substantial background of training or experience in his work." It is discretionary with local boards to follow "a less rigid policy of deferment in the case of policemen and firemen [age 30-37 years], provided the police or fire department in which they work has made an honest but unsuccessful effort to replace vulnerable registrants with men not liable for military service."

H. W. G. asks: "If a wife is named beneficiary on a government insurance policy and the husband is killed will the full amount of the policy be paid to the widow if she remarries? Also what happens if the couple have children?"

ANSWER: If the widow remarried she would still continue to receive the benefits and after her death the children of the insured, if any, would receive them.

O. L. C. asks: "If a soldier states in his will that his wife is to get his insurance and his mother is named in the policy as beneficiary, who gets the payments? What if the mother dies?"

ANSWER: A will exercises no control over the benefits of the national service life insurance, hence the mother would receive all payments if she is sole beneficiary and, if she dies, the benefits pass to the insured's wife and/or children.

H. R. asks: "Is there any way an improper army classification can be changed?"

ANSWER: Take it up with your first sergeant or classification officer. We have been told by army men that "it usually takes an act of congress to change a classification."

U. S. S. W. writes: "A few weeks ago our electric percolator that so loyally kept the bridge force of this destroyer on its toes thru the first two years of the war finally perked its last perk and, when it did, the morale of us aboard this oceangoing tin can perked its last perk. Do you think you could get some of your readers to rustle one up for us—a good sized one?"

ANSWER: We are sure that if any of our readers has a good sized electric percolater not in use, the sailors get it. Any reader who wants to perk up the morale of the men on this destroyer may write to hs and we will forward the latter to the sailors.

Crash Witness Rescues Nurse from Burning Car

Mrs. Leta Greslin, 45, of 11552 S. State st., a nurse, was rescued yesterday morning after her car struck a safety island abutment at 79th st. and Cottage Grove av., and then caught fire. Anthony Phillips of 10506 Edbrooke av., pulled the nurse from the burning car. Mrs. Greslin was taken to the Jackson Park hospital suffering from second degree burns.

ALIEN WORKERS TAKE THE SUN IN BERLIN STREETS

BY P. E. BRIQUET.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 28.—"On sunny Sundays, Berlin is full of Frenchmen," says a dispatch from a foreign observer there. "The fine weather prompts war prisoner workmen to leave their camps and enjoy the advancing spring. French uniforms predominate in the subway stations. The uniforms are made up of patches, but are always clean.

"French prisoners are generally tidier and more dignified than in 1940 when, after France's defeat, personal negligence was practically an affectation. The reversion to nattiness indicates a rebirth of French national pride even tho the clothing problem still is hard to solve.

Liquor Drinking Banned.

"Foreign workers always meet at the Alexanderplatz, where they converse in a gamut of tongues. The slow, peaceful Poles, the Russians, Italians, French, and Belgians seem astounded over the extraordinary adventure, painful at first, of being a foreign country," an observer writes.

"The prisoners are forbidden to drink liquor, and must content themselves to prohibition thruout the war. Their appetites are insatiable and they order many 'stamm,' French for the German word, stammgericht, a cheap one course meal obtainable without food coupons.

"The meal usually is made up of a heavy vegetable soup, the quality of which varies according to the restaurant. The foreign laborers continually look for the best restaurants.

Create Own Black Market.

"Almost all foreign workmen turn to a side trade, selling assorted wares for almost unbelievable prices. This forms a sort of black market, in which almost anything can be found at a price, food, clothing, and cigarets. Tobacco, particularly, is popular, and whoever manages to receive some from home is sure to get the highest prices if he decides to sell.

"One of the most conspicuous social outgrowths of the strange situation of French workers in Germany is the leveling of class differences in a common misfortune. The results may be estimated favorably or not, according to the political creed of the observers, but it will inevitably influence, and even change, the structure of the French nation after the war."

Two More Are Nominated to Be Lieutenant Generals

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP).—President Roosevelt today nominated two more major generals to be lieutenant generals. Those whose names were sent to the senate are Lewis Hyde Brereton, commanding general of the 9th air force based in England, and Barney McKinney Giles, chief of air staff, headquarters A. A. F., Washington, D. C.

M'KELLAR VOWS THORO PROBE OF MAIL TAMPERING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Apr. 28.—Sen. McKellar (D., Tenn.) gave his assurance today that the senate post-office committee of which he is chairman, will make a thoro investigation of the tampering with the United States mails that has made private letters available to Drew Pearson, radio smear commentator.

McKellar said his committee would have authorized the inquiry today if necessary information could have been gathered in time. Formal authorization was deferred until next week. McKellar said public hearings will be held, with Director Price of the office of censorship as the first witness.

Members of the committee say information from letters written by Miss Vivien Kellems was made available to Pearson and others thru excerpts legally taken by censors. Blame for the leak has been narrowed to three government agencies, but McKellar said the office of censorship is blameless.

Miss Kellems, a Westport, Conn., manufacturer, has been writing to a German in Argentina. Senators say, however, her letters were romantic, not seditious, and that the government agencies had no right to make them public.

ASSERTS EMPLOYERS ARE EAGER TO HIRE RETURNING FIGHTERS

George T. Trundle Jr., president of the Trundle Engineering company, Cleveland, O., yesterday predicted that every employer would try to exceed all legal obligations in reemploying discharged service men and women.

Speaking before the spring conference of the Society for the Advancement of Management in the Drake hotel, Trundle said conversations with many employers have convinced him that virtually every one wants to do the best he can to see that the returned service man or woman gets a job. He reminded members, however, that it is ridiculous to suppose that all who went to war will want to return to jobs they left.

"From an over-all standpoint," he continued, "it isn't a job of replacement at all. It simply is a job of placement that has very little to do with the pre-war picture. Let us pay no attention to what these men were doing before the war. The point is—what are they best able and fitted to do now that they have come back?"

BILL PROPOSES MILLION TONS OF LANDING SHIPS

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP).—Declaring the navy's need for invasion landing ships is "constantly growing," Rep. Vinson (D., Ga.) introduced a new bill today authorizing construction of an additional $1,800,000,000 worth of such vessels.

Congress has just passed a 32 billion dollar naval appropriation bill, but Vinson, who is chairman of the naval affairs committee, said the necessity for even more landing craft had become apparent since consideration of that measure.

"We've just got to have more, as soon as we can get them built," he asserted. "We'll be losing a good many once the invasion gets underway."

His bill provides authorization for one million additional tons of shipping. It does not appropriate money for the construction, but Vinson said it would cost approximately $1,800,000,000.

FEDERAL JUDGE CLEARS BOY, 15, IN THREAT CASE

Court Assails Charge as Absurd, Monstrous.

The government prosecution of a boy, 15, on a charge of sending a threatening letter thru the mail was termed absurd and monstrous yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan who directed a verdict of not guilty in behalf of the boy, David J. Hearne Jr., 8218 Woodlawn av.

The boy, son of the assistant general passenger agent of the Illinois Central railroad, was accused of sending a letter demanding $100 from Raymond W. Steffens, 7014 Kimbark av., on the threat of kidnaping Steffens' son, 7.

Action After 13 Months.

The complaint against the boy was not filed until last January after a 13 month investigation by agents of the federal bureau of investigation. The boy persisted in his innocence.

Trial was begun Thursday before Judge Sullivan. The government evidence, introduced by Miss Mary Bailey, assistant United States attorney, consisted mainly of testimony by FBI agents who sought to show that Hearne's handwriting was similar to that in the note to Steffens.

At the conclusion yesterday of the government's case, Defense Atty. Vernon W. Foster made a motion for a directed verdict of not guilty.

Terms Prosecution "Monstrous."

"It is the opinion of this court that it would serve no useful purpose for this case to go further," Judge Sullivan ruled. "No court in the land would uphold a finding of guilty in this case on the evidence presented.

"The prosecution on behalf of the government in my opinion is monstrous and absurd." Turning to Miss Bailey, the judge continued, "And I don't mean to reflect upon you."

In addition to his ruling of not guilty, Judge Sullivan ordered the destruction of the boy's finger prints on file and said that he believed the boy and his family had been done a great injustice.

CALL HOUSE RAID TOLD BY FIVE FBI AGENTS AT TRIAL

Washington, D. C., April 28 [Special].—The government today completed its testimony in the trial of eight women charged with conspiracy to violate the Mann act. The jury was sent home until Monday by Judge Arthur Lederle. The last witnesses today were five FBI men, who said they had raided the Hopkins institute, ostensibly a massage parlor, but in reality a vice resort employing the women as "call girls."

One of the women, Suzanne Monda, said she is a German alien, 28 years old, and that her real name is Hildegarde Rosenthal. She said she had registered as an alien under the Monda name. Another of the defendants, Ronnie Stewart, testified her maiden name was Esther Greenbaum and that she supported her husband by her earnings as a prostitute.

The crowd that thronged the courtroom was disappointed that the names of a senator, a Washington publisher, and big league baseball players—all mentioned as patrons of the institute—were not revealed.

U.S. AND BRITAIN REACH ACCORD ON AIR RIGHTS

Tell London We Won't Apply 'Squeeze.'

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP).—American officials have advised the British government that the United States does not intend to use its superior resources in long range airplanes to squeeze Britain out of competition in commercial aviation after the war.

The British, in response, have recognized American claims based on huge investments in military air bases in British territories and have promised that their empire-wide network of air bases will be available to the commercial planes of all nations.

The exchange of views on these two points was made informally by Adolf Berle, assistant secretary of state, and Lord Privy Seal Beaverbrook, during Berle's aviation talks in London recently.

Friendly Settlement.

On the British part the agreement is said to reflect a broad willingness to compromise pressing problems in the interest of swift and friendly settlement which both sides desire. On the part of the United States, it indicates a basic principle in dealing with allied nations which, because of the war, have been put in an unfavorable position to compete after the war.

This principle is that the United States will not use its greatest industrial capacity in history to take advantage commercially of such nations, and will seek instead for means of fair and reasonable competition.

How far this principle has entered into the discussions which Edward R. Stettinius, undersecretary of state, is now concluding in London is not known here, but it is known that American officials are laying considerable stress on the government's intention to deal fairly in commercial matters, because they hope thereby to promote international collaboration and security.

Preliminary to Conference.

The Berle-Beaverbrook talks were preliminary to a full dress aviation conference here later in the year. Preliminary talks also have been scheduled with the Russians and are supposed to begin in a few days.

The United States has a stranglehold on long range planes and the facilities to produce them because of an agreement made early in the war that this country would in the main build bombers capable of flying to England with a consequent saving in shipping space. The British have concentrated on fighters.

To give the British an equal break after the war, it has been decided to make big planes available to them at fair cost.

With respect to bases the situation is somewhat reversed. At the direction of the army and navy the United States has spent untold millions developing air bases in the British empire for military purposes. Some will have commercial use. Many will not.

Seek Free Access.

The state department months ago hit on the theory that rather than seek possession of these bases, many of which would be useless, it would be better to seek an agreement for free access to all British bases. There was considerable concern here lest the British should flatly refuse such a proposition.

Berle obtained from Beaverbrook, however, word that the proposition was not unacceptable and would, in fact, provide an effective means of settling an extremely ticklish question which has agitated congress and provided political dynamite in this country.

These far-flung bases are separate from the eight military and naval bases built under 99 year lease by the United States on British islands in the western Atlantic.

OBITUARIES

Grant Beebe.

Word was received here yesterday of the death last Monday in Asheville, N. C., of Grant Beebe, 79, former Chicago high school principal who retired in 1933. Mr. Beebe, who joined the school system as a manual training director in 1884 at the Garfield school, was principal of Calumet High school from 1913 to 1924, and of Lane Technical High school from 1924 to 1933. He was born in Galena, Ill., and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen Newell Beebe of 102 Merrimon av., Asheville.

Charles E. Hellmayr.

Word of the death recently in Switzerland of Charles E. Hellmayr, 66, associate curator of birds at the Chicago Natural History museum, was received yesterday by Orr Goodson, acting director of the museum. Mr. Hellmayr joined the museum in 1922 and remained here until 1931 when he returned to Vienna to complete his series on "The Birds of the Americas." When the Nazis took Vienna, he was jailed, but later freed and allowed to go to Switzerland.

Mrs. William Ryan.

Services for Mrs. Mary Louise Henricks Ryan, 71, member of an old Chicago family, will be held at 2 p. m. in the chapel at 13050 Greenwood av., Blue Island. Mrs. Ryan died Thursday in Ingalls Memorial hospital, Harvey. She lived on the Country club grounds in Midlothian. She leaves her husband, William, retired president of the old Ryan Car company, and two sons.

William D. Black.

Services for William D. Black, 62, former city passenger agent for the Canadian Pacific railroad, will be held at 2 p. m. today in the chapel at 7838 Cottage Grove av. Mr. Black, who retired Feb. 1 after being with the railroad 44 years, died in his home at 722 E. 81st st. Wednesday. Surviving are his widow, Jean, and a brother, Randall.

CORONER GIVES OPEN VERDICT IN DEATH PROBE

A coroner's jury was unable to decide yesterday whether suicide or an accident caused the death of Ferdinando Cazzio, 56, of 2119 Kendall st., whose body was found April 14 in the river at Kinzie st. Cazzio's stepdaughter, Philomena Raimondi, 15, who was found unconscious and critically beaten in the family home a short time before his body was found, was not a witness. She is recovering in Walther Memorial hospital.

"My dad really liked me," Miss Raimondi said at the hospital. "I think he lost his mind."

She said she was sleeping when she was clubbed with a baseball bat and did not know who hit her. However, she said, detectives determined her stepfather was her assailant.

Inmates Flee Boys' School; Arrested in Two Hours

Glenn Martin, 17, of 5630 N. Mulligan av., and Jerome Pilachowski, 17, of 6236 Halsted st., were recaptured yesterday two hours after they escaped from the Illinois state training school for boys, near St. Charles. They were working in the power house when they escaped. Authorities found them later walking along a road near the institution. Martin was committed a year ago for robbery, and Pilachowski eight months ago for incorrigibility.

POLISH GROUPS ASSAIL PRIEST'S TRIP TO RUSSIA

'Material Motivation' Suspected.

Meets Stalin

LONDON, April 28 (AP).—The Moscow radio reported tonight that Premier Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov had met with Stanislaus Orlemanski of Springfield, Mass., who is studying the situation of Poles and the Polish army in Russia.

Springfield, Mass., April 23 (AP).—Spokesmen of Polish-American groups in America today criticized the reported trip to Russia of the Rev. Stanislaus Orlemanski, pastor of Our Lady of the Holy Rosary Catholic church.

The Rev. Stanislaus Orlemanski.

The Rev. Orlemanski is said to be on the way to Russia to become the first Catholic priest to cross the soviet borders since 1934.

'Material Motive' Suspected.

Joseph D. Wlodarczyk, national president of the Polish American labor group, who came to Springfield from his home in Detroit, Mich., declared the local priest "stood suspected of material motivation," and a spokesman for the Committee for the Defense of the Rights of Poland termed him a "man of divided interests and inconsistent in his views."

A spokesman of the chancellery of the Springfield Roman Catholic diocese added that "diocesan officials had no knowledge of the purpose motivating the pastor's trip to Russia" and that the journey was being made on his own initiative and "without permission."

Passport Issued.

A New York newspaper in a Washington dispatch Wednesday said Russia had invited the Rev. Orlemanski as a visitor, "that his passport was issued, and that he departed by air on or about April 21."

Members of Our Lady of the Holy Rosary church parish said their pastor recently announced he was going on a "very dangerous trip" but that he did not name his destination.

ABANDON PLANS FOR CITY DUMP IN ROGERS PARK

Mayor Kelly acceded yesterday to the request of a civic delegation from the north side to give up plans for purchasing an abandoned clay pit for a city garbage dump. The property is bounded by Touhy, Pratt, Kedzie, and Sacramento avs., and is owned by Illinois Brick company, which proposed selling it to the city for $400,000. A committee representing neighborhood organizations, and accompanied by Ald. Quinn [50th], told the mayor the dump would lower property values. He said he thought the project would have saved the city money, but agreed to drop it.

WHEN OTHER LAXATIVES FAIL

TRY THIS FAMOUS WATER

Smooth, Gentle Relief Usually in One Hour!

When acute constipation leaves you on edge, try the famous PLUTO WATER treatment. Although PLUTO works swiftly, it works by gentle osmosis, creating fluid bulk in the colon, flushing digestive waste, usually within an hour. Pluto passes through the stomach without disturbing its function, is not absorbed, and acts in the colon where physicians want a laxative to act. Try Pluto now! Caution—use only as directed on label. Get comforting relief from acute constipation in one hour or money back. In 25 and 50c economy sizes, also 10c size.

36% OF COUNTY'S REGISTERED VOTE CAST IN PRIMARY

The lowest Cook county vote in a Presidential primary since 1932—preceding the last change in national administration—was shown for April 11 by the canvass proclaimed yesterday by County Clerk Flynn.

Only 36 per cent of the registered voters went to the polls. They cast 496,933 Democratic ballots and 303,938 Republican ballots for a total of 800,871. Twelve years ago the Cook county vote was 968,886.

The Democratic vote was less than 2 to 1 ahead of the Republican. In recent years the ratio has been about 3 to 1.

Of Chicago's 721,866 votes the Democrats cast 65.8 per cent. However, the G. O. P. garnered 72.5 per cent of the suburban area's 79,005 votes.

Gen. MacArthur got 217,452 votes against 14,115 for a nominal contender in the Republican Presidential preference test. Gov. Dewey of New York was the write-in choice of 926 voters, who according to the canvass all reside in the country towns section of the county.

With no name printed on Democratic ballots for President, President Roosevelt received 21,566 by the write-in route.

EDITH M'CORMICK ESTATE REPORTS $355,788 INCOME

An inventory report on the estate of Edith Rockefeller McCormick for the period of Aug. 23, 1940, to April 17, 1944, was filed in Probate court yesterday and showed receipts of $355,788 and disbursements of $199,899.

Receipts included $100,000 from the sale of Mrs. McCormick's rare collections of Emperor and Vase carpets, $70,000 from the McCormick trust fund, a $43,849 refund on a federal estate tax payment, and $18,017 from the sale of 58 acres of the Villa Turicum estate to the village of Lake Forest.

The inventory reported $201,343 cash on hand, and an additional $130,000 to be realized from the sale of interests in a building at 3300 Lake Shore dr. Mrs. McCormick died Aug. 25, 1932.

CRANE EMPLOYES GIVE RED CROSS $101,020 BOOST

The Red Cross war fund received a gift of $101,020 from the Crane company and its employes, Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman of the campaign reported yesterday. Kennelly said the drive is approximately a million dollars short of its 12 million dollar goal.

Group chairmen in the business division were urged by Kennelly to bring in all possible outstanding contributions by tonight. Twenty-four out of 64 groups reported more than 100 per cent on their assigned quotas. The alcoholic beverage group heads the field with 211 per cent, United States naval establishments are second with 147 per cent, and United States army departments third with 127 per cent.

Kennelly reported the women's special gifts division under Mrs. William McCormick Blair and Mrs. Louis Wartermulder has turned in 104 per cent of its quota, the county communities division under H. T. East and George Mitten, 90 per cent, and the city communities division, under Otto C. Doering, 77 per cent.

LEVY U. S. TAX ON $12,000 SLAIN DICE GIRL MADE

Estelle Carey, dice girl who was murdered by arson in her apartment at 512 Addison st. on Feb. 2, 1943, had an income of $12,000 from 1938 to 1942 from her "26" game concession in the Colony club, it was disclosed in the estate inventory report approved yesterday by George B. Rooney, assistant to the Probate judge. The government collected back income taxes and penalties from the estate. Miss Carey's mother, Lillian, of 3234 Armitage av., and a brother, Raymond Smith of Detroit, will share in a net estate balance of $1,424.

Resort Regions in South Lure for Chicagoans

BY JUDITH CASS.

DOGWOOD and lilacs are in bloom along southern trails, sufficient lure to tempt a number of Chicagoans to spend precious days garnered from busy schedules on brief and well-deserved vacations. Mellen C. Martin and his daughter, Marilyn, are leaving Monday to join Mrs. Martin in Tryon, N. C. Mrs. Martin went south in March to open their home there and does not expect to return to Winnetka until late in May.

As soon as the White Elephant shop's stock-raising benefit was over this week, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, president of the Children's Memorial hospital woman's board, which maintains the shop, headed for Virginia Hot Springs with Mr. Hutchins for a 10 day "rest cure." Other Chicagoans currently at the Homestead at the Virginia resort include Mrs. William E. Brewster and Mr. and Mrs. Julien H. Collins. During her spring holiday from Vassar college Miss Katherine Grace joined her parents, Lt.-Comdr. and Mrs. John Henry Grace Jr., at the Homestead. The Graces, formerly of Hinsdale, now are living in Washington, D. C.

At Pinehurst, N. C., where horseback riders and carriages follow flower bordered trails each day, Miss Nolwen de Janze has been enjoying one of her last outings there for some time. Miss De Janze, a recent graduate of Sarah Lawrence college, is going abroad soon to volunteer for service with the Fighting French. She and her sister, Paola, one of the most expert young riders at Pinehurst, have been staying with their great-uncle and aunt, the Simeon B. Chapins, who have returned to their home in Pinehurst after spending the Easter holidays at Myrtle Beach, S. C.

Here and There.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson have invited a few friends to a family luncheon which they will give tomorrow for the Rev. Cyril Forster Garbett, archbishop of York. Their guests will include the Rt. Rev. Wallace E. Conkling and Mrs. Conkling, and the Rev. Duncan H. Browne, rector of St. James' church, where the archbishop will preach tomorrow. The visitor also will speak tomorrow night before the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall.

Lt. Daniel C. Kennedy Jr. has arrived from South America to spend his 15 day leave with his family and to meet his 6 weeks old son, Michael, for the first time. During Lt. Kennedy's absence his wife, the former Mary Faherty, and baby have been staying with her parents, the Roger Fahertys.

Engagement News.

Word comes from New York City of the engagement of Miss Ann Riegelman, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Harold Riegelman of that city, to Ensign Frederick E. Ullman of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ullman of Highland Park. The marriage is planned for next month. Miss Riegelman, whose father is on active duty with the army in the Southwest Pacific, was graduated from the Horace Mann school and from Wellesley college. Her fiancé attended the engineering school of the University of North Carolina.

Week-End Calendar.

Handmade linens, bridal gifts, and baby garments will be among the articles offered for sale from 10:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. today in the parish house of Christ church, Winnetka, by the woman's guild of the church. Luncheon and tea will be served during the annual sale, headed this year by Mrs. Ernest Ballard.

Among the Chicagoans who have taken boxes for the 31st annual spring festival of the Civic Music association tomorrow afternoon in Orchestra hall are Mrs. George B. Dryden, Mrs. William Sherman Hay, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Joseph M. Cudahy, Charles B. Goodspeed, Stuyvesant Peabody, and John Paul Welling.

The Riverside center of Infant Welfare will give a dance tonight at the Riverside Country club.

Baby Week, Beginning Monday, Puts Emphasis on Better Health for Infants

BY RUTH MONTGOMERY.

Four months before the outbreak of World War I. in 1914, the first Baby week in the world was held in Chicago by the Infant Welfare society. At that time the society was a lusty three year old, badly in need of funds.

Monday will mark the opening of the 30th Baby week, which has now become national, but no longer has any connection with a campaign for money. The organization points to the words of Surgeon General Parran, "We must make America strong by making Americans stronger," as the goal of its health program.

"In 1941, 43 per cent of all the men being examined by draft boards were rejected for general military service," Miss Jeannette Townsend, extension secretary of the Infant Welfare society, said. "The foundation for health is laid in babyhood, and that is why our service is so important."

Of the original group of benefactors who founded the society, only Lucius Teter, banker; Dr. Clifford G. Grulee, head of pediatrics at the University of Chicago, and Dr. Arthur F. Abt, author of the book, "Baby Doctor," are still living. All remain on the board of directors, with Mr. Teter, who was president for the first 20 years, as chairman. Philip D. Armour is the current president, and Miss Sara B. Place is superintendent.

In the last year, 12,906 babies and expectant mothers were cared for by the Infant Welfare society in its 20 stations, which are distributed thruout the city in overcrowded areas. The budget for this year is $190,724, an average of about $12 for each person treated. The war has claimed a number of the doctors and nurses on the staff, which was set up to maintain 31 part-time doctors, 62 nurses, four nutritionists, and one mental hygiene supervisor.

Expectant mothers who cannot afford regular medical care are urged by the society to come to the stations for pre-natal and post-natal examinations. Nurses call at the homes of patients to teach sanitation and health care, and nutritionists instruct mothers in balanced diets and the proper use of food ration points.

Approximately 22 per cent of the present budget is contributed by the community fund, with the board of directors and women's auxiliaries from 33 centers raising most of the remainder.

Clubwomen Ask Tightening of U. S. Purse

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 28.—Delegates to the 53d meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, before disbanding today, addressed a housewifely admonition to Uncle Sam on the subject of thrift in relation to the national budget. The clubwomen voted a request to congress that it "practice more economy in planning future federal expenditures" and that financial experts be employed to make recommendations for reductions in expenditures.

As a final act the federation indorsed Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, retiring president, for a seat at the peace table.

One of the most hotly argued resolutions presented during the closing session concerned citizens of Japanese ancestry. It was brought by the California delegation. As adopted it asked the transfer of control of Japanese in America from civilian authority to the army, called for prevention of the return of any Japanese or Japanese-American to the coast for the war's duration, and asked for expatriation of any convicted of disloyalty to the United States.

Another resolution labeled "emergency" and passed over a large protest vote, approved a 35 cent increase per barrel in the price of crude oil. Women of the oil states advanced the resolution on the plea that the crude oil shortage was becoming acute and that only a price increase would arouse an incentive for exploratory drilling.

A unanimous vote was given a request to congress to speed legislation to admit Alaska to statehood. The resolution was offered by Mrs. Mildred R. Hermann, past president of the Alaskan club federation.

The convention called upon the government to "make definite moves to bring about the codification of the body of international law." It asked that it obtain and undertake specifically "commitments to use collective force to prevent or stop aggression, and that there should immediately be constituted an effective council of the allied forces so that future decisions affecting international policies, many of which seem now to be made independently, shall be just decisions as envisioned in the Moscow declaration."

Other resolutions called for nursery schools with recreational and handicraft programs to be incorporated in the community and state educational systems for the duration of the war and six months thereafter; protested any effort to transfer the health program of the children's bureau, department of labor, to the public health service; asked that the United States adopt the metric system of weights and measures; advocated legislation to establish the Women's Auxiliary Ferrying squadron on the same status as the other women's branches of the military.

Among guest speakers heard today was Mrs. Francoise Dony, formerly a professor at the University of Brussels, Belgium. Mrs. Dony made a plea for immediate action in sending food to the starving children of her own and other occupied countries.

Laura Winston Bride Today; Other Weddings Scheduled

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

The lovely satin gown embroidered in a cascade of trapunto ivy leaves in which the former Virginia Winston became the bride of Herbert C. DeYoung has been taken out of its wrappings for the marriage today of her sister, Laura, and Ensign Robert Byers Wilcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Byers Wilcox of Winnetka. Following the 4:30 p. m. ceremony in St. Mark's church, Evanston, there will be a reception in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Horner Winston.

Today's bride, who also will wear her sister's tulle bridal veil and sprays of fresh orange blossoms flown in from Arizona, will have Mrs. DeYoung as matron of honor and Ensign Wilcox's sisters, Ann and Lee, as bridesmaids. Mr. Wilcox will be his son's best man, and ushering will be George Eldredge, John Wilson, and Midshipman Stacey Mosser. Ensign Wilcox will take his bride to Princeton, N. J., where he is stationed.

The marriage of Miss Jeanne Rowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Rowe of Downers Grove, to Ensign Robert V. Mathison of the coast guard will take place today in the Church of the Good Shepherd, Beverly Hills, Cal. The bride's parents, Ensign Mathison's mother, Mrs. John H. Mathison of Evanston, and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Mathison of Palo Alto, Cal., will be present. Miss Mary Agnes Graham of Great Falls, Mont., the bride's roommate at Northwestern university, and Ensign Robert Good will be the attendants. Ensign Mathison and his bride will be at home temporarily in San Francisco.

Miss Dorothy Farrington will wear a simple navy suit trimmed in red and a small navy hat with red feathers for her marriage to Corp. Preston Kelsey Aishton at 4:30 p. m. today in St. James' Episcopal church, Monterey, Cal. The parents of the two young people, the John D. Farringtons and the Richard A. Aishtons of Winnetka, are in California for the wedding. Corp. Aishton is stationed at Fort Ord, Cal.

Only members of the two families will attend the wedding of Miss Patricia Ann Crawford and Sgt. William Sieck at 4 p. m. today in the chapel of Christ church, Winnetka. Later the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Crawford of Wilmette, will give a reception at the Winnetka Woman's club. Miss Muriel Craig is to be maid of honor, and Merritt Starr will serve as best man. Sgt. Sieck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sieck of Winnetka, will return to his army air force school in Hondo, Tex., and his bride will complete her course at the University of Illinois medical school.

The marriage of Miss Lorraine Joan Ladendorf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Ladendorf of Des Plaines, to Staff Sgt. Joseph N. Barnett Jr. of the marine corps reserve, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Barnett of Sparta, Wis., and Minneapolis, Minn., took place yesterday. The bridegroom's father performed the ceremony in St. Chrysostom's church, assisted by the Rev. Dudley Stark, rector of the church, and Sgt. Barnett's uncle, the Rev. Conrad Gesner of St. Paul.

Wearing coast guard blue instead of traditional white wedding attire, Lt. [j. g.] Arlene Roberts, SPAR communications officer in Chicago, will be married today in the Church of the Redeemer to Lt. [j. g.] Ludwig Wedemeyer, executive officer of the Chicago coast guard base. Lt. Roberts is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Roberts of Platte, S. D., who are in Chicago for the wedding, as are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mathews of Copper Harbor, Mich., Lt. Wedemeyer's foster parents.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Miss Mary E. Murphy, chairman of the committee on child care, OCD, Chicago metropolitan area, is urging the coöperation of churches, schools, clubs, and community organizations in child care week, beginning Monday, as proclaimed by Mayor Kelly.

She said yesterday that plans for adequate supervision and recreation of school age children whose mothers are employed will get under way thru the week. Volunteers for a training course to prepare for this summer work are being recruited thru the OCD volunteer office, 53 W. Jackson blvd., Wabash 0528.

There are 61 centers for pre-school children already established in the city, each giving 10 or more hours of care a day. Eighteen of these are operated with Lanham act funds under the auspices of the Chicago board of education.

Women not now employed, who have had kindergarten or nursery school training or other experience with young children, are urged to consider paid work in this field as an important war service, because the opening of the badly needed centers depends on staffing them with able women. Applicants should consult the war nursery office of the board of education, 228 N. La Salle st., room 903.

Mothers who are not now engaged in war work, because of the difficulty of finding care for the children, are invited to avail themselves of child care facilities now in existence. Information is available at the child care office, OCD, Superior 9430.

The more than 100 members of the Chicago Service Men's Wives' club will have a book party at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Y. M. C. A., 59 E. Monroe st. Admission to the meeting will be one book to be contributed to the Illinois victory book campaign, being conducted by Carl B. Roden, librarian of the Chicago public library. There will be refreshments and entertainment at the party.

The club, headed by Mrs. Lucille Mayer, also has completed plans for a tea at 2:30 p. m., May 7, at the Y. W. C. A. Women whose husbands are in any of the uniformed services are eligible to join the organization and to attend both parties. Mothers and mothers-in-law also are invited to the tea.

The Chicago sponsorship committee of the War Advertising council met at luncheon in the Hotel Sherman yesterday with army and WAC personnel to discuss plans for WAC recruiting thru the medium of radio.

Brig. Gen. John E. Davis, chief of staff of the 6th service command; Maj. Ray Morland of army headquarters in Washington, D. C., and Capt. Ruth Fowler of the WAC, also stationed in Washington, addressed the meeting. Twelve WACs on recruiting and public relations duty in Chicago, including Lt. Nell Breeden, Lt. Paula Amrein, and Capt. Roma Scott, also attended the luncheon.

De Kalb Girl Becomes 1st WAC Wed in Hawaii

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 27 [Delayed].—Corp. Evelyn Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Anderson of De Kalb, Ill., last night became the first WAC to be married in Hawaii when she was wedded in the First Methodist church here to Sgt. Frederick Raymond Ford Jr. of the marine corps, whose parents live in Arlington, Mass. The ceremony, performed by the Rev. Henry D. Appenzeller, was attended by about 150 WACs and marines in uniform.

New York Woman Is Named President of Voters' League

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Miss Anna Lord Strauss of New York yesterday became the fourth president of the National League of Women Voters since it organization in Chicago nearly 25 years ago. Her election to succeed Miss Margaret Wells was announced at the closing sessions of the 16th convention in the Stevens hotel.

Miss Anna Strauss.

Miss Strauss was one of three candidates, all winners, nominated from the floor to oppose candidates picked by the nominating committee. She defeated Miss Ruth M. Mitchell, St. Cloud, Minn. Other surprise winners were Mrs. Daniel E. Earley of Cincinnati, O., chosen secretary, and Mrs. W. H. Peterson, University of Wisconsin economics teacher, treasurer.

Other officers, who went in as recommended by the nominating committee, are: Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, Webster Groves, Mo., and Mrs. Richard Field, Weston, Mass., first and second vice presidents, respectively, and six directors: Mrs. D. Bailey Calvin, Galveston, Tex.; Mrs. Marion A. Cheek Jr., Snyder, N. Y.; Mrs. George D. Engels, Mill Valley, Cal.; Mrs. Charles E. Hemming, New York City; Mrs. Marc A. Law, Highland Park [Ill.], and Mrs. John G. Lee, Farmington, Conn.

Ready for hair splitting debate right up until adjournment, yesterday's most intense oratory preceded the 246 to 93 vote passage of the civil liberties item for the "active" list—list of activities for the coming year. As presented by Mrs. W. Lloyd Warner, 5714 Dorchester av., president of the Hyde Park league, the item reads: "Preservation of civil liberties and protection of minority groups against discrimination."

Most forceful speakers for the amendment were Mrs. William T. Davis of Chicago, president of the Negro Douglas league, who said "political democracy has no meaning when divided from economic democracy," and Mrs. R. G. Robinson of New Orleans, La., who declared "the most intelligent people of the south are working for better political and economic conditions for the Negro."

Other measures on the nine point active list approved yesterday are: Federal aid to education thru the state; war and post-war finance program based on tax revenues; curbing inflation thru price controls; United States participation in machinery for world relief and reconstruction; policies for economic stability; strengthening of governmental procedures to improve legislative processes, and development of a social insurance program including insurance for medical care.

HICKORY Perma-lift BRASSIERES

THE LIFT THAT NEVER LETS YOU DOWN

America's only Bra with "The Lift that never lets you down"

The only difference between a good and poor figure often is a matter of a clever brassiere. In Perma☆Lift a miracle happens at the base of the bra-cup where a patented cushion inset softly lifts your bosom, holds that firm rounded contour, never becomes limp or lax through constant washing and wear. Bra and Bandeau styles, $1.25 to $2.50.

Non-Rationed Shoe List Has Snappy Items

BY REA SEEGER

Nonrationed footgear gets better looking every week. Rope soles and fabrics in bright colors and of sturdy qualities are combined to make swanky casual models, some smart enough to wear to town with summer cottons. There are blacks, browns, and navy blues, ideal footnotes for career girls' cotton tailored suits. The vivid reds, greens, golds, the eye-catching plaids, white dotted material, and the stripes are sure-fire accents for country clothes and spectator sports. The natural and whites are, of course strictly summer.

Women who value their precious leather footgear are slipping out of it as soon as they reach home. They are wearing platform and wedge sole models made of rope around the house, thereby saving the rationed items.

Late spring and summer clothes are infinitely smarter with sandals of all shapes and styles made of linen, crash, gabardine, canvas, and heavy duty cotton twill. Several models are featured—the back strap with open toes, the monk style shoe or sandal, and the more dress parade number with an ankle strap.

New colors are unusually effective, so are the patterned effects of printed dots, geometrics, and gingham looking plaids. Some are made of a combination of pattern print and contrasting plain material. High pinks, scarlet, grass green, light blue, and clear yellow are some of the effective summer colors. The blacks are smart enough to wear with the most expensive linens or 'shantungs, so are the browns and deep blues. None requires a ration shoe stamp and the prices, too, are easy on limited budgets.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Heads in the Clouds.

You may think they have their heads in the clouds, but a group of white collar girls who hold top flight positions with Transcontinental Western airlines admit to having their noses in a book now and then. They gave the books listed below as those they enjoyed most this last year.

Eight liked Lloyd Douglas' "The Robe" the best. Two enjoyed Pearl Buck's "Dragon Seed." "Embezzled Heaven" by Franz Werfel, "Paris Underground" by Etta Shiber, "John Brown's Body" by Stephen Vincent Benet, "Signpost" by E. Arnot Robertson, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" by Betty Smith, "Human Comedy" by Saroyan, "Valley of Decision" by Marcia Davenport, and "We Followed Our Hearts to Hollywood" by Kimbrough and Skinner completed the list of white collar favorites.

Crisis.

Nomination for the most distraught official of the decade should go to an executive of an oil company in Tulsa, Okla., who hurried to St. Joseph, Mo., for what was unmistakably a crisis. The St. Joseph office, numbering six employes, received five draft induction notices on the same day.

Only the telephone operator—a girl—remained.

Shape of Things to Come.

Now is the time when diverse and sundry
Shapes [in slacks] upon a Sunday
Appear in the garden to give us warning
Of what she shall see each Sabbath morning!

GEORGE CORMACK'S ADMIRER.

That Corner Seat.

If any one wants to know why one W. C. G. dashes for the seat nearest the window in a train or on an "L," it's so people standing in the aisles don't yank a fistful of fur from her coat every time they grab at the seat! A. RADOT.

More Suggestions.

Just a few more suggestions on the much discussed subject of switchboard operators:

1. Be courteous without being familiar.

2. Be business minded at all times. Remember the impression you make reflects on the company you represent. You are the hostess for your company. Be a gracious one.

3. Try to regulate the tone of your voice. Perhaps you do not have a perfect telephone voice, but by constant watching you can improve it.

4. Train yourself to make wise decisions rapidly. Your job is important! ONE OF THEM.

Tip to the Head Man.

When will employers realize that more pay for good work is good management as there is no incentive for the newcomer to put forth effort when she sees that those who have done their work well for years are not repaid? F. M.

"Could you tell me what to serve for a Sunday night supper?" This is but one of many similar requests received in my department weekly.

A modified version of the smorgasbord offers an attractive and convenient way to serve a large number of guests. The true Scandinavian smorgasbord includes endless varieties of foods, smoked and pickled fish, tongue and other cold meats, vegetables, several salads, spiced fruits and conserves, but the American type buffet may be as simple or elaborate as one wishes to make it.

Here are a few typical smorgasbord dishes:

Herring Salad.

1½ salted herrings
1½ cups cooked meat, cut fine
1½ cups finely chopped beets
1½ cups finely chopped, cooked potatoes
1 pickled gherkin, cut fine
2 raw apples, finely chopped
4 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon white pepper
1½ tablespoons sugar
1 hard cooked egg, sliced

Skin and fillet herrings and soak overnight. Dry and bone well; dice finely. Mix lightly with meat, beets, potatoes, gherkin, and apples. Add sugar, vinegar, and pepper. Pack into mold, rinsed with cold water. Turn out and garnish with sliced hard cooked egg. Serve with mayonnaise.

Swedish Meat Balls.

1½ pounds ground beef
½ pound fresh lean pork, ground
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 cups water
2 eggs
½ cup bread crumbs
1 teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons salt
Fat for frying

Have beef and pork ground together. Brown onion lightly, and mix all ingredients thoroly until smooth. Shape into small balls with a spoon, dipped in hot water. Brown evenly in small amount of fat. Remove to kettle. Make gravy by using the pan liquid and about 1 tablespoon margarine, 2 tablespoons flour, and sufficient water to make it of proper consistency. Pour over meat balls and let simmer for half an hour. Serve hot with gravy or cold. [The chilled meat balls are delicious as hors d'oeuvres.]

Molded Cherry Salad.

1 No. 2½ can black cherries
¼ cup cold water
½ cup boiling water
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
⅛ ounce package cream cheese
3 tablespoons chopped nuts

Soften the gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Then dissolve in the boiling water. Add sugar, lemon juice, cherry juice, and halved cherries. Fill molds ½ full of this mixture and set aside to chill. Form the cream cheese into balls and roll them in the chopped nuts. When the mixture in the molds is partially set, place a cheese ball in each and add enough gelatin to fill the mold. Chill and serve in lettuce cups with mayonnaise.

Applesauce Torte.

¼ pound margarine, melted
28 graham crackers, crushed
1 tablespoon sugar
1 No. 2 can applesauce
1½ cups sweetened condensed milk
3 eggs, separated
Juice of 1 lemon

Add melted margarine to graham crackers and stir in sugar. Press into bottom and sides of spring form pan. Mix sauce with milk, beaten egg yolks, and lemon juice. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into cracker lined pan and bake in moderate 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Serve chilled.

Add 3 beaten eggs to first mixture, beat well, add flour mixture alternately with 1 cup milk. Add juice and grated rind of one lemon. Mix thoroly; pour into greased tube pan, bottom of which is covered with chopped pecans [coconut or a combination of coconut and pecans may be used]. Bake at 350 degrees 1 hour. Cool a few minutes, turn out of pan. [Cake may be baked in bread loaf pan about 1¼ hours.]

Little Neglect Often Benefits Sensitive Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In addition to the various ways in which one tries to help a loving and sensitive child, an important thing to practice is what we might call a tender wholesome neglect. What that consists of basically is—ignoring practically everything in a child's actions which is not what we desire or which shows the child is in distress—and changing the subject, diverting his attention, and substituting some game or occupation to center the child's attention upon something outside himself.

Important in this campaign of "tender wholesome neglect" in handling the sensitive child is the fact that this little child must never be made to feel pushed aside or less loved. In a word, this kind of neglect is not neglect at all. It is, in fact, the most intelligent kind of attention to a child's deeper needs; it is definitely not an attention which centers constantly in a child's unhappiness or misbehavior.

This changing of inward looking to outward looking is extremely wholesome, and fine psychology. In applying this loving, wholesome neglect to the matter of a child's fears, one has to be careful. No matter how unreasonable a fear may seem, it should not be ridiculed, nor should a child be forced to cope with that fear alone.

For example, it would be ignoring a fear, you might say, to put a child who is afraid of the dark to bed, turn out the light, walk away and leave her. But this would not be wise, nor really intelligent. While we do not make much of a child's fear, we should usually [and in quite a casual way] agree to leaving a little light on or a door open, or float in and out of the child's bedroom to insure a feeling of comfort and security. Doing this at first, we can proceed to taper it off until the fear is outgrown, or has just vanished as mysteriously as it came.

Women's Republican Club to Hold Annual Luncheon

Members of the Women's Republican club of Illinois, gathering for their annual luncheon at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Chicago room of the LaSalle hotel, will hear talks by Judge Herbert Immenhausen; Charles H. Garland, mayor of Des Plaines; Leslie Salter, attorney, and Bernard Black. New officers will be introduced, and special guests will include Mrs. Bertha Baur, Mrs. Charles Krutchkoff, and Dr. Irene Behnke.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"How do you use soy flour in recipes?" inquired a reader yesterday.

We explained that a cook really needs a recipe developed especially for soy flour in most instances, altho usually in making quickbreads or muffins a fourth of the white flour may be replaced with soy flour without use of a special recipe. A little more salt is required.

Soy flours differ in fat content and in their effect in baked products. They can't replace wheat flour entirely, for the resulting product would be too heavy. But soy flour does add nutritive value and good flavor to foods when properly used.

We can recommend several good soybean and soy flour cook books to interested readers. In addition, we'll be happy to send a leaflet of recipes for baked goods made with soy flour, upon receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.

How do you prepare fresh mushrooms?" inquired another cook.

Fresh mushrooms usually are sauteed in butter or margarine, or simmered tender in water before they're prepared as a dish or added to sauce or soup. Wash them carefully, but do not peel off the skins of fresh mushrooms. Slice them lengthwise from cap thru stem to make them look attractive. If whole caps are wanted, break them off and saute them whole for meat garnish, saving stems for soup or sauce. Dry mushrooms on towel before sauteing. If you prefer to simmer them until tender [only a few minutes are required to cook them in any way], save the cooking liquid for the soup or sauce.

"Can last year's jar rubbers be used again this year?" asks a woman who is wisely getting ready now for a big canning season.

It isn't safe to re-use war time jar rubbers, for they are made of reclaimed rubber and haven't the elasticity and long life of the pre-war rubber bands. Buy new ones. Metal lids with composition edges must be purchased new every year, too, for the sealing edge is ruined after one processing. Screw bands which aren't bent out of shape may be used year after year.

The bidding:

South	West	North	West
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's leap to four spades was not exactly conservative, but perhaps he "knew" his opponents!

West opened the club king and shifted to the heart queen. Things must have looked pretty black to the declarer, but if so, he concealed his feelings admirably. He put up the heart king and then, quite ignoring the small detail that he was missing both the king and the queen of trumps, he blandly led the spade jack from dummy. East fell like a veritable humpty-dumpty! An inveterate honor-coverer, he saw no reason for failing to cover this time, and the queen and king thus fitted neatly underneath declarer's ace. After that it was no more than natural that declarer should have found the diamond ace on side. Declarer went back to dummy by leading the trump five to the six and returned a diamond toward his king.

Admittedly, declarer had needed plenty of luck to fulfill his contract, but at least he deserved credit for giving his right-hand neighbor the chance to make a bad mistake.

'Tannhauser' Given a Good Performance

"TANNHAUSER."

Opera with book and music by Richard Wagner. Presented by the Metropolitan Opera association at the Civic Opera house Friday evening, April 28, 1944.

THE CAST.

Landgraf Hermann	Alexander Kipnis
Tannhäuser	Lauritz Melchior
Wolfram	Martial Singher
Walther	John Garris
Biterolf	Osie Hawkins
Heinrich	Emery Darcy
Reinmar	John Gurney
Elisabeth	Rose Bampton
Venus	Marjorie Lawrence
A young shepherd	Maxine Stellman
Bacchanale by the ballet.
Conductor	Paul Breisach
Stage director	Herbert Graf

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Last night's "Tannhäuser" was not the electrifying performance conducted a year ago by George Szell, but it was Wagner worth hearing, with Lauritz Melchior, Marjorie Lawrence, and Rose Bampton again in leading roles, with Martial Singher new as Wolfram, and with Alexander Kipnis singing the Landgrave for the first time in 14 Chicago seasons. Paul Breisach conducted with a reassuring feeling for the beauty of the score, but he did not weld it into the gleaming, exciting whole that made the opera one of last season's triumphs.

Some one said Melchior looked like a lion, and certainly his wig was a red mane that shook in the winds of passion. But this giant of a man is more than leonine. He has a true heldentenor, and last night that voice was in superb form, sounding as mellow as the hunting horn, and as resounding as an unmuted trumpet. There is a graciousness about him, too, quite unconscious, but it goes deeper than stage deportment. When he enters the hall of song, his bow has the courtliness of a big man who can afford to be gentle. That makes the growing impatience with Wolfram's tribute to love all the more vivid by contrast. When he finally leaps up for his paean to Venus, he has set the scene tingling.

This time he had an interesting adversary in the new baritone who attracted such favorable attention in "The Tales of Hoffmann." People who heard Mr. Singher for the first time last night did not hear him at his best. His voice has the French timbre, not quite right for the noble Wolfram, but it is a sympathetic voice, and its owner has a quality of poetic expression welcome to the opera stage. If you liked him last night, you will like him better in his own language and style.

Miss Lawrence, who truly has made that invalid's chair a throne, sang Venus with a radiance that often verged on the heroic. Last season her singing of the role was touched with overtones of Isolde—last night it was pure Brünnhilde. Miss Bampton's beautiful Elisabeth sang the greeting to the hall of song adequately, but her plea for Tannhäuser was a remarkable piece of work, rich in the velvet of a voice once contralto, poignant in a purity of expression that reminded me of the finest Elisabeth I ever heard, Lotte Lehmann. It would be interesting to see her develop the whole role in that style, abandoning the early coyness that mars its dignity.

Mr. Kipnis was what he has always been, magnificent, and John Garris sang with such a fresh young tenor I hope the Met has him in mind for David in "Die Meistersinger." Emery Darcy had so little to do it was difficult to judge his future as Mr. Melchior's successor, a destination at least indicated by reports of his New York "Parsifal." The chorus men looked exceptionally rakish in their Wartburg wreaths, but sang well, and the ballet danced the Venusberg in typical style—which was very bad indeed.

Filet Crochet

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

A combination of designs in filet crochet work offers an excellent suggestion for tablecloth, scarfs or runners, since blocks are made separately, then joined. Filet crochet is easy to do, and the directions

On the Record

By Claudia Cassidy

In Waltz Time.

Four favorite waltzes is the justifiable name of a new Columbia album [X-240; two 12 inch records], with Howard Barlow conducting the Columbia Broadcasting Symphony in Johann Strauss' "On the Beautiful Blue Danube" and "Tales from the Vienna Woods," plus the Waltz of the Flowers from Tschaikowsky's Nutcracker Suite, and Sibelius' Valse Triste. These are adequate performances if you don't expect too much of the waltz. Myself, I would stick to an older Columbia album by Marek Weber, called "In Old Vienna." Checking back in the scrapbook, I see them called "dark and mellow, with a firm rhythm under their dreaminess." I still think so.

Singles.

Miliza Korjus has a new Victor 12-inch of the Laughing Song from "Die Fledermaus" and the "Nightingale" waltz from one of her films, but that was the record that arrived smashed to smithereens. No matter, Korjus fans buy everything she records the minute it comes out. . . . Mischa Elman has an exceptionally interesting Victor recording of the Nigun [improvisation] from Ernest Bloch's "Baal Shem," with Vladimir Padwa at the piano. His violin has unusual darkness and pungency, so that of two listeners, one guessed Milstein, the other Heifetz. . . . Lush is the word for two Leopold Stokowski transcriptions recorded for Columbia with the All-American orchestra. A Tschaikowsky song, "Solitude," is wrapped in Stokowski velvets on one side, while Schumann's "Traumerei" is not quite so fancy on the other. Depends on how you like your music. . . . Fabien Sevitzky and the Indianapolis Symphony have a Victor 12-inch devoted to the overture to one of Haydn's little known operas, "L'Isola Disabitata." It isn't topnotch Haydn, but the performance is adequate for the curious.

Acting Excels in 'Bridge of San Luis Rey'

"THE BRIDGE OF SAN LUIS REY."

A United Artists picture, directed by Rowland V. Lee, starring Lynn Bari, with Louis Calhern, Akim Tamiroff, Francis Lederer, and Nazimova, and presented at United Artists theater.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"The Bridge of San Luis Rey," adapted from Thornton Wilder's famous novel, which some 15 years ago served as basis for a silent movie, is leisurely, long, and extraordinarily well acted.

The picture represents the findings of a priest, Brother Juniper, who—after a bridge which for ages had spanned a gorge near Lima, Peru, collapses and sends five human beings to death—starts out to see whether he can discover why God should have permitted such a thing—bringing sudden doom to five, sparing others. . . .

As he investigates you look in on the life stories of Micaela, famous as "Perichole," who has risen from the people to become the favorite of the viceroy of the marquesa de Montmayor, an evil woman of great power; of Uncle Pio, a theatrical impresario, greatly beloved, who has made Micaela the leading actress of Peru; of Manuel, the sailor, lover of Micaela, and of his twin brother, the jealous Estaban [dual role played by Francis Lederer—and well]. Many other characters are rung in, notably one Pepita, an orphan adopted by the marquesa, and exquisitely portrayed by young Joan Lorring.

Action, which takes place in the Peru of 1772, starts with the crash of the bridge and closes with Father Juniper's admission that man is incapable of solving the riddle of God's plan.

We have always known that, given the chance, Lynn Bari would prove herself a great actress. As Micaela she has the chance and is the actress. Beautiful, too! Louis Calhern is silken as the viceroy, and Nazimova chills the heart as the marquesa. Akim Tamiroff, as Uncle Pio, adds another splendid characterization to his collection of great works.

The film is exceedingly atmospheric and fascinatingly photographed, and tho much of it is a study in slow movement, it is electrified by sequences of piercing drama.

See you tomorrow.

Extend Museum Hours.

Beginning Monday, the summer schedule at the Chicago Natural History museum will go into effect, extending visiting hours from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. These hours will remain in effect up to and including Labor day, Sept. 4. Winter hours are from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Stage Notes

"Let's Face It" is on the Chicago booking sheet for June 26, either at the Blackstone or the Studebaker. No replacement has been made for Danny Kaye, but Brenda Forbes, Cynda Glenn, Jacquelin Susann, and possibly Joy Hodges will be in it. . . . John Golden may send us "—But Not Goodbye" after its brief New York engagement.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 28.—If you can take Margaret O'Brien's delivery of Lincoln's Gettysburg address without getting a lump in your throat so big you can't swallow, then you're a hard hearted critter. Charles Laughton taught her how to do it, and if Metro doesn't put it in a picture, then the studio's not as smart as I think it is. . . . Andy Devine's pals—Pat O'Brien, Spencer Tracy, Bing Crosby—all have played priests on the screen, so Andy doesn't see why he can't. That's what he'll do in "Bowery to Broadway" with Jack Oakie and Frank McHugh. . . . Paulette Goddard's back in New York, but her stay there will be short. She begins "Kitty," May 15, on the coast, with Ray Milland and that fine character actor, Cecil Kellaway, lending support. . . . Next season Bill Goodwin will be exclusive with Burns and Allen, so he'll have more time for pictures.

It's Her Picture Debut.

Marion Bell, who made her debut on the Hollywood Showcase, will sing a number from "La Traviata" with James Melton in "Ziegfeld Follies." They'll end up with every Metro star in that one. Lucille Ball, Lucille Bremer, Marilyn Maxwell, Elaine Shepard, and Lena Horne will try to out-sing each other in one number. . . . "Merrily We Sing" is all ready for Gloria Jean and June Vincent. June, poor thing, has to live at a hotel until the house she rented is vacated. But she's lucky otherwise. Her husband has been transferred out here. . . . Who said this wasn't the land of promise? In England Erik Wilton was chauffeur to Miles Mander. In "Pearl of Death," he was still his chauffeur, but getting actor's wages—not driver's.

Now and Then.

Cecil B. De Mille, the P. T. Barnum of the picture business, took over Little Rock, Ark., for the opening of "Dr. Wassell." With every branch of the services present, the parade was 15 blocks long. Don't know why all this reminds me of Bob Burns' homecoming to Van Buren. It was early morning. While he was waking, he felt a presence, and, sure enough, about 100 citizens were outside his room on the first floor gazing upon him while he slept. "And," said he, "the first view of me was my big feet. They were uncovered." . . . Tch, Tch! Benny Goodman says, "Progress here depends on how fast you can climb the ladder of success with a knife in your back." . . . Jane Wyatt's the lucky girl. Nothing but love scenes with Cary Grant in "None But the Lonely Heart." . . . Loretta Young's maternity wardrobe is out of this world; so John Frederics remarked, "The best designing brains in the country are at work on that production." Isn't his remark a little late?

Hard Luck, Geraldine.

Paul Lukas has been suspended by Warners because he walked out of a picture, which means more bad luck for Geraldine Fitzgerald, who was so happy she was going to play opposite him. . . . Poor Laraine Day. She always looks so spick-and-span, then they always dirty her up. She's done up in evening gown, fur cape, and hair-do for a scene in "That Hunter Girl." While she sleeps, a sprinkler goes to work on her. Another time she falls flat on her face in the mud. That ain't funny, kiddies. . . . "Mayerling" will be produced in English by Seymour Nebenzal, who did it abroad. He's again trying to get Charles Boyer for it. . . . Laird Cregar giving out with cocktails Sunday for Greta Keller. Greta's all signed for a radio show come fall. . . . When Clifton Webb moved into Connie Bennett's home, he wasn't acquainted with the light switches, so turned 'em all on. In nothing flat, house was surrounded by police. He'd gotten the burglar alarm by mistake. He and his mother, Mabel, brought me a dizzy head confection made of white chicken feathers, which at the very thought of me curled up like ring worms.

A Touch of Nostalgia.

Dining with D. W. Griffith, Lillian Gish, and Mary Pickford in one of those rare do-you-remember-when moods is something that would make a good picture, but I'm afraid all of us who've been in the industry so long have lost our perspective. We know all the stars and important people, and we knew them when. To us they're no more important than your next door neighbor. We don't realize the importance they have to other folks thruout the world who can never get near 'em. So, they're placed on a pedestal as something beyond reach. . . . I reached the "To Have and Have Not" set in time to watch a touching scene—Humphrey Bogart saving Dolores Moran from the briny deep. The boat they were riding in tilted over on top of Moran, and Bogey [ever the hero] saved her life. For his pains he got a great big wet smack and a hug from the little lady. Water was four feet deep.

Clergy Honors Rabbi Wise on Chicago Visit

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York's Free synagog was greeted by leaders of Chicago's Christian clergy yesterday noon as American Jewry's foremost spokesman and the country's "great humanitarian who is capacious enough to be an inspiration to the thought and ideals of all mankind.

Four hundred priests and ministers of more than a score of Christian communions joined in the luncheon tribute at the Stevens hotel. The occasion was held in honor of the New York rabbi's 70th birthday and on his half century in the rabbinate. Bishop Sheil, who was to have represented the Catholic archdiocese, was at Cardinal O'Connell's funeral in Boston. He was represented by the Rev. William J. Bergin of St. Andrew's church, who praised the rabbi's humanitarianism.

The Rev. Dr. Harold Ruopp, minister of Central church, Orchestra hall, and vice president of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago which represents coöperative work of a score of Protestant denominations, paid tribute to the famous rabbi for his "intellectual integrity, moral courage, and spiritual power."

Bishop Wallace E. Conkling of the Episcopal diocese pointed to the Christian clergy luncheon assemblage in a Jewish leader's honor as a proof that "our democracy does stand the test," that probably in no other country of the world would such an event be possible, even tho such fraternal relations are commonplace in Chicago.

Rabbi Wise's response was a tribute to the Christian churches and clergy of Nazi occupied lands as the only groups which have stood against Nazi ideology and aggressions, and that "many Christians have died that Jews might live." He pleaded with the clergy to help make the Jew understand that "in America be a loyal and uncompromising Jew just as you have the right to be loyal and uncompromising Christians."

Rabbi Louis L. Mann of Chicago Sinai congregation, presiding, referred to today's Chicago visit of the archbishop of York. "The most Jewish thing a Jew can do," he said, "is to honor the archbishop on his Chicago visit, just as the most Christian thing a Christian can do is to honor Dr. Stephen S. Wise on his visit to this city."

Tomorrow night, under the auspices of the American Jewish congress, Dr. Wise will be honored at a dinner at the Stevens by leaders of Jewish organizations of the city.

Thru the Looking Glass

More than one mother has asked us lately for our opinion as to when a girl should begin to use lipstick. Should a 13 year old use it? What we gather is that the small fry, the grade school girls, are telling their mothers that only dumb clucks don't use it and that mothers who forbid it are condemning their young daughters to social ostracism —than which no fate is worse when one is 12 years old.

Naturally we wouldn't attempt to name the hour, the day, or even the year when a little girl might, with perfect propriety, begin to coat her lips with scarlet. It's not a matter of hygiene or safety. The cosmetics of the present day are safe as safe can be and thin young skins are not apt to be damaged by them.

It's entirely a matter of taste and aesthetics. An 11 or a 13 year old wearing lipstick with parental permission is proclaiming to the world that her parents have neither a sense of humor nor a sense of taste. The little girls who lather makeup on their childish faces look grotesque, which is pathetic enough. What is tragic is that they look common, a fate from which a wise and sympathetic parent would try desperately to save them.

A 15 year old who looks mature, and whose own set believes that lipstick is necessary, probably needs permission to use it, occasionally, for her own psychological peace of mind. Younger girls, with youthful faces and figures, should, we think, be discouraged; in other words protected against their own impetuous yen to look older than they are. Times have changed, of course, since mother was a girl—but a little girl made up to look like a big girl remains a funny looking object rather than a beguiling one. Lipstick for the 13 year old is as incongruous as flapper styles for a grandmother; the wearer loses dignity and natural charm.

Need to Co-ordinate Play Programs Told to Social Agencies

Recreation is an antidote for juvenile delinquency but it will not curb it entirely, Dr. Arthur J. Todd, professor emeritus of sociology at Northwestern university, warned 75 board members of private social agencies at a luncheon yesterday.

"It is going to take more than a recreational kit to save our youth," he said. "We must have a well organized, properly planned and coordinated program which includes all groups and attracts all interests."

Contending that Chicago, like many other cities, found itself almost in the position of doing too little, too late, when the wave of juvenile delinquency hit the nation, Dr. Todd advocated two steps which must be taken before the city can have a well organized program.

"All agencies must dovetail activities to eliminate duplication and the recreational program of the public schools must be revamped from top to bottom," he said.

Mrs. Ed T., Gary, Ind.—If you find a stain on a blanket or some piece of flannel which you cannot afford to soak in water, use a starch paste. BROWNS WIN NINTH IN ROW; BEAT WHITE SOX, 3-1

MONTGOMERY WINS DECISION OVER PERALTA

6,112 Pay $21,947 at Coliseum.

Fight Decisions

LAST NIGHT.

At the Coliseum—Bob Montgomery beat Joey Peralta [10]; Georgie Parks beat Wallace Cross [10]; Joe Reddick beat Harold Reiss [6]; Jack Eaton and Johnny Ryan drew [6]; Mike Sopko beat Johnny Hopp [4]; Alvin Jordan beat John Yocius [4].

At Detroit, Mich.—Pvt. Joey Maxim beat John [Buddy] Walker [10]; Johnny Green stopped James [Tiger] Higgins [5].

At Minneapolis, Minn.—Lou Nova knocked out Hank Postoway [5]; Del Cockayne knocked out Dickie Miller [1].

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Bob Montgomery, lightweight champion [New York version], decisively defeated Joey Peralta last night in a 10 round bout which headed the first boxing show staged in the Chicago Coliseum in two years.

The decision of Referee Tommy Gilmore and Judges Arthur O'Berg and Harold Marovitz was unanimous.

Despite the one sided nature of Montgomery's triumph the 6,112 spectators, who paid $21,947.83, cheered Peralta as he headed for the dressing room.

Victory Is Third Over Joey.

It was Peralta's third straight defeat at the hands of the champion and he was a 3 to 1 underdog, but this didn't stop him from taking the offensive at the start. Joe, who was stopped by Ike Williams in his last previous appearance due to an eye cut, came close to losing in the same manner last night when Montgomery opened an old cut over his left eye in the third round.

Expert treatment of the wound between rounds by Second Issy Kline enabled Peralta to last the limit, altho the cut was reopened with a series of rights in the eighth.

Peralta Wins First Round.

Peralta, who weighed 138 pounds, two less than Bob, easily won the first round by adept use of a left jab to the face, a maneuver followed by a barrage of lefts and rights to the body.

Montgomery took the play away from Joey in the second and held the upper hand thereafter except for a short time in the final round.

Bob, who is scheduled to report for army duty next week, was slow afoot at 140 pounds. His best scoring weapon was a left hook to the head and body. His dangerous right frequently was wild but in the third, sixth, and 10th rounds he staggered Peralta with that punch, and in each instance forced him to fall into a clinch.

Cheaper Tickets Missing.

Tickets were advertised as selling at $1, $2, $4, and $6, but none at the low price was placed on sale before the show. Only 61 were sold at the low price at the Coliseum box office last night, Chairman Sheldon Clark of the Illinois Athletic commission said.

However, these 61 were not available to the general public, according to fans who sought the cheaper seats but were forced to purchase tickets in the next price range.

Parks Beats Cross.

Net proceeds were reported to be $16,959.89.

Georgie Parks, Washington [D. C.] heavyweight, hammered out a victory over Wallace Cross of East Orange, N. J., in the 10 round semi-windup which followed the main contest. Cross survived two knockdowns in the fifth round. Joe Reddick, Baltimore middleweight, was awarded an unpopular decision over Harold Reiss, 6 foot 1 inch Detroit southpaw, in a six round bout which was best of the preliminary events.

Lou Nova Knocks Out Postoway in 5th Round

Minneapolis, Minn., April 28.—Lou Nova, Van Nuys, Cal., heavyweight, scored his fifth straight ring victory tonight with a five round knockout over Hank Postoway, Camp McCoy, Wis. Nova weighed 208, Postoway, 178.

SUCH a sports mixup as this could happen only in war time: Tillie Manton, snooping for players to sign for the Boston Yanks of the National Football league, wrote to a football player in Missouri he had been told was 4-F. . . . The letter was delivered by mistake in the same town to another fellow with the same last name. . . . This youngster wrote Manton, explained the circumstances, and said the boy for whom the letter had been intended was fighting overseas—but that he himself was 4-F, had played football, and certainly was interested in joining the pros. . . . Manton sent him a contract. . . . Who is he? The scout won't say, getting talent in these days being such a cutthroat business. . . . Of the 23 major leaguers who have made six hits at bat in a nine inning game six have played on Chicago teams, but only one, Henry Steinbacher, former Sox, did it while playing for Chicago. . . . When the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner" started in the Vancouver, B. At Union Station.

As I sat in the station waiting
And watching the crowds go by,
I wondered about their travels,
The where, the when, and the why.

There were people with varied expressions,
Some sad, some serious, some gay;
Many women with tiny babies
Whose daddies had just gone away.

They had said good-by with a smile on their lips,
Tho their hearts were full of woe;
Proud of their men in uniform,
Yet dreading to see them go.

And I thought, how like life is that passing throng

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The gingery and skilled St. Louis Browns again tromped on the necks of our poor White Sox yesterday to run their 1944 victory string to nine straight without a setback. The score in Comiskey park was 3 to 1 and it was the fourth time this season that the Chicagoans have been outclassed by the St. Louisans, the other three joltings having been in St. Louis last weekend.

The Browns' nine straight enabled them to tie the modern major league record for successes at the start of a season. The New York Giants started the 1918 season with nine straight triumphs and the Brooklyn Dodgers did likewise in 1940 This afternoon Luke Sewell's alert cohorts will be seeking a new major league record as they face Jim Dykes' lads in the second game of a four game series.

Trosky Gets Double, Scores.

It was the second successive day on which the Sox pounded out a four hit attack total. They got a double and three singles against the Detroit Tigers Thursday and roared back with a duplicate record yesterday. The double, by Hal Trosky in the second inning bloomed into the Sox's only run in two games. After the double Hal went rocketing home on two infield outs for the first run of the afternoon.

It was the fifth straight loss for the Sox since they eked out a 3 to 1 victory in the season opener. The fadeout yesterday plopped them into the American league cellar.

There was nothing especially wrong with the Sox's behavior yesterday except that they couldn't hit Sailor Jack Kramer, who in scoring his third victory of the season and his second over the collapsed Chicagoans walked no one and was supported by flawless fielding.

Browns Get Seven Hits.

Wally Moses led off the seventh with the second Chicago hit, a ground single to center. Eddie Carnett, Trosky, and Ralph Hodgin then supplied easy outs. After two were out in the eighth Mike Tresh singled to right and Guy Curtright, batting for Bill Dietrich, singled to center, the fourth Chicago hit. Skeeter Webb bounced to Don Gutteridge.

Dietrich yielded only seven hits and struggled along on a one run lead going into the fourth. He started that inning by walking George McQuinn. Vern Stephens sent a double play grounder at Webb, who fumbled, McQuinn reaching second and Stephens first. Gene Moore also sent a double play ball at Webb and this time it was converted into a double killing, McQuinn reaching third. Milt Byrnes then singled to center, scoring McQuinn with the tying run.

In the sixth Hal Epps beat out a drag bunt to get the winning run started around. McQuinn sacrificed and Stephens doubled, scoring Epps.

The run the Brownies didn't need was scored in the eighth on singles by McQuinn and Stephens and Gene Moore's infield out.

CUBS PERK UP; PASSEAU IN FOLD

Derringer Will Pitch Against Cards Today.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 28.—Business boomed for the almost victory bankrupt Cubs today even tho they did nothing more strenuous than practice in hopes of catching up on their spring training studies. The upsurge came in the shape of Claude Passeau, the pitching farmer from Mississippi. It is needless to say he was welcomed like a long lost uncle with a bank roll.

The winner of 15 games last season promptly went into a discourse on his prospective tung oil crop, on the planting that had been done, about his white face cattle and brood sows and how everything had been put in apple pie order on his more than 300 acres. He thinks he'll be pitching in about a week. His return to a box score can come none too soon for the distraught Manager Jim Wilson.

He's Not Immediately Available.

Unfortunately, Passeau will not be able to assist in the Cubs' immediate problem, a six game losing streak complicated by the fact that it is going to grow a little more if the tough Cardinals have anything to say about it. It is only a few days ago since the close of a series in which the light hitting Chicagoans dropped three in a row to that same gang, and three more games now are coming up. One of them is scheduled for tomorrow, and the two others on Sunday afternoon.

For tomorrow's debate with the champions Paul Derringer will be turned loose in his second start of the season, probably drawing Harry Brecheen as an opponent. This same pair hooked up in the Chicago opener last Friday and while Derringer was charged with the unhappy outcome he was a long way from a flop.

Not in Holdout Mood.

Passeau hasn't signed his contract but this doesn't mean he has even a slight attack of holdout fever. He has had the document in his possession since mid-February and did nothing about attaching his signature because of the uncertainty as to whether he would report. He'll attend to the formality within a few days. As for his draft status, he knows nothing except that he hasn't been called for examination. The rangy southerner now is 35. Thus even without allowance for the crippled fingers on his left hand he probably wouldn't be an especially attractive item for Uncle Sam.

Lou Novikoff, the jovial Russian who is always getting lost or something, reported again today after a rest in a Chicago hospital.

Penn Relays Medley Won by Michigan

Philadelphia, Pa., April 28 (AP).—Michigan, Dartmouth and New York university shared major honors today in the first day's competition of the 50th annual Penn relays before 5,000 in Franklin field.

Michigan's Big Ten champions romped to a 100 yard triumph in the distance medley. Dartmouth, second to Michigan in the distance medley, snared the sprint medley title in which the Ann Arbor youths did not compete. New York university successfully defended its quarter mile crown.

Bob Hume Adds to Margin.

No records were broken because of a track made heavy by several days rain, but despite this, the Michigan quarter of Willis Glass, Bob Ufer and the Hume twins—Ross and Bob—cut more than three seconds off last year's time in taking the distance medley in 10:20.1. Notre Dame won the event in 1943 in 10:23.2.

Given a 50 yard lead by his brother, Bob Hume added another 50 yards over Dartmouth's Don Burnham in running a 4:23.3 anchor mile. Burnham, I. C. A. A. A. A. indoor champion miler, was timed in 4:33.1, apparently saving his energy for his sprint medley anchor half mile when he put on a stretch spurt to pass Army's Albion Knight. Burnham's time for the half was 1:55.2 and Dartmouth's time for the event 3:31.9.

Trukes Wins Two Mile Race.

New York university bettered its 1943 mark in winning the quarter mile relay in 42.5 seconds; Army's Art Trukes won the two mile championship in 9:49.3 when Ollie Hunter, now a lieutenant in the Columbia midshipmen's school did not defend his title. Summaries:

SHOT PUT—Won by Norman Wasser, New York university, 48 feet 1¼ inches; G. L. Ker, Columbia midshipmen's school, 47 feet ¾ inch, second; William Ekberg, army, 44 feet 1¾ inches, third; Len Watson, United States navy, Martha's Vineyard, Mass., 44 feet ¾ inch, fourth; John Siano, Villanova, 43 feet 6¼ inches, fifth.

COLLEGE QUARTER MILE RELAY—Won by New York university [Herbert Rubin, Milford Parker, Frank Svoboda, Ed Conwell]; United States coast guard [New York City], second; Dartmouth, third; Camp Lee, Va., fourth.

400 METER HURDLES—Won by Elmore Harris, Morgan State, Baltimore; Edward Palmieri, Tufts, second; Bernard Connor, Army, third; Hubert Gates, Langley field, Va., fourth. Time, :56.1.

DISTANCE COLLEGE MEDLEY RELAY CHAMPIONSHIP OF AMERICA—Won by Michigan [Bob Ufer, Willis Glas, Ross Hume, and Robert Hume]; Dartmouth, second; Rochester, third; New York university, fourth; City College of New York, fifth; Columbia, sixth; Pennsylvania, seventh; Temple, eighth. Time, 10:20.1.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC STATES COLLEGIATE A. A. ONE MILE RELAY CHAMPIONSHIP—Won by Franklin and Marshall [John Mathews, M. Yingling, Bob Manifold, Rodney Kirk]; Muhlenberg, second; Ursinus, third; Swarthmore, fourth; Lehigh, fifth; Haverford, sixth. Time, 3:38.9.

DISCUS THROW—Won by Lt. Hugh S. Cannon, United States navy, Staten Island, 162 feet 4 inches; William A. Ekberg, Army, 138 feet 6½ inches, second; P. J. Stadnyk, Princeton, 135 feet 11½ inches, third; George Ker, Columbia Midshipmen's school, 132 feet 9 inches, fourth; William J. Hyer, Rochester, 130 feet 2½ inches, fifth.

INVITATION 120 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by William D. McIvers, Rochester; C. B. Anderson, Army, second; Sgt. David H. Mercer, Elgin field, Fla., third; A. W. Lamar, Army, fourth; Walter Womack, Pre-Midshipmen's school, Asbury Park, N. J., fifth. Time, 15.4.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Arthur H. Truxes, Army; Frank B. Tucker, Army, second; Lawrence Cullen, Villanova, third; Richard N. Hall II., Princeton, fourth; Henry D. Miller, U. S. Army, Indiantown Gap, fifth; Charles R. Bepler, Princeton, sixth; John B. O'Hare, Rochester, seventh; Lt. [j. g.] Herman Goffberg, Cape May coast guard, eighth; M. G. Knox, Pennsylvania, ninth; Donald Schmitt, Villanova, tenth. Time, 9:49.3.

SPRINT MEDLEY COLLEGE RELAY CHAMPIONSHIP [first man runs .440 yards, second and third men 220 yards, and fourth man 880 yards]—Won by Dartmouth [Charles Grohsberger, Robert A. Grady, Walter Newman, Donald L. Burnham]; Columbia, second; Army, third; U. S. coast guard, N. Y., fourth; Princeton, fifth; Pennsylvania, sixth; City College of New York, seventh; pre-midshipmen's school, Asbury Park, N. J., eighth; Tuskegee army air field, Ala., ninth; Villanova, tenth. Time, 3:31.9.

SETS PREP MARK IN DRAKE RELAYS

Ottumwa Youth Tosses Discus 143.37 Feet.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., April 28.—Dave Williams, a chunky youngster from Ottumwa, Ia., threw the discus 143:37 feet to establish a new high school record today as the Drake relays opened the 35th consecutive year of competition. The old mark was 136 feet.

Forty-four Iowa high schools sent 458 competitors to the games. The university and college athletes are on tomorrow's program.

Despite the exclusion of collegiate events from today's program, more than 5,000 watched the games and favorable weather, after a fortnight of rain, prompted the assertion of the games committee that tomorrow's attendance would equal that of pre-war years.

Games Start at 2.

Five preliminaries and two championship events are scheduled for the morning beginning at 9:30 o'clock. These trials are the 440 yard University relay, the College and University half mile relays, and the 100 yard dash and high hurdles.

The broad jump and discus throw championships will be decided in the morning.

After the ceremonies and parade of contestants and officials, the games will be opened at 2 o'clock tomorrow with the high hurdles championship event. There is not much chance, of course, that a record will be established in this event, or in any other for that matter but the caliber of the competition is exceptionally high in view of the loss of collegiate personnel to the war.

Ten individual championship events, including the invitational quarter mile, a new event, are on tomorrow's program and there also will be 11 relays for colleges and universities.

Rule Steuber Can Compete.

The university and college track coaches voted tonight to ignore an AAU decision barring Cadet Bob Steuber of the Iowa Pre-Flight team who is a professional athlete by virtue of his appearnce last fall with the Chicago Bears. The relays committee promptly accepted the decision, ruling he can compete if he wishes.

Since the Drake Relays have been designated as an open meet, and because Steuber previously had competed in dual meets against colleges, officials considered the ruling a foregone conclusion.

Dick Wakefield, another cadet, who played baseball with the Detroit Tigers after leaving the University of Michigan, was not on the Seahawk entry sheet as previously announced.

Honors Likely for Young.

Twenty-four university, college, and service teams are entered in the games. The service teams come from Dalhart [Tex.] army air field, Monroe [La.] army air field, Fort Bliss, Tex.; Dubuque, Ia.; University of Iowa Pre-Flight; Monmouth [Ill.] Pre-Flight, Omaha [Neb.] navy unit, and Naval Air Station at Ottumwa, Ia.

Notre Dame and Illinois are favored to take down the majority of relay titles. Moreover, Buddy Young, Illinois freshman, probably will win the 100 yard dash and the broad jump to become the first freshman in the 35 year history of the games to gain the honor.

27 NAMED FOR TWO DIVISIONS OF INAUGURAL

Record Meeting at Track Foreseen.

They're Off!

FOLLOWING are the dates for the racing meets to be held in Chicago this spring and summer, starting today with the first of two programs at Sportsman's Park:

Sportsman's Park—April 29 to May 15.

Lincoln Fields [at Hawthorne]—May 16 to June 17.

Arlington Park-Washington Park [at Washington Park]—June 19 to Sept. 7.

Hawthorne—Sept. 8 to Oct. 17.

Sportsman's Park—Oct. 18 to Nov. 4.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Chicago's April to November horse racing season, which is expected to set new attendance and pari-mutuel records, will start today at Sportsman's Park. Its top event, the Inaugural handicap, yesterday was turned into a double feature to be run as the sixth and seventh races. This action resulted because only a few of the 33 nominees were withdrawn. Each section will carry a $2,500 prize tag, the original value of the handicap.

The horses will run at the half mile track for 14 days, with eight races on each program. More than six months hence, on Nov. 4, the 1944 Chicago turf campaign will come to a close on the same track. In between these dates Chicagoans will have seen the best that racing has to offer from leading 2 year olds to stake campaigners.

Charity Week July 3 to 7.

High on the '44 racing schedule is THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S charity racing week from July 3 to 7 during the Arlington-Washington meeting at Washington Park. This includes the running of the traditional $50,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap on Independence day.

All tracks have indicated they will closely follow last year's charity programs, which netted $814,965 for war relief and Chicago charities. Topping the field was Sportsman's, which turned over $381,095.31. This was derived from three weeks of racing, the first of which was sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. John L. Keeshin is president of Sportsman's Park.

Tho cloudy weather was predicted, track officials were hopeful that the racing strip, which dries out quickly, will be fast. Interest in racing is at its highest peak in the sport's history, but it will take a mighty outpouring of spectators to surpass last year's opening day crowd of 17,271 at the snug track in Cicero. On that day $483,266 was wagered.

Predicts Banner Season.

Maj. Ednyfed Williams, chairman of the Illinois racing commission, in predicting a banner season, last night said he believed Illinois tracks would raise more than $1,000,000 this year for charities.

The standout in either section of the Inaugural handicap, a sprint of seven furlongs, is Night Shadow, which was assigned top weight of 117 pounds by Racing Secretary Patrick C. Galliger. There is no standout in the second division of the handicap, which will be contested as the sixth race. Zacarosa will pack 117 pounds in this one, two pounds more than the weight carried by Bright Willie, Bolus, and Flying Giant.

Fourteen are listed in the first section and 13 in the second, but the fields will be limited to 10 in each race under rules of the track.

Sportsman's Park may be reached by taking the Douglas Park elevated to Laramie av., and 22d st., where buses go direct to the track.

MRS. M'DONALD HITS RING AGAIN IN CASTING MEET

Housewife Beats Teacher for Tribune Title.

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Mrs. Harry McDonald, the south side housewife whose casting accuracy has given her possession of most of the major women's titles, added another championship to her record last night by winning the ladies' event in The Tribune tournament in the Chicago Arena.

Mrs. McDonald, 601 W. 47th st., a member of the Jackson Park Casting club, scored 93 to win the event for the second straight year. Altho she has been casting for only three years, she has won the national women's ⅝ ounce championship for the last two years and last year defeated 23 men to place second in the finals of the Tribune tournament in the Chicago Stadium.

School Teacher Is Second.

Her closest competitor last night was Mrs. Don Le Baron, 5306 W. Fulton st., a Maywood school teacher and member of the Lincoln Park Casting club, who scored 91. Third place went to Mrs. Glen Compton, 605 Tyler av., Gary, who tallied 87. Mrs. Velma Cook, 4160 Drexel blvd., and Mrs. Charles Stewart, 711 Broadway, Gary, tied for fourth with scores of 78.

Show Closes Tomorrow.

The International Sportsmen's show now goes into the final two days in the Arena, with championships in casting, canine retrieving, and log rolling to be decided today and tomorrow. The final floor shows will be held at 3:30 and 9:30 p. m. each day. The junior casting event will be held at 1:45 this afternoon and the final fishermen's event at 7:30 tonight.

ATTENTION, CASTERS!

The bass bug and dry fly casting events, originally scheduled for 1:45 p. m. tomorrow will be held at 5:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Illini Battle Boilermaker Nine to 7-7 Tie

Lafayette, Ind., April 28 [Special]. —Purdue and Illinois battled to a 7 to 7 tie in an 11 inning game this afternoon that was called on account of darkness after 3 hours and 26 minutes of play. The two teams will attempt to arrive at some kind of a decision in a single game tomorrow.

Illinois	000	000	151	00—7	10	7
Purdue	003	001	120	00—7	9	6

Batteries—Judson and Johns; Kennedy and Hesse.

MICHIGAN BEATS IRISH, 5-4.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 28 [Special]. — Bill Gregor's ninth inning single with the bases loaded gave Michigan a 5 to 4 victory over Notre Dame today for the Wolverines' third straight victory of the season. It was the first defeat in five games for the Irish.

Notre Dame	112	000	000—4	7	2
Michigan	000	012	002—5	10	4

Batteries—Martin and Sheehan; Hirsch and Svenson.

BADGERS, 11; MAROONS, 2.

The University of Wisconsin baseball team handed the Chicago Maroons their third Western conference defeat of the season yesterday, 11 to 2, on Greenwood field.

Six hits, including a home run and three doubles, in the first inning gave the Badgers a five run start. They added one each in the second and sixth and two each in the third and fourth innings.

Wisconsin	512	201	000—11	14	2
Chicago	100	000	100—2	8	2

Batteries—Jarock and Hoglund; Markward and Norton.

N. U. FACES IOWA TODAY.

Northwestern university will open its Western conference baseball season today with a double header against Iowa on Dyche field in Evanston. Coach Wes Fry announced that Lyall Johnson will face the Hawkeyes in the first game and Bob Trompeter in the second.

Iowa, because of its speeded up spring program, will be concluding its conference campaign. It has won two and lost three Big Ten games. The first game will start at 1:30 p. m.

PUKKA GIN MAY NOT COMPETE IN KENTUCKY DERBY

Baltimore, Md., April 28 (AP).—Ten Kentucky Derby eligibles were named today for tomorrow's $25,000 added Chesapeake stakes at Pimlico, final rich test for the blue grass classic, but Pukka Gin was not among them—and he probably will not run in the Derby.

Pukka Gin, the Col. C. V. Whitney colt who was the winter book favorite for the Derby, was to have been given a chance to improve his poor showing in last Saturday's Wood Memorial, but he began bleeding from the mouth after a workout this morning and was declared out of the Chesapeake. Trainer Andy Schuttinger immediately said it was doubtful Pukka Gin would be shipped to Louisville.

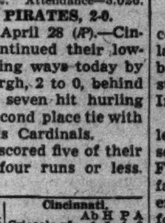
JOE BARRY WILL GIVE UP POST WITH SOX JUNE 1

Joe Barry, who has been traveling secretary of the Chicago White Sox for 12 years, will resign the position June 1 because of ill health. The announcement was made last night by Mrs. Grace Comiskey, president of the club.



Joe Barry.

Frank H. McMahon, who has been connected with a brewing company, will succeed Barry.

Illness prevented Barry from accompanying the White Sox to spring camp this year for the first time since he succeeded Lou Barbour in 1932.

CHICAGO DOGS COMPETE TODAY IN FIELD TRIALS

Camp Grant, Ill., April 28 [Special].—For the next two days more than 80 prize dogs owned by sportsmen of the middle west will be busy in the spring trials of the Chicagoland Field Trial club which will be conducted over 1,500 acres of excellent pheasant and quail cover at Camp Grant.

Athletics Beat Red Sox, 7-5, in 16 Innings

Boston, Mass., April 28 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics broke a 5 to 5 tie in the 16th inning today as Woody Wheaton singled with the bases loaded to drive home two runs for a 7 to 5 triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

Ed Busch opened the inning by singling off Relief Pitcher Clem Hausmann's leg and Irving Hall advanced him with a single to center. After Joe Berry went out on a third strike foul bunt, Jo Jo White walked to fill the bases and Wheaton contributed his game winning single, his first hit in eight trips to the plate during the afternoon. North Shore Beats Luther Preps, 7 to 6

North Shore Country Day school, co-champion with Chicago Latin last year in the Private School baseball league, yesterday won its third straight game by beating Luther Institute, 7 to 6, in Winnetka.

Chicago Latin made its first league start and defeated Harvard school, 8 to 2 in Washington park. Francis Parker made 11 errors, a fact which helped Wheaton academy win, 11 to 8, at Parker. The fourth scheduled league game, between Concordia and University High, was postponed because of a quarantine at Concordia. University High then arranged a practice game with Hyde Park of the City league and the former gained a 3 to 2 victory.

In the South Suburban league, Thornton defeated Blue Island, 8 to 2, at Harvey for its second straight victory and stretched its three year winning streak in the league to 20 consecutive games. In another league game in Argo, Sam Mack of the home club fanned 12 men and gave up four hits as Argo beat Lockport, 2 to 1.

IRISH NET TEAM WINS, 8-1, OVER NORTHWESTERN

Notre Dame defeated Northwestern, 8 to 1, in a dual tennis meet in Evanston yesterday. The Wildcats will return to action again today against Western Michigan at 2 o'clock.

Charles Samson, playing No. 1 for the Irish, won his singles match from Harry Hall of the Wildcats, 6-2, 9-7. Notre Dame scored a clean sweep in the six singles matches. The Wildcats scored their lone victory when the doubles team of Lane Fortenberry and Guy Randolph won an extra set match from Sanford Warshowsky and Gerald Black, 9-7, 2-6, 6-4.

DERBY WINNER? JUST BET ON A KENTUCKY BRED

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Ky., April 28.—You want the winner of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs next Saturday? Just as easy as falling off a log, or in the vernacular of the Bronx, it's a lead pipe cinch to be a Kentucky bred horse. The name? Well, that's something else again, for it's a bit too early even to name the starting field.

But in Lexington, where the breeding of thorobreds comes first and income tax a poor second [for the time being at least], they'll tell you without hesitation that since H. P. McGrath's Aristides won the first Derby 'way back in 1875, 69 races ago, only 12 foreign bred entrants have taken the roses. In other words, 57 of the 69 Derbies have been won by Kentucky bred horses.

From the Blue Grass.

That brings us to this year and the 70th running of the event, now worth $75,000 in added money. Of note is the fact that of the 20 leading candidates for the mile and a quarter fixture, 18 are Kentucky bred, the two exceptions being Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie, bred on the King ranch in Texas, and the Hawaiian bred and owned Kopa Kona.

The other 18 eligibles with prospects of starting the big race on May 6 were bred within a radius of 20 miles of Lexington, where it is said that 70 per cent of the better thorobreds of the United States are foaled.

For instance, Stir Up, the 8 to 5 favorite, was bred at Arthur B. Hancock's farm; Challenge Me, second choice at 5 to 1, at Warner L. Jones' Hermitage farm near Louisville; Pensive, also 5 to 1, at Warren Wright's Calumet farm; Pukka Gin, 8 to 1, at Col. C. V. Whitney's; Skytracer, also 8 to 1, owned by M. B. Goff, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was bread on a Fayette county farm leased by Mr. Goff; Lucky Draw, 10 to 1, at George D. Widener's; Bell Buzzer, 15 to 1, at Mereworth farm; Autocrat, 20 to 1, at Phil Chinn's farm; Alorter, 20 to 1, at A. C. Ernst's, Director J. E., 20 to 1, at Sam Riddle's Faraway farm, home of the great Man O' War; Shut Up, 25 to 1 at Hal Price Headley's Beaumont farm; Broad Grin, 25 to 1, at the Greentree farm of Mrs. Payne Whitney; Gay Bit, 25 to 1, at Phil Chinn's; Broadcloth, 30 to 1, at the farm of the late Jeff Spencer; Valley Flares, 30 to 1, at Hancock's; Kaytee, 40 to 1, at Royce G. Martin's place, and American Eagle, 50 to 1, at Col. Whitney's.

Growth Begins in 1871.

The concentration of most of the country's more famous breeding farms in this section of Kentucky was begun in 1871, shortly after the civil war, with the tremendous success for the Woodburn farm of Robert A. and A. J. Alexander. M. H. Sanford transferred his stud from Preakness Creek in New Jersey which gave the name to a horse for which the now famous Pimlico Preakness was named. He bought what now is the Elmendorf farm, approximately six miles from the center of the Lexington business district.

Then from New York came the elder August Belmont. The roots are deep and strong and now Kentucky, once the "dark and bloody ground" of early America, is a land of thorobred culture.

OLRICH TO HEAD ARMY SURPLUS DISPOSAL UNIT

Clayton Tells Plans on Excess Output.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—Appointment of Ernest L. Olrich, former Marshall Field & Co. executive in Chicago and now president of Munsingwear, Inc., in Minneapolis, as director of a new treasury unit which will dispose of surplus consumer goods owned by the army, was announced formally tonight by the treasury.

Ernest L. Olrich.

Olrich, who became controler-secretary of Field's in 1933 and later was operating manager of the retail division before he joined Munsingwear in 1937, will take over his new job with the treasury May 3. He will be on leave of absence from Munsingwear.

The appointment was one of two developments in government preparations for disposal of surpluses. Earlier William L. Clayton, surplus war property administrator, announced a basic sales policy under which materials left over in war plants when contracts are terminated will be moved into other war production or civilian uses, and under which sales to speculators will be discouraged.

Much Material Accumulates.

Clayton said several hundred million dollars worth of such material has accumulated. Included are raw materials, semi-finished goods and scrap from war plants, and most of it is usable only for manufacturing purposes, he added.

Disposal agencies for the contract termination surpluses will be the Reconstruction Finance corporation for capital and producers' goods, the treasury procurement division for consumer goods, the war food administration for food, and the maritime commission for ships and maritime equipment.

Clayton emphasized that sales of leftover material will be handled by the four disposal agencies only when the government agency owning the material cannot readily dispose of it. Property declared as surplus by the procuring or owning agencies of the government or any material that has been moved into government storage will not be considered under the policy.

Basic Principles Listed.

The policy is designed to give contracting officers courage to act boldly in the sale of materials, Clayton said. In addition to the admonition to keep goods from speculators, he listed these basic guiding principles:

1. Clear plants quickly because resumption of war production or essential civilian production is imperative.

2. Sell to contractors or other buyers who will themselves use the property in production because this is desirable.

3. Sell no goods without testing the market adequately.

Responsibility for determining what goods shall be sold as scrap will rest with the procuring agency, Clayton said. When value of property to be scrapped exceeds $50,000 the final determination to scrap will be subject to a reviewing authority.

TERMINATION BILL READY

Washington, D. C., April 28 [Special].—The senate military affairs committee today agreed unanimously to a war contract termination bill which the senate is expected to consider next week and pass quickly.

The proposed law provides for prompt settlement of terminated contracts, with the government immediately paying both prime contractors and subcontractors full value of all completed products and 90 per cent of estimated value of inventories and other charges incurred because of anticipated production. Incorporated are plans for government guarantees on bank loans to war producers when they need capital quickly for reconversion pending full settlement of claims.

All settlements would be handled by the agency which let the original contract, under the supervision of an office of contract settlement, headed by a director to be appointed by the President, and advised by a contract settlement advisory board.

Isham Urges Laws to Aid Terminations

Federal legislation to insure speedy, equitable, and final termination of war contracts when peace comes was urged yesterday by Henry P. Isham, chief of the purchasing, termination, and renegotiation policy unit of the Chicago ordnance district.

Isham warned in a Chicago Association of Commerce luncheon address in the Palmer House that when "the need for war supplies ends, our economy must return without delay to peace time production if we are to avoid disastrous economic stagnation."

Need Faster Methods.

"It will be impossible to settle promptly the stupendous volume of termination now being made and to be made by the normal peace time governmental proof-of-claim routine," he said. "Just as it is impracticable during war to go to court to buy a tank so the resumption of other activities in the plant of every canceled contractor cannot await the eventual outcome of elaborate court procedure. Other effective but faster methods of protecting the government's interests must be found.

"Subcontractors must be protected by the government against loss from a bankruptcy in the contractual chain above them. This step should be taken now in the interest of current procurement, in the interest of private financing of subcontractors, and in the interest of equity to subcontractors whose production has been allocated by government to financially weak prime contractors.

Holds Confusion Results.

"Termination settlements must be final and conclusive in the absence of fraud. The past and present attempts of the controler general to destroy the finality of all settlements involving both prime contractors and subcontractors have created so much confusion and doubt in the minds of contractors as to the validity of any settlement, that I believe it worthwhile to repeat that the successful handling of terminations cannot possibly be accomplished if everything we do or every payment we make is subject to post audit by an independent agency totally unfamiliar with the facts and circumstances.

"I believe that it is not humanly possible for the controler general to find enough good auditors to audit all settlements in a sufficiently short time to prevent economic disaster."

SPECIALS SHOW WAY AS STOCKS CLIMB 3D DAY

New York, April 28 (AP).—For the third successive session the stock market advanced today. Specialties were strong from the start, with liquors in front, and closing gains of fractions to a point or more were well distributed.

The Montgomery Ward dispute held the spotlight in Wall st. and altho the company's stock slipped ¾ after a one point rally yesterday, market analysts believed the outcome, if favorable to the company, will aid corporate activities generally.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.1 at 51.1. Transfers totaled 561,230 shares.

RAIL BONDS CLIMB.

New York, April 27 (AP).—Substantial gains by a fairly large number of rail loans today lifted the Associated Press carrier average 0.4 to 87.1. Altho industrial and utility bonds moved within a narrow range, the utility composite gained 0.1 to a new 1944 high.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES.

Prices advanced again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in lighter trading. Turnover was 22,000 shares.

FIELD RENTALS, SALES INCREASE, BUT PROFITS DIP

Marshall Field & Co.'s sales and rental income during the quarter ended March 31 increased 6.3 per cent to $33,419,241 from $31,441,909 a year earlier, the company reported yesterday. Net profits, however, decreased to $1,023,334, equal to 41 cents a common share, from $1,245,320, or 52 cents a share, a year ago. Reserve for federal taxes amounted to $2,631,431, compared with $2,832,770 in the 1942 quarter.

FREE BUSINESS FROM RED TAPE, SENATE ASKED

Tax Reform to Aid New Firms Urged.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C, April 28.—The National Association of Manufacturers and the Committee for Economic Development, which represent the country's big businesses, testified today in behalf of small business as a main pillar of American economy. Representatives of the two groups appeared before a senate investigation subcommittee of the small business committee and made these pleas:

1. Free American ingenuity from governmental red tape.

2. Reform taxation policies so risk capital will be encouraged to invest in new industries.

3. Reform taxation policies so small businesses may become big businesses.

Release of Surpluses Urged.

An immediate stimulant to business would be the prompt release into normal trade channels of millions of dollars of surplus materials in overloaded army and navy warehouses, the witnesses said. Anticipating the future in planning for a 35 per cent or 25 billion dollar a year cutback in war production when Germany is defeated, they asked release of raw and fabricated materials to small industries, reversing the preference given big corporations in awarding war contracts.

F. F. Sommers, president, Rain Fair, Inc., Racine, Wis., manufacturer of rubberized coats and fabrics, who appeared for the manufacturers' association, said the small business man thru his ingenuity will solve his individual problems if the government will let him alone.

William C. Foster, vice president, Pressed and Welded Steel Products company, Long Island City, N. Y., appeared for the Committee for Economic Development, a war time organization supported by some of the country's largest industrialists and headed by Paul Hoffman, president of Studebaker corporation.

Freedom from Paper Work Asked.

Foster asked that owner-managers of small plants he freed from the burden of government paper work, that surplus materials be made available to small plants for unrestricted use, and that restrictions on the sale of surplus military stocks be removed.

Warehouses are bulging with materials from which civilian goods may be manufactured without interfering with war production, Foster said. Other surpluses which may be placed on the shelves of merchants thru normal trade channels also exist, he added.

Noel Sargent of New York City, secretary of the association, testified that under present tax policies new businesses are discouraged because the government prohibits profits commensurate with the risk. The excess profits tax bars expansion of an existing business, he said.

HOW REALTORS BOOST PRIVATE BUILDING TOLD

Applications for priorities for nearly 500 new residential units on the south side have been filed so far this year as a result of Chicago Real Estate board efforts to promote home building by private enterprise, Mayor Kelly was told last night at a meeting of the board at 105 W. Madison st.

Before the year ends more residential units will be built on the south side for Negro occupancy than have been erected by private owners in 25 years, Leonard Downie, business manager of the board, said.

Ray McCarthy, chairman of the board's housing committee, suggested wholesale foreclosure of tax delinquent properties in order to obtain building sites at prices which would attract private builders into the residential field. Financial assistance from the government may be needed and the use of condemnation undoubtedly will be necessary, he said.

Hog Markets' Congestion Is Eased Slightly

Conditions in the congested hog markets improved slightly yesterday as the movement to some points was stemmed by embargoes and lighter selling by farmers. Unsold hogs, however, again were well above normal at all centers and owners of some smaller yards said they would not reopen until next week because of the burdened packing plants and the acute feed shortage.

Feed experts ridiculed the idea of substituting potatoes for grain for holdover hogs at markets where there is no animal feed. They said such feeding soon would create a shortage of potatoes for human consumption, estimating that the existing surplus would vanish quickly. In an experiment at one market a carload of hogs in three hours consumed the equivalent to what an average family eats in six months.

Hogs Lowest Since 1942.

Hog prices in the Chicago stock yards sank to the lowest point since March, 1942, when the average declined 5 cents a hundred pounds to $12.95. Prices ranged from steady to 15 cents lower, with most pressure on the "lard hogs." Pessimistic reports that the lend-lease group will ask for lard and heavy pork cuts at prices substantially below the existing office of price administration ceiling level made buyers wary in purchasing stock above the 270 pound weight limit "supported" at $13.75 by the war food administration.

An estimated 7,000 hogs remained unsold at the close, compared with holdovers of 15,000 on each of the two preceding days.

Steady to 20 cents lower prices bought most slaughter lambs. A top of $16.90 was paid for best Colorados.

The small supply of cattle sold at steady prices. Best steers brought $15.90.

GRAIN PRICES EASE

Essential corn processing industries may be able to resume full time operations within a week as a result of the government program to increase the movement of corn from farms to market, grain brokers said yesterday. Chicago handlers purchased 100,000 bushels for deferred shipment from the country, less than one day's requirements of local processors. However, they expected farmers to sell larger amounts in the next few days, if weather continues favorable.

Grain markets showed an easy undertone with more favorable weather conditions over the farm belt, but short covering developed late in the day and a rally followed. Wheat futures closed ⅛ cent a bushel lower. Oats finished unchanged. Trading in rye was fairly active with commission house selling more than offsetting professional buying. Rye closed ¼ to ⅜ cent lower. Barley was ⅝ to ¾ cent lower.

Appointment of Edwin Milner as director of sales and retail stores for Andes Candies, Inc., was announced by A. G. Kanelos, president. Milner formerly was retail manager for the Sherman Shops.

The State Street council will hold its annual meeting and dinner of the Association of State Street Seniors May 4 in the Palmer House.

Highway Plan Held Threat to Medic Center

Plans for the Congress st. superhighway as revised by the city council April 12 will require the removal or remodeling of three buildings important in the proposed medical center and several other large buildings between Hermitage and Winchester avs. along the widening project, it was learned yesterday.

Included are the Cook County Graduate School of Medicine, the five story University hospital, the Sprague Memorial Nurses' home of the Presbyterian hospital, and the 10 story million dollar Y. M. C. A. building.

Meeting Discloses Threat.

At the time of the council's action, which was in the form of an amendment recommended by the committee on superhighways, the object appeared to be only the acquisition of additional land for right of way. A meeting of the Chicago Medical Center commission Wednesday disclosed the threat to the buildings.

Executives of the institutions expressed surprise at finding their properties endangered. Herman Hencel, superintendent of the Presbyterian hospital, said he had supposed the superhighway would pass around the buildings.

Discussion Is Planned.

The Medical Center commission, whose officers were as much surprised, planned to discuss the situation with the institutions affected with a view to planning action to oppose the revised plan.

Ald. Kells [28th] chairman of the superhighways committee, said there had been no intention to be secretive and that he would grant a hearing if the Medical Center commission requested.

QUARTER PEAK SET BY G. M. IN WAR SUPPLIES

Net Income Mounts to 41 Millions.

New York, April 28 (AP).—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, reported in the company's quarterly statement today that its deliveries of war materials in the three months ended March 31 amounted to $1,048,456,895, a new peak.

With other products included, first quarter deliveries totaled $1,130,271,403 against $1,096,444,322 in the fourth quarter of 1943 and $813,529,947 in the March quarter last year.

Quarter Earnings Mount.

Net income in the March quarter after provision of $71,081,000 for taxes was $41,060,455, equal to 88 cents a share, compared with $33,074,031, or 71 cents a share, a year earlier.

"War products delivered during the first quarter increased somewhat over those in the fourth quarter of 1943 and were 37 per cent greater than those in the first quarter of 1943," said Sloan. "These war materials deliveries as measured in dollar value were at a rate in excess of 12 million dollars per day.

"Changes in the character of war material required will undoubtedly continue in line with changes in strategic requirements. The flexibility of the corporation's manufacturing organization makes possible adjustments in production schedules to meet military needs."

Renegotiation Fund Set Aside.

Provision of $34,307,000 was made during the quarter for price and other adjustments which may arise in connection with renegotiation of war contracts.

In the last three years reserves of $76,051,805 have been set up for post-war contingencies, but Sloan said no provision was made for this purpose in the first quarter "inasmuch as the above amount was considered adequate in the light of present conditions."

[Additional earnings statistics are on page 18.]

ARMS OUTPUT RISES

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP).—Munitions production in March rose 3 per cent over February, War Production Board Chairman Nelson said today. It failed by 2 per cent to meet the over-all output schedule, pegged to a 25 per cent increase by the end of the year, he added.

Nelson said the major production problem of the next few months will be to keep the level of actual output abreast of the increasing military needs.

Meeting future goals will tax the resourcefulness and coöperativeness of both labor and management, the chairman said, and added that altho actual March output in critical programs rose 6 per cent, the required gain was 8 per cent. Tractors and naval combatant ships were two major items in which production schedules were not met, Nelson's report showed.

At the same time, it said, planned production declines lagged in being cut back to the determined upon extent. Items scheduled for lesser production included most ground army items, destroyer escort vessels, Liberty ships and radio.

OPA DENIES HIKE IN WASTE PAPER CEILING IS READY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—The OPA, which controls the prices paid for wastepaper critically needed in the manufacture of cartons for army field rations, today denied reports that a decision on a ceiling price hike has been reached. It asserted that a price increase alone would not bring out sufficient quantities of wastepaper, but would merely add fuel to a black market which it said exists in the more active paper markets.

The report in wastepaper trade circles that OPA has been ready for six months to boost the price for old newspapers to $25 a ton, from $15, is erroneous, the agency said.

"Any increase in wastepaper ceilings by OPA would not be dependent on the recommendation of WPB officials," an OPA spokesman said.

New Financing Announced by Beatrice Co.

Beatrice Creamery company will offer its common stock holders 100,433 additional common shares of $25 par value, in the ratio of one new share for each four held as of May 19, the company announced yesterday. The price will be determined later. The transferrable subscription warrants will expire June 1.

Proceeds of the financing will be applied to the redemption on Aug. 1 of approximately 29,788 shares of the company's outstanding $4.25 cumulative preferred stock at $105.50 a share and accrued dividends. The remainder of the funds needed for this purpose will be provided from cash on hand. After this redemption 59,577 shares of preferred stock would remain outstanding.

Rest May be Offered Publicly.

It is expected that any unsubscribed portion of the additional common shares will be offered publicly by an underwriting group headed by Glore, Forgan & Co.

A registration statement for the new issue filed with the securities and exchange commission shows Beatrice Creamery profit in the fiscal year ended Feb. 29 increased to $1,744,497, equal to $3.24 a common share, from $1,664,994, or $3.16 a share, in the preceding fiscal year. Sales totaled $106,507,404, an increase of $4,879,677.

Report Groups Will Bid.

Banking groups are being formed to bid for a new issue of securities of Texas Power and Light company, it was reported. One group would be headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., and another by the First Boston corporation, it was understood. The purpose of the financing would be to replace the company's present first mortgage bonds with obligations carrying a lower interest rate. The present issues consist of 26½ million dollars of 5s, due in 1956, and 15 million 4¾s, due in 1965.

RESSLER TAKES CHARGE OF SALES IN RYERSON FIRM

Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, steel warehousing subsidiary of Inland Steel company, yesterday announced several changes in its executive organization. Harold B. Ressler, vice president, who has served at the company's New York plant, will move to the Chicago offices, where he will be in general charge of sales.

H. B. Ressler.

Ainslie Y. Sawyer, previously assistant to the president, has been elected a vice president. He will continue in charge of purchases. Sawyer recently returned to Chicago from Washington, D. C., where he served as deputy chief of the warehouse steel branch of the war production board.

Harry W. Treleaven, previously assistant manager, has been appointed manager of the Ryerson New York plant. Thomas Z. Hayward was named assistant general manager of sales.

MINORITY GROUP SEEKS CONTROL OF MO. PACIFIC

St. Louis, Mo., April 28 (AP).—A minority stockholders' fight against the Allegheny corporation for control of the Missouri Pacific Railroad company was disclosed today with solicitation of proxies by a committee composed of F. Douglas Wilson of Plainfield, Ill., and Andrew W. Comstock of Evanston, Ill.

Their proxy statement proposed the election of eight "independent" directors on the board of 15 at the railroad's annual meeting May 9. The statement asserted a compromise plan of reorganization for the railroad, pending before the ICC "affords no genuine recognition to stockholders" but "preserves the same kind of working control for Allegheny corporation it enjoys at present."

CHICAGO CORP. EXPLAINS PIPE LINE OPERATION

Stockholders Fire Finance Queries.

Stockholders of the 32 million dollar Chicago corporation took over at their annual meeting in the Field building yesterday. They directed a running fire of questions at Richard Wagner, president, and at the conclusion gave him a round of applause.

Most of the questions concerned the building and future operation of a 50 million dollar pipe line by the Tennessee Gas and Transmission company from Corpus Christi, Tex., to Cornwell, W. Va., a distance of 1,263 miles. Its purpose is to supply gas from Texas to the great Appalachian industrial area. Chicago corporation has a majority interest in the pipe line company.

Ward Nearly on Schedule.

Gardiner Symonds, president of the pipe line company and a vice president of Chicago corporation, told stockholders that despite wet weather construction is nearly on schedule and the company hopes to have the line completed in early October. Between 6 and 8 thousand men are employed on the job.

One stockholder objected that he believed the corporation's financial obligation to the pipe line company was out of proportion to the size of the Chicago corporation. Wagner explained that the war emergency, which makes it necessary to get gas into the Appalachian area by the coming winter, made it necessary for Chicago corporation to guarantee payments to suppliers, but the guarantees are being kept down as work is completed.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation has a 44 million dollar commitment on the operation and its commitments are being paid, he said.

Petroleum Profits Grow.

Wagner told of progress in the development of the company's petroleum operations. Profits from these activities last year totaled about $706,000 and in the first quarter of this year about $240,000, he said. He expects this activity to be expanded and studies are being made to determine how the company may profit from the sale of hydrocarbons recoverable from natural gas.

Wagner said natural gas properties in which the company has a large interest have 2 trillion 500 billion cubic feet of natural gas available and the company also is interested in other properties which have large amounts of natural gas.

Commenting on the bringing in of a deep oil well on company property near Corpus Christi, Wagner cautioned the stockholders not to be too optimistic, as it was impossible to estimate the value of an oil field from just one well.

Wagner said no dividend would be paid this year on the common stock.

Borg-Warner Meeting.

At a meeting of Borg-Warner corporation stockholders at the Palmer House in the morning, C. S. Davis, president, said that increases in net profits from 1941 thru 1943 were not commensurate with the marked advances in sales because of rising federal taxes. He said sales in the first quarter of this year were substantially ahead of last year.

Davis said renegotiation proceedings for 1942 have been completed except in the case of a subsidiary, the Pesco Products company, but adequate funds have been set aside to take care of this. Renegotiation for 1943 has not yet been started, he said.

25 Cent Dividend Voted by United Electric Coal

United Electric Coal companies declared a dividend of 25 cents a common share yesterday for the first payment on common since Sept. 3, 1929.

LEGAL NOTICES

REQUEST FOR BIDS
The undersigned Trustees of The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company hereby invite bids for the lowest interest rate at which bidder will provide not to exceed $6,000,000 (representing approximately seventy-five per cent (75%) of the total purchase price of the within-described equipment) from time to time prior to February 1, 1945, for financing the acquisition of ten (10) steam freight locomotives to be manufactured by American Locomotive Company (delivery point, Gibson, Indiana), nine (9) Diesel freight locomotives, to be manufactured by General Motors Corporation (Electro-Motive Division) (delivery point, Gibson, Indiana), and five hundred (500) 50-ton capacity steel box cars, to be manufactured by Pressed Steel Car Company (delivery points, McKees Rocks, Pennsylvania); all to be purchased by said Trustees under a Conditional Sale Agreement to be dated as of June 1, 1944, between Rock Island Improvement Company, as Seller, and said Trustees, as Buyers.

Said Agreement reserves in the Seller title to all said Equipment until Buyers have fully paid the purchase price and interest thereon. Buyers will make a down payment of twenty-five per cent (25%) of the purchase price on each lot of Equipment as delivered and accepted, and will give promissory notes for the balance payable in equal semi-annual installments of principal, together with interest on unpaid principal balances, over a period of approximately ten years. When delivery and acceptance of the Equipment are completed (estimated to be before December 31, 1944), the unpaid principal amount of each of said notes thereto-fore may be refunded into a single note, principal and interest of which will be payable in monthly installments as aforesaid over the remaining ten-year period. The interest rate on said notes will be fixed by the accepted bid. The Trustees will have the privilege of prepaying, upon the date when the payment of any installment of principal is due, beginning February 1, 1945, an amount equal to the last one or more maturing installment or installments of principal, together with accrued interest thereon to the date of such prepayment.

The accepted bidder will become the Assignee of Rock Island Improvement Company under an Assignment Agreement which will also require Assignee to pay to said manufacturers (or to Assignor as respects payments theretofore made by it) seventy-five per cent (75%) of the purchase price of the Equipment delivered or to be delivered to and accepted by the Buyers, when the Buyers shall have made the twenty-five per cent (25%) down payment thereon; (2) assign and transfer to Assignee title to all said Equipment reserved to the Seller under said Agreement, and (3) entitle Assignee to receive payments of principal and interest from the Buyers under said Conditional Sale Agreement. The execution and delivery of the above-mentioned promissory notes will be subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission and of the court of the Trustees' appointment, and said notes cannot be sold and disposed of separately from the Conditional Sale Agreement.

Bids made pursuant to this invitation shall be in duplicate and shall be addressed and delivered to the Treasurer of the Trustees by mail or messenger at Room 1136 La Salle Street Station, Chicago, Illinois, in plain, sealed envelopes, bearing no indication of the bidder's name or of the amount of the bid, but marked "Bid under Proposed Serial Contract No. 1 of 1944," on or before twelve o'clock noon, Central War Time, on the 11th day of May, 1944. Each bid must state the name and address of the bidder, and if a corporation, the names and addresses of its officers, directors, general manager and purchasing or selling officer or agent in the transaction, and if a firm, partnership or association, the names and addresses of each member and of the manager and of each purchasing or selling officer or agent in the transaction. Bidders may attend in person or by duly authorized representative the opening of the bids at two o'clock on said date. Notice of acceptance or rejection of bids so received will be delivered or mailed to bidders within three (3) days thereafter.

Certified check for $30,000, payable to Rock Island Improvement Company, must be furnished with each bid; such checks will be returned except that of the accepted bidder, which will be held by the Trustees and applied to the initial payment under the Assignment Agreement.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids, and bids for less than the entire obligation of $6,000,000 will not be considered.

Those desiring to bid may obtain copies of the proposed Conditional Sale Agreement and notes and may examine the Equipment specifications and other papers at the office of the Treasurer of the Trustees, Room 1136 La Salle Street Station, Chicago, Illinois, or at the office of the Assistant Treasurer, 35 Broad Street, New York, N. Y.

O. U. Zerk, 65, wealthy inventor, dries dishes on Kenosha, Wis., estate for bride, former Adele Zirk, 24. Similarity of names started 11 day courtship, resulting in marriage.
